Federal Co-ordinator Takes Issue With Steel Companies That Fixing Uniform Rate Meets Terms of Code

'MUST ACCEPT $35 A TON OR OPEN BOOKS'

Says President Has Barred Further Loans to Railroads for Purchases Without 'Safeguard to Public.'

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—In his effort to get new rails for the railroads at $35 a ton from the steel companies, Joseph B. Eastman, Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation, has run up against what he terms "consultation and collusion" within the steel industry. This "consultation and collusion" in the fixing of prices, while not in terms sanctioned by the code under which the steel industry is operating, appears, nevertheless, to be regarded by the steel operators as fully permissible under the code.

Writing to the steel operators on Oct. 27, in response to their uniform offer of rails at a base price of $37.75 a ton, Eastman took issue with their apparent interpretation of the code, but in so doing he cited no specific bar against it. His stated objection was on the general ground that "manifestly the code was not intended to eliminate competition" but on the contrary "is by its own terms a 'code of fair competition.'"

The correspondence between Eastman and the steel companies reveals an interesting situation.

In pursuance of the Government's decision to lend public works money to the railroads for the purchase of rails at not more than $35 a ton, Eastman on Oct. 3 wrote to the United States Steel Corporation, the Bethlehem Steel Co., the Inland Steel Co., and the receiver of the Colorado Iron & Fuel Co., saying that under certain conditions the railroads were prepared to purchase at least 844,525 tons of steel rails and asking each of the companies to quote their base prices.

Four Bids at Same Price.

All four of the companies replied under the same date, Oct. 20, and all offered rails at the same figures—$37.75 a ton for first-quality rails, with corresponding prices for other grades.

In order to conform to the steel code, which forbids any of the companies affected by the code to change its filed base price list except on 10 days' notice, the four companies on Oct. 20 filed their proposed new prices with the American Iron and Steel Institute, the code authority and made these prices effective Oct. 30.

The Bethlehem Steel Co. called attention to a code provision that, with certain exceptions, "none of the members of the code shall make any contract of sale of any product by the terms of which the shipment of such product is not required to be completed before the end of the calendar quarter year ending not more than four months after the date of the making of the contract." The company pointed out that in the delivery of rails it would have to be guided by this provision.

On this point Eastman agreed that under the code, if contracts for the purchase of rails were made in November, all the rails would have to be shipped before the end of this calendar year. Since some of the roads would not need some of the rails till 1934, Eastman said that arrangements would have to be made, "by amendment of the code or otherwise," so that it would not be necessary to complete shipment of the rails until March 31, 1934.

"Consultation and Collusion."

The main portion of his reply to the steel companies, dated Oct. 27, was concerned with the matter of price and his charge of collusion.

"The facts," he wrote, "that these letters (the Oct. 20 letters of the companies) bear a common date, that they name an identical price for the first-quality rail, f. o. b. mill, and that this price is the odd figure of $37.75 point unmistakably to the conclusion that the letters were the result of consultation and collusion. In my letter to you of Oct. 3, I stated:

"'As you know, it was the understanding at the President's conference that base prices would be submitted, in response to my request, by the steel companies independently of each other and without collusion or consultation.'

"Clearly, what has been done is

Press of America Wishes Only To Be Assured Rights, Says McCormick, Assailing Code

Chicago Publisher and Congressman Beck, at Celebration of Zenger's Anniversary, Defend Free Journalism.

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Oct. 28.—American journalism celebrated today the two hundredth anniversary of John Peter Zenger's reporting of a Colonial assembly election, an event founding the principle that newspapers may print the truth without fear of suppression.

It was in St. Paul's Church in East Chester that the election was held. Here, too, was Zenger's trial on charges that his account was seditious libel to Colonial authorities.

Zenger was acquitted. His defense was that he reported the truth. The church still stands, a monument to freedom of the press.

Several hundred editors and publishers, and descendants of Colonial families who settled this Hudson River countryside, gathered on the church green amidst tombstones several hundred years old, heard Col. Robert R. McCormick of the Chicago Tribune urge the press of America to follow in Zenger's steps.

For Preservation of Rights.

Linking the right of a free press with the forthcoming NRA code for newspapers, the Chicago editor and publisher declared:

"American journalism does not wish to triumph over anybody. We only wish to be assured that our rights so hardily won and so hardily preserved are not being destroyed."

In negotiations looking toward a permanent code for the newspaper industry, Col. McCormick said, the newspapers have been contending "for the preservation of the right of freedom of the press as provided in the Constitution and upheld by the courts. The Administrator, I have understood, has been insisting upon its elimination."

The recovery program was cited by Congressman James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, who said that in these times "the complexity of the constitutional and economic questions are such that there would seem to be a manifest duty on the part of the American press to express its opinion for the public enlightenment npon those issues."

"In this there can be no lack of patriotism," said Beck, noted authority on constitutional law, "and the seriousness of the times would seem to insure that such expressions will be 'with malice toward none, with charity for all,' and yet, 'with firmness in the right.'"

Beck Quotes the President.

Beck said that "if in the execution of the vast recovery program there have at times been injudicious efforts to discipline the press, or even, as was gravely suggested, to go back to the days of the star chamber by licensing the press under a code, such has not been the purpose or the spirit of our President, who nobly stated the true attitude of a free government to press cricitism in a speech to newspaper men."

Some of the President's "overzealous subordinates could profitably ponder his words," Beck declared. He sounded a warning that if the press "fails in its duty of free, fair and dispassionate criticism, then democracy itself will fail and the event may prove to be that our government, while it may continue in form, will have perished in spirit."

The Pennsylvania representative said "champions of the right still exist in the field of journalism, but the commercial character of the newspaper has become so dominant that the freedom of expression is not what it once was."

Cites Barring of Reporter.

McCormick traced extensively, from the earliest days of journalism, the fight for freedom of the press. He touched on the recent incident in Washington in which Hugh Johnson, the Recovery Administrator, refused access to certain news to a reporter whose writings, the editor said, "displeased him."

"This act," McCormick added, "would not be important, for it is notorious that Washington officials try to control and color news from Washington by conveying and withholding official and social favor, but for the position held by Mr. Johnson."

Like Congressman Beck, the Chicago newspaper man warned against any licensing provision in the NRA code.

"Licensing is only one way to dominate utterance," McCormick said. "The economic attack is an equally effective way."

Says Rogers Is In Error.

Referring to a recent speech by Prof. Lindsay Rogers, who has the newspaper code in charge, McCormick said:

"I note that he says that he does not intend to limit the freedom of the press; that the decisions of the Supreme Court will be accepted as final, and, that the men who have been championing the freedom of

WHITE MEN REACH PEAK IN PAPUA FOR FIRST TIME

Nova Scotian Sends News of Success of 6-Month Exploration of Jungle.

By the Associated Press.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., Oct. 28. — The success of an expedition sent out by the American Museum of Natural History in reaching Mount Albert Edward in Papua or New Guinea, where white men never trod before, was announced today in a message from Austin Rand, the leader.

Native bearers, traveling through one of the most difficult terrains in the world, carried word of his achievement to Port Moresby, Papua.

The message was forwarded to Rand's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Rand of Wolfville, giving them their first news of their son since he and his followers entered the unexplored jungle last April.

At that time, he said, he intended to spend at least five months out of contact with civilization, not including the period it would take to reach the inland objective.

LINDBERGH IN AIR ACROBAT'S PLANE DOES SOME OF STUNTS

His Day in Paris Taken Up With Aviation; Wife Goes on Shopping Trip.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh spent the day in Paris today occupied as always with aviation but Mrs. Lindbergh went shopping.

They ended the day with French aviation leaders at an informal dinner given by Air Minister Pierre Cot.

The Lindberghs became the center of a public greeting as they left a restaurant after the dinner. A crowd of about 150 women waited for two hours in the cold to catch a glimpse of Lindbergh and applaud him.

Guests at the function included Maryse Hilze, French aviatrix; Under-Secretary of Air de la Salle; Gen. Denain, chief of the French air forces; Emanuel Chaumier, director of civil aviation; Dieudonne Coste and Michael de Troyat.

Col. Lindbergh went up today in De Troyat's acrobatic plane at Villicoublay and gave what other pilots called a "superb exhibition," although he did not attempt all the stunts which have made De Troyat an acrobatic champion.

$18,000 WAITING FOR MAN WHO CAN'T BE FOUND

HE LEFT $75,000 TO COVER ALIMONY

But Rest Belongs to Him and He Has Not Drawn Against This Money for Five Years.

Unable to find the beneficiary of a $75,000 trust estate who has drawn no income from it for more than five years, the St. Louis Union Trust Co. has petitioned the Circuit Court for permission to invest $18,000 of the accumulated income for him.

The missing man is J. Kehlor Carr, once vice president of a flour milling company. A year before he was divorced in 1928 by Mrs. Erie S. Carr, 5070 Waterman avenue, he left St. Louis, and while he is understood to have communicated with his family, efforts to reach him have been unavailing.

The trust estate comes into the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court because it ordered, at the time of the divorce, that the estate be sequestered to insure payment of alimony to his former wife.

She had drawn $100 a month in alimony and another $100 a month for the suport of their son, James K. Carr, 12 years old, since the divorce, but income from the estate has been more than sufficient to pay that.

Carr might have the $18,000 for the asking. He might obtain the principal, with the permission of the court, by making some arrangement to secure continuance of alimony payments to his former wife.

Judge Hartmann of the Court of Domestic Relations, to whom the trust company's petition was presented, appointed Gilbert Weiss, chief probation officer of the court, to make an investigation.

Weiss' report, filed yesterday, states that Carr was last heard from in Cleveland, O., but when efforts were made to reach him there, word was received that Carr was not known at the hotel from which he had written. Weiss recommended that St. Louis Union Trust Co. be authorized to invest the $18,000 until Carr may appear to claim it.

The $75,000 estate, and 98 acres of St. Louis County real estate, represented Carr's share of the $1,000,000 estate left by his grandmother, Mrs. James B. Kehlor, who lived for many years in Vandeventer place.

At her death in 1918 she created two $75,000 trust funds, one for J. Kehlor Carr, another for his younger brother, Peyton T. Carr Jr., an insurance broker who lives on the St. Louis Country Club grounds. The trusts were to terminate when Peyton became 30 years old. He reached this age some time ago.

COLLEGE MUST PAY $56,000 TO BOY HURT IN INITIATION

Alberta U. Student Who Is Said to Have Gone Insane Wins Court Verdict.

By the Associated Press.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 28.—An award of $56,860 and costs was made by Justice W. C. Ives in Supreme Court today to C. H. A. Powlett and his son, Armand Powlett, in their damage action against the University of Alberta charging that Armand became insane as a result of initiation ceremonies at the university last year.

The judgment did not differentiate between the university, the board of directors or the senate of the university. It said merely that the plaintiff should receive the amount stated.

The initiation ceremony took the form of a mock trial of young Powlett, during which he was said in the statement of claim to have been stripped naked and dragged along a corridor, beaten, subjected to cold showers, and to have had the name of Premier R. B. Bennett written on his forehead with indelible ink because he had refused to say that a sophomore was the highest form of humanity.

Alfred C. Read Jr. Divorced.

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Marian Y. Read of Oakland, who recently won a judgment of $75,000 in an alienation of affections suit in Los Angeles against Claire Windsor, movie actress, obtained a final decree of divorce today from Alfred C. Read Jr., former broker. The decree provided that Mrs. Read should have all community property, also $50 a month alimony and $50 a month for care of her two children.

ROBBERY ARREST LEADS TO INQUIRY INTO FOUR DEATHS

OTHER ASSOCIATES 'HEART' VICTIMS

Police Learn Two Women and Two Men Succumbed Suddenly — Estates Left to Defendant.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—A theft charge against Alfred L. Cline of Glendale has started police on an investigation of the death of four of his associates, two men and two women, all supposedly of heart trouble.

Cline, an insurance man was arraigned in San Bernardino yesterday on the theft charges which were made by Martin Frame, 60 years old, of Los Angeles. Frame testified he became violently ill after drinking a cup of buttermilk which Cline gave him while the two were on an automobile trip to Imperial Valley. Later Frame said, he was robbed of $230 sewed in his clothing and a physician informed him he had been drugged.

Quantities of a hypnotic drug and also of a swift acting poison were found in the possession of Cline when he was arrested, San Bernardino County officers said.

Authorities then learned from Reno police that Mrs. Carrie May Porter died there four days after she and Cline were registered at a hotel there in October, 1931. The body was sent to San Francisco for cremation after physicians said Mrs. Porter died of a heart ailment, Reno police said.

The others acquainted or related to Cline who died supposedly of heart trouble were:

Cline's second wife, Mrs. Bessie Van Sickle Cline, who died last Sept. 26, leaving him a $33,000 estate.

Her brother-in-law, Lucas Brandt McCreery, who died in March.

The Rev. E. F. Jones, English evangelist, who died in June, 1932, in Bakersfield, Cal., while on a motor trip north with Cilne, two days after he had signed a will naming Cline as beneficiary of his $11,000 estate.

The County Chemist is now making an analysis of the bodies of Mrs. Cline and McCreery to determine whether they contain poison.

A preliminary examination of the exhumed body of Mrs. Cline resulted in an official announcement that the heart appeared to be normal. The death certificate specified "heart failure."

Mr. Creery's sister, Mrs. Helen Fisher told investigators that her brother had appeared in good health and death occurred shortly after he had partaken of a glass of buttermilk.

By the Associated Press.

The total population is given as 352,837,778, an increase of 10.6 per cent.

U. S. PUTS PRICE OF GOLD UP TO $1.25 ABOVE WORLD LEVEL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Disregarding a drop in world gold quotations, the Administration again today pushed upward its fixed price for the domestically mined metal.

While the London quotation was falling from $31.10 yesterday to $30.57 today, the price of R. F. C. purchases rose from $31.76 to $31.82. Yesterday it stood at 66 cents above the world level and today $1.25.

The only apparent recognition of the decline on the London market lay in the fact that the domestic increase was at a smaller rate than in the last several days when the London quotation was trending upward.

As compared with the first price set Wednesday, Thursday's figure was 18 cents higher and Friday's 22 cents above Thursday. The increase today was 6 cents.

The margin between the Washington and London rates has grown steadily. On Wednesday it was 17 cents, Thursday 48, yesterday 66 and today $1.25. At the same time the actual London price, in British currency, has risen and fallen. Today's figure was below that of Wednesday.

Dispatches from Denver and San Francisco reported a tremendous outburst of activity among the miners, eager to take advantage of the new price, and of huge deliveries to the mints in those cities.

Mrs. Osman made the telephone call to Washington yesterday afternoon.

SURVIVES TORTURE BY ROBBERS

Bank Custodian Saves Funds in Safe but Men Get $1500.

LAPEER, Mich., Oct. 28.—Three men who were mistaken for State banking officials robbed the closed Lapeer Savings Bank of about $1500 this afternoon, torturing Omar Potter, custodian, in a futile effort to learn a safe combination.

The bank has been closed pending reorganization, and Potter said he admitted the men when they rapped on the bank window in the belief that they were State officials whom he was expecting. Potter told police that after gaining entry the men tortured him by sticking a knife into his arms and legs in an effort to make him reveal the combination of a safe where additional funds were kept.

OHIO PROSECUTOR SHOT BY WOMAN WHO KILLS SELF

Police Break in Door at Ironton to Find John Porter Gravely Wounded, Widow Dying.

By the Associated Press.

IRONTON, O., Oct. 28.—County Prosecutor John Porter, 38 years old, was wounded seriously late today and Mrs. Nan Patterson Moreland, 30, widow, died of gunshot wounds apparently inflicted during a quarrel in Mrs. Moreland's apartment.

The two were found after police battered in the locked door of Mrs. Moreland's bedroom. Mrs. Moreland died shortly afterward. Porter is in grave condition.

Police Chief Callahan expressed the belief Mrs. Moreland shot Porter and then turned the gun on herself.

Officers said she was lying on one side of the bed and Porter on the other, a pistol at the foot of the bed. Both were partly unclothed.

As Porter was taken to the hospital in an ambulance, police said he murmured, "Nan, I don't see why you did it."

Porter, who has a wife and two children, early next month was to have prosecuted the man charged with killing Mrs. Moreland's husband, Herman, last July 25. He is serving his first term as County Prosecutor.

MARYLAND GUARDING GRAVE OF NEGRO AFTER HANGING

Communist Group Sought Body for Public Funeral and Demonstration in New York.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 28.—A State police guard tonight stood over the grave of Euel Lee, hanged Negro, who was buried today after Maryland penitentiary officials had won a legal fight for his body.

"Shoot to kill," was the order given Deputy Sheriffs who guarded the funeral. The order came from Judge Eugene O'Dunne of the Baltimore Circuit Court, who dismissed the temporary injunction against the funeral, secured by Bernard Ades, attorney for the Communistic International Labor Defense League.

Ades contended that Lee had "willed" him the body. He wanted it, he said, to take to New York for a public funeral and demonstration.

Warden Brady of the penitentiary, cited the Maryland law, which leaves the disposal of the body in the custody of prison officials, unless the hanged person's family claims it.

German Dirigible Well Out Over Atlantic on Way Home After Visit to Chicago Fair—Reports Progress by Radio.

25 PASSENGERS ABOARD FOR CRUISE

Dr. Eckener, Commander of Air Liner, Hopes to Reach Seville, Spain, Tomorrow and Friedrichshafen Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Graf Zeppelin, German dirigible, returning to Germany after a visit to the Chicago World's Fair, headed out over the Atlantic Ocean late this afternoon.

A message received by the Radio Marine Corporation at 4 p. m. gave the ship's position as about 200 miles east of Cape Henry, Va.

A message received later reported the Graf as making a speed of 70 miles an hour. The message said all was well. A message at midnight gave the position of the craft as 900 miles east of Norfolk, Va.

The Graf took off from the Goodyear Zeppelin dock at Akron, O., at 8:55 a. m. today. Its route lay across the Eastern part of the United States and over the Atlantic to Seville, Spain, and Friedrichshafen, the Zeppelin's home port in Germany. It passed over Pittsburgh, Frederick, Md.; Washington, Annapolis, Md., then, crossing the Chesapeake Bay, Lewes, Del., on its way to the sea.

The Graf made its departure from American shores in the late afternoon near Cape May, N. J.

May Run Into Rain.

Rain was considered likely over the first half of the cruise unless the Graf turned toward the Azores and thence angled to Europe.

Officials of the Hamburg-American Line in New York said that the eastward route of the Graf Zeppelin depended entirely on weather conditions.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, who brought the 776-foot airliner to the United States, hoped to reach Seville Monday and Friedrichshafen Tuesday.

Final preparations for the Zeppelin's flight included not only the replenishment of fuel and hydrogen supplies, but also a complete stocking of the larder, with everything from chickens and fruit and cookies to rye bread.

Official Passenger List.

FORD GIVES NRA FIRST REAL TEST OF ITS AUTHORITY

JOHNSON WAITS FOR OVERT ACT

Mere Failure to Sign Code Is Not Illegal — Case, if Made, Must Be on Another Point.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Government's controversy with Henry Ford over his failure to fly the Blue Eagle has now come to a head with its boycott of Ford cars and the threat of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the National Recovery Administrator, to prosecute the Ford company if it commits any direct violation of the automobile code.

NRA officials do not minimize the tenseness of the situation which has been created by the Government's latest thrust at Ford and the latter's counter-attack from the company offices at Detroit. It appears, indeed, that the NRA is faced with the first crucial test of its authority.

This is not now a court test, for, as NRA officials are well aware, Ford has been careful to violate none of the terms of the National Recovery Act.

In all that he has done to date, so far as the record shows, he is within the terms of the law as written. The sole judge between Ford and the NRA for the present is public opinion. There is reason to believe, from the Ford statement of yesterday, that in maneuvering the situation to this point he has got it where he wants it and where he will try to keep it.

Issue Much Misunderstood.

There has been a good deal of misunderstanding of the issue between Ford and the Government. Ford has not signed the automobile code, but there is nothing in the law requiring him to sign it. He is just as fully bound by the automobile code as if he had signed. This being true, he could be prosecuted for failure to abide by the terms of the code as to wages, hours of labor, collective bargaining, the furnishing of required information to the code authorities, or anything else.

Ford asserts that in respect to wages and hours of labor he is not only living up to the code for the industry, but doing more than the code demands. The Government has no evidence to refute him on this point. If it is going to "crack down" on him, as Gen. Johnson once said it would do if he remained recalcitrant, it will have to find some other ground for its action.

He could be prosecuted under Section 7A of the recovery act—the labor section—if he refused to assent to collective bargaining by his employes. But there is still no case to be made on this point. To the contrary, in the matter of the strike some weeks ago at the Ford plant at Edgewater, N. J., Senator Wagner, the chairman of the National Labor Board, ruled that Ford representatives had complied with the collective bargaining provisions.

Johnson Quotes Edsel Ford.

It is conceivable, such is Ford's commitment to the doctrine of the "open shop," that in the event of a grave labor dispute he would decline to abide by the collective bargaining mandate of Section 7A, but as yet he has not done so.

In this connection, the only point that Gen. Johnson could make against Ford in the General's press conference yesterday was that Edsel Ford had told him that the Ford company would never consent to any collective bargaining by its employes.

But, as Gen. Johnson agreed, there must be some "overt act" in denial of the rights of labor under Section 7A before Ford can be hailed into court as a breaker of this part of the law. As yet, there is no evidence of such an act on his part.

Others Haven't Supplied Data.

If Ford should refuse to furnish information required by the code, he would be liable to prosecution, but in this respect, as in the others named, he is in the clear. Certain information as to production, rates of wages, hours of work, etc., has been called for by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, under authority of the NRA, but no definite date has been fixed for the return of questionnaires sent to the industry, and Ford is only one of a large number of manufacturers who have not yet supplied the statistics.

Gen. Johnson said yesterday that he understood the deadline would be Nov. 7. The Ford statement indicated that the required statistics would be furnished.

The Government's quarrel with Ford dates back to his refusal to sign the President's re-employment agreement of July and thereby earn the right to fly the Blue Eagle. There was nothing in the Industrial Recovery Act—the act from which the NRA derives its authority—to compel him to sign. The Ford statement is correct in saying that "flying the Blue Eagle is not in the law." The Blue Eagle was created to be a symbol of voluntary co-operative effort.

Subsequently, in August, a specific code was framed for the automobile industry and promulgated by the President, effective to Dec. 31 of this year. Virtually all the makers of automobiles, except Ford, signed agreements of compliance with this code. Ford has continued to hold out against signing, but, as stated, he has not thereby violated any law. "Signing a code," he says, "is not the law." What the law provides is simply that all the units of an industry must comply with the code for that industry. Ford says he is observing the law and even, in its recovery features, exceeding it. This is his case, and it is difficult to see how the Government can combat it.

Realizing that his case is on trial before public opinion, which is the only place it can be tried unless and until he commits some overt act in violation of the law, Ford apparently is determined to keep meticulously within the terms of the Recovery Act. The reason he has not signed a compliance agreement, his attorneys in Detroit have made clear, is that he is unwilling to sign what might be construed in a court action as a waiver of constitutional rights. He wants, it is said, to remain unfettered by any contract or semblance of contract in any court proceeding that might be brought to test the constitutionality of the Recovery Act and the various measures under it.

Veterans' Administration Accepts Ford Dealer's Bid.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Veterans' Administration today sent formal notice of acceptance of a low bid for one truck to the Ford dealer whose low figure on 1000 trucks for the Civilian Conservation Corps is likely to be rejected because officials do not deem the maker of the cars a compliant with the NRA code for automobiles.

The dealer, Northwest Motor Co. of Washington, was instructed not to deliver the Veteran's Administration truck until a formal order is sent, but acceptance of the bid was understood to mean closing of the contract.

Veterans' officials could not be reached this afternoon, but the notification was thought to have been mailed before yesterday when Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator, declared Ford ineligible for Government contracts, and Presidential backing for his stand was disclosed. The President's view was that under his own order of last Aug. 10 bids could be accepted only for products made under affirmative compliance with the applicable code, and that purchasing agents should go on this until and unless the comptroller-general turned them down.

It was the comptroller, J. R. McCarl, who frequently has insisted that contracts be granted to low bidders, that the Ford agent was described as basing hopes of still getting the big C. C. C. contract.

In one other development on the Ford matter, the Lincoln limousine which day by day has waited outside the Department of Commerce to carry Johnson from meeting to meeting, was gone, exchanged for another limousine of different make. Johnson had made good his promise to trade in the Ford product.

The Government, which owned the car, was said not to have lost a cent, getting an even trade for the new car out of a local dealer.

Former Ambassador Fletcher Says He Stands Back of Ford.

By the Associated Press.

GREENCASTLE, Pa., Oct. 28. — Henry P. Fletcher, former Ambassador to Belgium, Mexico and Italy, lined up with Henry Ford today in his differences with the National Recovery Administration. He wired:

"I trust the action of your company may make it possible for the American people to find out how far Gen. Johnson and the administration may go in their effort to control or intimidate lawabiding citizens.

"Our people have shown a sincere and unselfish desire to co-operate with the recovery efforts of the administration. No Government has had such spontaneous, unbiased and unpartisan support as has been given this administration.

"Individual doubt and misgivings have been suppressed from a sense of patriotism and a wholehearted desire to help and not hinder recovery.

"But when the Government itself threatens to resort to compulsion, discrimination and boycott, it is time for self-respecting Americans to assert their inalienable right and find out if these rights still survive."

Fletcher said he thought the Supreme Court should settle the questions involved.

Americans Acquitted in Majorca

MR. AND MRS. CLINTON B. LOCKWOOD of West Springfield, Mass., who, with three other Americans, were acquitted by a court-martial board of the charge of assaulting a Palma policeman. The board intimated that the seven weeks spent in jail before being admitted to bail, was sufficient punishment, despite the fact that the prosecutor demanded they be given the full term of six years and a day.

The incident, starting about a year ago, grew into a cause celebre due to the fact that the Spanish island had become a favorite rendezvous for the smart international literary set, and due also to the high position of all involved. At one time it attracted the intercedence of Ambassador to Spain, Claude Bowers.

HEARST ASSAILS NRA AND ADVISES EDITORS EXPOSE IT

"Obviously a Handicap Instead of Help to Recovery," He Declares—Cites "Meddling" Tactics.

By the Associated Press.

SAN SIMEON, Cal., Oct. 28.—William Randolph Hearst tonight made public a letter to Howard Davis, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, in which he expressed the opinion that the NRA "obviously is a handicap and not a help to recovery."

Declaring the NRA program is "universally impracticable, and if persisted in will become universally detrimental," the publisher said newspapers "ought to tolerate it less and expose and oppose it more."

In this connection he said "the example of the Kansas City Star and the Chicago Daily News is an inspiration."

"I am, of course, only expressing a personal opinion," he said, "but I think that the publishers should give the greatest possible attention to the meddlesome activities of the NRA.

The Public's Interest.

"It is interfering in everybody's business to the detriment of the business, and will interfere in our business to our serious detriment if we do not have the conscience and the courage to prevent this interference and this injury.

"We might be willing to make sacrifices if we were sacrificing only our own interests.

"But we cannot sacrifice our own interests and our own independence without sacrificing the interests of the public, whose welfare it is the duty of the public press to consider first in all ways and at all times."

Hearst described the NRA as "simply a program of social betterment, nothing else," adding, "and industry can accept and endure this program on a large scale only after it has recovered, not before."

Causes of Gains.

He ascribed "such recovery as we have" to the natural benefits of the farm relief program, the unemployment program, the reflationary program and the financial aid of Government to banking and business. These policies would create greater recovery "if they were not to a degree negatived by the detrimental meddling of the NRA," he said.

"In view of the fact that the NRA is a menace to political rights and constitutional liberties, a danger to American ideals and institutions, a handicap to industrial recovery and a detriment to the public welfare, that the publishers of a free press ought to tolerate it less and expose and oppose it more."

not in accord with this understanding. Moreover, there is nothing in the code of fair competition which made necessary such a deviation from the understanding. In confirmation of this statement, it is noted that the letter from the United States Steel Corporation concludes with the following sentence: 'If any of our competitors file a lower price than the above we will, of course, refile to meet their price.'

"Because of the evident consultation and collusion in arriving at the new and uniform base prices, it seems clear that these are noncompetitive prices lacking the safeguard to the consumer which competition provides. Manifestly, also, the code was not intended to eliminate competition. On the contrary, it is by its own terms a 'code of fair competition.'

"In view of these circumstances and of the past history of steel-rail prices in this country and what is known about them, I am authorized by the President to say that the Federal Government is unwilling to lend money to railroad companies for the purchase of steel rails at the new base prices which have been filed, without some safeguard to the consumer and to the public interest to take the place of competition. This substitute safeguard is an examination by the Government accountants of the books and cost records of the steel companies."

"Under existing conditions and to avoid possible delay, the Government is willing to lend the necessary funds without such an examination, provided the base price, f. o. b. mill, for first quality steel rail is made not more than $35 per gross ton of 2240 pounds, with other prices adjusted accordingly.

"If the steel companies are unwilling to make this concession, then the Government will lend the necessary funds only on condition that the steel companies shall file new base prices the same as those now on file but with the added stipulation that if, after Government accountants have had full and free opportunity to examine the books and cost records of the steel companies, the President shall find that reductions in these prices are necessary to make them fair, the reduced prices which he then names shall be the base prices to the same extent and from the same date as if they had been originally filed.

"In the meantime, the Government will advance funds to the railroad companies on the basis of a price of $35 per gross ton for first quality steel rail, f. o. b. mill, with other prices related in the ratio of the base prices now on file, and with the understanding that the Government will later advance additional funds or receive refunds to accord with such other prices, not in excess of those now on file, as the President may find to be fair. In the absence of a full disclosure of the facts, it is impossible to define in advance and in the abstract what may be fair, and this must be left to the judgment of the President.

"In my letter of Oct. 3 I stated that certain railroads, contemplating important orders, make it a condition that the base price shall not exceed $35 per ton. There has been no change in this situation, so far as I am aware."

GAS-FILLED ARROWS AND CROSSBOWS FOR POLICE OF BOSTON

Suggested for Use in Pursuit of Criminals by Letter Writer.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—A letter laid before the Massachusetts Special Crime Commission today suggested that the police be equipped with a modification of the old-time crossbow, installed on the hoods of police cars, these bows to shoot arrows filled with tear gas at criminals attempting to flee in automobiles.

The writer based his argument for the device on the great penetrating power of an arrow, and said: "If such a gas-filled arrow is fired at a fleeing car, the arrow will penetrate the body of the car, wherever it hits, and after such a penetration the gas will be discharged under pressure to make all the occupants amenable to almost instant capture."

BANK CASHIER TO PRISON

Year for Robinson (Ill.) Official on Plea of Guilty.

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 28.—Austin I. Westerman, 52 years old, former cashier of the First National Bank of Robinson, Ill., today was sentenced by U. S. District Judge E. E. Lindley, to serve a year and a day in the Federal reformatory at Chillicothe, O., for embezzlement to which he had previously entered a plea of guilty.

He was given an additional sentence of two years on other counts in the indictment, but these were suspended with the order that he be placed on probation for three years after completing the year and a day sentence.

Gov. Park Must Depend on Public Opinion to Put Over Sales Tax Bill And Save Critical Relief Situation

Only if Measure Is Passed as Emergency Act Will Funds Be Available in Time for Winter Needs of 200,000.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 28.—Legislative managers of Gov. Park's revenue program for unemployment relief are plainly disturbed by the strength of the opposition which has developed to the sales tax bill as evidenced by the uncompromising attitude of Senator Casey of Kansas City.

The Senator, one of the most experienced and adroit of the legislators, has a following which must be recognized as threatening to the success of any measure he opposes, and he has left no doubt in the administration managers that he is prepared to oppose the sales tax in any form.

It has not yet appeared that the bill will be defeated, but mere passage of a sales tax will not be sufficient to afford relief when relief is imperative. To avoid months of delay in affording aid to the destitute in a situation which State Relief Director Wallace Crossley described to the Senate as one of "untoward possibilities," two-thirds of the membership in each house must adopt an emergency clause to make the tax effective as soon as the bill is signed by the Governor.

Funds to Be Gone Nov. 5.

Director Crossley has informed the Senate that all public relief funds at the command of the State Director will have been exhausted by Nov. 5, and that failure of the State to provide money will result in enforcement of a ruling that no additional Federal relief money will be allotted to Missouri until the State has provided its share.

This will mean, the director said, that more than 55,000 families, or approximately 200,000 persons now on the relief rolls and dependent entirely on public support, will be cut off without further aid.

It is by no means a certainty that the tax bill can be passed in the Senate. At the present time it appears reasonably certain that even if it is passed it will not receive the necessary two-thirds vote to make it immediately effective. Whether this situation can be overcome by vigorous pressure from Gov. Park will be known only when the Governor has exerted that pressure and its potency appears.

Under the Missouri Constitution a bill passed does not become a law until 90 days after the adjournment of the Legislature unless there is added an emergency clause, adopted by two-thirds of each House.

"Peace, Health and Safety."

Within that 90 days interests opposed to the legislation may circulate referendum petition, which, if signed by 5 per cent of the voters in each of nine Congressional districts, and filed with the Secretary of State, automatically suspend the operation of the law until the next general election, when it is submitted to a vote.

The only bills which are not subject to referendum are appropriation measures and those necessary for the "peace, health and safety" of the residents of the State. The Legislature may insert in a bill the "peace, health and safety" clause by a majority vote, but the Supreme Court has held that such a legislative declaration is not conclusive and that it is a question of fact to be decided by the courts whether particular legislation comes within that classification.

Information has been circulated in Jefferson City that opponents of the sales tax, specifically retail business interests, are prepared to invoke the referendum if the bill is passed. The test probably would come on an offering of petitions for filing, their rejection by the Secretary of State, and a mandamus proceeding in the Supreme Court to compel their acceptance.

Such a proceeding would be acted upon by the Court promptly and probably a decision would not long be delayed, but it would not come up until several months had passed, long after the relief emergency had become acute.

What Delay Means.

It is not likely the special session of the Legislature will adjourn before Dec. 20. If that should be the adjournment date, a bill which did not contain an emergency clause would not be in effect until March 20. The State Relief Director has said an acute condition will develop Nov. 5, more than four winter months in advance of the date when the collection of the tax would begin if there were no delay.

Though there are many other tax bills before the Legislature, chief among them being a tax on intoxicating liquor, there is no general belief at the Capitol that that tax could be made high enough to provide the $5,000,000 which Director Crossley has said the State must produce for the next 12 months. It would afford some aid, but far from enough to meet the imperative demands.

Just how effective pressure from the Governor will be is problematical. The usual executive procedure, which, however, Governor Park did not follow in the regular session of the Legislature, the trading of jobs to legislators for votes on bills, is out. The Governor has dispensed virtually all patronage. Another frequently adopted policy of bluffing the individual legislators by threats of vetos of bills in which they are interested also is out. Few have bills in this special session.

About the only means open to the Governor is to impress upon the voters of the State the dire consequences which will follow failure to enact the bill into law, and thus create a pressure of public opinion.

Up to this time many of the legislators have either taken a position in opposition to the tax bill or have hesitated to support it in the belief that it is unpopular with their constituents.

Some, possibly many, may change their views when heads of local relief agencies appear before the committees from a large number of the counties and outline the exact needs for money, the consequences which may follow a failure to provide it, and the fact that a one per cent sales tax on $1000 of retail purchases, estimated as a liberal estimate of the average family expenditure in a year, would amount to only $10.

PARK SAYS SALES TAX IS ONLY WAY TO PAY RELIEF

In Speech He Threatens to Expose Legislators Who Are Lined Up by Utility Lobbyists.

By the Associated Press.

TUSCUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 28.—Gov. Guy B. Park went to bat here today for his State relief proposals, including the sales tax.

The Governor voiced threats to expose any members of the Legislature should they succumb to the influence of the utility lobbyists during enactment of a relief program.

He also advised merchant associations against opposing the raising of additional revenue.

"You merchants and others who might be inclined to oppose a sales tax had better decide whether you are opposed to paying a penny on the dollar or permitting women and children to starve," the Governor said in an address at the formal dedication of a $150,000 highway bridge over the Osage River.

"In many of the counties the unemployed are sleeping in hay stacks and on the bare ground and unless we find a way to raise additional money to match Federal funds they will starve."

Declaring that "no Missourian would starve while I am Governor," he defended the sales tax proposal as offering "a chance for those who have enough money to buy anything to contribute one penny from every dollar to provide food for the starving."

"Any merchant who for no good reason will refuse to do his bit to charity and serve as a collecting agency for the sales tax that we may save our unfortunates from starving is taking a very narrow view," the Governor insisted. "Surely his patriotism should not end with the posting of a Blue Eagle in his shop window."

Farmers Oppose Sales Tax.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., Oct. 28.—Audrain County farmers, in mass meeting here today, passed resolutions to petition Gov. Park and the Legislature not to abolish the real estate tax, and to oppose enactment of a selective sales tax until "every other avenue of taxable wealth is exhausted." The farmers met to act on plans to aid land owners in halting foreclosures and meeting pressing farm debts, and elected a committee to bring debtors and creditors together.

DICKMANN DROPS TWO OVER CITY JOB EXAMINATION

Accepts Patrick O'Neill's Resignation From Efficiency Board; Won't Rename Ernest Moser.

ACTION FOLLOWS A LONG INQUIRY

O'Neill Tried to Have Test Approved Despite Evidence of Irregularity, Statement Says.

Two of the three members of the Efficiency Board, in charge of the city's civil service, have been dropped by Mayor Dickmann, as a result of a long investigation of an examination of applicants for building inspectors' jobs.

The Mayor announced yesterday he had accepted the resignation of Patrick O'Neill, Democrat, from the board, and had notified Ernest Moser, Republican, he would not be reappointed, his term having expired Sept. 15. Both O'Neill and Moser supported Dickmann in the mayoralty campaign last spring and Moser is a personal friend of Dickmann.

This leaves Chairman Maurice J. Cassidy, Democrat and labor leader, as the only member of the board. He co-operated in the investigation. Dickmann has several persons under consideration to fill the vacancies and may announce appointments shortly. He said yesterday he might reorganize the board. George B. Tracy, secretary and chief examiner of the board, but not a member, reported the findings of the building inspectors' examination which led to the inquiry. The board must have one minority party member. The chairman, devoting full time, is paid $6000 a year, and the other members, giving part time, $2000 a year each.

Says O'Neill Favored Approval.

There were 80 applicants for appointment as building inspectors who took the examination on Aug. 21, including 13 men who had been given temporary places in the change of administration last spring. Sixteen of the applicants, including eight of the temporary appointees, submitted correct and virtually identical answers.

O'Neill made efforts, Dickmann declared yesterday, "to have the examination approved after he had abundant evidence before him that some of the applicants had been furnished copies of the questions in advance of the examination." A motion was offered in the Efficiency Board by O'Neill to ratify the examination, after attention had been called to the similarity of answers.

This motion, according to City Counselor Hay, who directed the inquiry for the Mayor, failed for lack of a second. O'Neill said yesterday he thought Moser had seconded the motion and that it was passed unanimously. He explained he had offered it in the belief the test was as fair as any that had been held. Later, O'Neill continued, he heard that "10 or 15 applicants" had three mimeographed copies of the questions at a meeting the day before the examination. O'Neill asserted it was unfair of Mayor Dickmann to connect his name with the matter, as he had been out of the city when the examination was conducted and knew nothing about it.

Moser, the Mayor declared, "failed properly to co-operate with the City Counselor's office in the effort to investigate and ascertain the facts of the whole matter." Dickmann charged that Moser ignored a request to appear for questioning.

Mayor Ousted Republican.

Shortly after Dickmann took office last April he appointed an entirely new Efficiency Board, with the assertion: "The board is going into action again to carry out its functions under the Charter." Moser was given the unexpired term of William Tanner, Republican, who was discharged by Dickmann after refusing to resign.

O'Neill is president-treasurer of the North End Drayage Co., which handles delivery of an afternoon newspaper, and resides at 8626 Church road. A former Democratic city committeeman, he was a leader in a dominant First Ward group which supported Dickmann for Mayor, the party being split into factions in the ward. Moser is president-treasurer of the Moser Fur Co. He was a member of Dickmann's campaign Finance Committee.

In a statement handed to the press, Mayor Dickmann related he had ordered an exhaustive inquiry by Counselor Hay on learning of apparent irregularities in the ex-

DICKMANN DROPS TWO OVER CITY JOB EXAMINATION

Accepts Patrick O'Neill's Resignation From Efficiency Board; Won't Rename Ernest Moser.

Officers and employes of the board who participated in handling the questions and answers and in conducting the examination were questioned. Persons having knowledge of the facts were involved in the matter "in one way or another," the Mayor continued, making it "difficult to secure direct evidence of any irregularities."

There was, Dickmann continued, "abundant evidence" to support Counselor Hay's conclusion "that advance knowledge of the questions came into possession of certain of the applicants and was used by them in the examination, and that the examination was, therefore, tainted with fraud and was properly voided."

"Since receiving the Counselor's report," the Mayor continued, "I have myself made further investigation and have proceeded with what I conceive to be proper caution to insure that no injustice would be inflicted upon anyone or upon the city.

"While the evidence is not sufficient for us to fix the personal responsibility for giving out the information, which act constituted a violation of the Charter, I do not deem it necessary that the evidence should go that far in order to warrant a disapproval of the conduct of the examination.

Information Given Out.

"The evidence here shows that somebody did give out the information and that as a result thereof an unfair examination was conducted; that after this was discovered one member of the board endeavored to have the examination approved and another member manifested an apparent indifference to the whole matter by failing to co-operate in an investigation in which he should have been vitally interested. This does not show the conception of official duty and the standard of public service which I insist upon. The efficiency system, as its very name implies, demands an administration on a high plane of efficiency and integrity. That sort of administration I shall insist upon, not only in that department, but in every other department of the city government.

"In view of all these matters, I have accepted Mr. O'Neill's resignation, which was handed me on last Thursday after a review of the whole matter in my office in the presence of the Efficiency Board and representatives of the Counselor's office; and I have notified Mr. Moser that he will not be reappointed.

"Following the second examination, which was held after the first was thrown out, a list of 27 names was certiifed to the Building Commissioner and from this list 13 men were selected for appointment as building inspectors. None of the 13 appointed was shown by the investigation to have been involved in any irregularity attending the first examination."

The Mayor said there was no proof of corruption. The second examination, with different questions, was given the same 80 applicants on Aug. 28. Eight of the temporary inspectors failed to pass it.

land, and Charles Dolfuss of Paris, were injured in a Chicago auto crash yesterday.

Grandmother, 74, Goes on Graf and Doesn't Tell Family.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—A 74-year-old Chicago grandmother is aboard the Graf Zeppelin as it flies over the Atlantic toward Germany. Her family first learned of it when they read the newspapers.

Mrs. Peter Holland was thought by relatives to be visiting friends in Ohio, a daughter disclosed. Then today the family saw her name in the Graf's passenger list and realized she had slipped one over on them.

Mrs. C. W. Young, who drove her mother to the station Thursday, recalled she had spent five minutes in the air a few years ago.

"And," Mrs. Holland said at the time, "I wish I could have stayed up and gone around the world."

$400,000 BOND ISSUE IN OMAHA REPORTED FORGED

Officials Locate $25,000 in Bogus Securities in City—Interest Due on November 1.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 28.—City officials tonight expressed belief that an entire issue of Omaha street improvement bonds, totaling $400,000, had been counterfeited.

The full extent of the forgery will not become known until Nov. 1 when the interest coupons are due to be presented for payment, city heads stated.

City Comptroller Stenicka said the city will refuse to pay on the forged coupons. The original bonds were issued in 1925.

The forgery, city officials said, came to light when a representative of a South Dakota financial house who had sold bonds to a Chicago bond concern, told the Chicago firm the bonds were forgeries.

The South Dakota man returned the money he had been paid and asked that the bonds be called in. Today it was learned that $25,000 worth of the bogus bonds were in Omaha. These were being called in.

Officials said the coupons on the forged bonds were excellent copies of the originals, but that the signatures of Stenicka, City Clerk James P. Hoctor, the late Mayor James Dahlman and former Secretary of State Marsh on the bonds themselves, are crude and easily discernible as forgeries to those familiar with the genuine signatures.

At least $22,000 worth of the bogus bonds appeared on the Chicago market, and another block in New York, officials said.

MAPLEWOOD FIRE DEPARTMENT DOG WENT TO 2000 FIRES

Seeking New Mascot to Replace Bum Who Died of Pampering.

The Maplewood Fire Department is seeking an Airedale puppy with a fondness for going to fires and not too great an appetite for candy, to replace "bum," department mascot, who died a month ago.

Bum's delight in riding the hose-cart to fires probably will be unequaled by any successor. In the 11 years since he wandered into the engine house and gave every indication of wishing to be adopted, Bum attended some 2000 fires. When the telephone rang, he ran immediately to the hose cart, ready to jump on if firemen came sliding down the pole from upstairs. If none came, he went back and lay down.

Eating candy and ice cream was his downfall, according to a veterinarian, who said Bum died of a stomach tumor probably brought on by his extraordinary appetite. Bum made his only trips away from the engine house to go to a corner drug store where children fed him.

Kampman said he was crossing the lot when the Negro accosted him, and he picked up a piece of lumber and struck the Negro, whose skull was fractured.

The Negro was unarmed.

DECLARES THE PRESS WISHES ONLY TO BE ASSURED OF RIGHTS

the press have done so in order to pretend to a victory over an adversary who does not exist.

"The first two of these statements I welcome with a whole heart. The third I say politely and firmly is an error.

"I will guarantee on the part of the newspapers of America that if the charter of their right to freely publish in the interest of the people is fully set forth in the newspaper code, they will hail the codifier as a patriot."

In decrying the "commercial influences" on journalism, Congressman Beck declared "undoubtedly a newspaper must be primarily a business enterprise, but if it has no higher conception of its function in the state than to make profits, then indeed its usefulness can be little. It is just as bad for a newspaper to be influenced in the expression of its opinion by its large advertisers as by an arbitrary Government."

In fact, he added, "the excuse is far less justifiable where the motive for suppressing truth is a sordid one than in the case where the Government, to preserve its authority, insists that it should be free from criticism. For the latter something can be said in critical times. For the former nothing can be said."

Newspapers, Beck asserted, were once great organs of opinion because they voiced the sentiments of some courageous tribune of the people, who "without regard to the effects of the circulation of his paper, challenged the wrong and vindicated the right.

Typographical Union Head Assails Newspapers on Child Labor.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, OCT. 28.—Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union, today in an address before the city club criticized newspaper publishers for the code they presented in Washington and what he termed their fight to retain child labor as newsboys.

In reporting his speech, the Cleveland Plain Dealer said; "Howard complained his fight on newsboys had not been widely reported, although the Associated Press has carried a comprehensive story."

The paper quoted Howard as saying, "These publishers stand as the one class which appeared before the National Recovery Administration and refused flatly to do away with child labor as all other industries have done.

"I have received many copies of the comprehensive story the Associated Press sent out regarding my fight on this form of child labor, but I regret to say I know of only a few newspapers which did not ignore it altogether."

The car containing the football fans was traveling down a grade. As it made a turn, it hit the other car, in which only a few persons were riding.

GERMAN SPY SCARE AGAIN HITS FRANCE

Woman Cafe Owner and Confederates Arrested, Are Said to Have Confessed.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Somewhere in Germany Joseph Drosd, a former cafe owner in France, is waiting to hear from his wife, who is in jail in France charged with being a German spy.

It is only by the grace of a young French mounted chasseur, Rene Plestan, that Sibela Drosd, better known as "La Belle Sophie" to her cafe patrons and the French Intelligence Service, is in jail. She is the 1933 counterpart of the World War's Mata Hari—perhaps even more dangerous and daring.

This latest spy scare, coming at a time when all Europe is aroused over the German withdrawal from the disarmament conference and the League of Nations, is by no means of minor importance. For bound up in it is the secret of the strength of the French line of fortifications along the German frontier. It is known as the "Maginot Line," for it was built during the administration of War Minister Henri Maginot.

Going back five years, the French Intelligence Service learned that Joseph Drosd, a German from "the Corridor," had arrived mysteriously in Saint-Avold in the Moselle district and opened a cafe. He and his wife, "La Belle Sophie," tended bar. They attracted a large clientele.

If there was anything more ordinary than the little cafe, it was the stout, Teutonic Sophie. The "Cafe des Sports" was an obscure rendezvous of soldiers and workmen, in a little town close to the Alsatian border.

Near French Barracks.

It was like a thousand other cafes—with this interesting difference, it was conveniently situated near certain French barracks and military training camps. Cavalry officers of the 18th Regiment and lorryfuls of privates patronized the place nightly. But it took the French Secret Service five years to get the connection.

Among the patrons was Alphonse Choppe, a Frenchman by birth, who lived in the nearby village of Teterchen. His wife began to wonder how Alphonse had obtained money enough to buy a high-powered automobile, and why he made secret trips to Metz and sometimes to Strasbourg, over the frontier. He was only a foreman in a fortifications factory.

These mysterious motor rides were mentioned when certain secret plans were found missing from the factory. Choppe explained them as pleasure excursions, but no one knew of his connection with the barkeeps of the Cafe des Sports in Saint-Avold, where Choppe, Drosd and "La Belle Sophie" frequently chatted in low tones at an obscure table.

Finally in 1932 the French intelligence service caught up with Drosd. He was expelled from France on charges of operating an immoral establishment. He departed without a murmur, but La Belle Sophie remained.

It is now known that Drosd frequently slipped back to France from Saarbrucken to hold midnight conferences with "La Belle Sophie." Recently, these conversations concerned Choppe and the fortifications of the Maginot line at Coume. They also concerned a cavalryman who was ready to deliver up a French machine-gun of the late 1924 model.

Plestan Makes Confession.

Both the Frenchmen were well paid, but Plestan had failed to consider his conscience. Choppe had realized about 25,000 francs for disclosing the plans of the Coume Fortress at Saarbrucken, and "La Belle Sophie" filled him with more ambitious hopes.

When the army headquarters learned that a machine gun was missing from the barracks near Saint-Avold, they quizzed Choppe and found that he had befriended Chasseur Plestan. They quizzed Plestan, and he broke down, admitting he had turned over to "La Belle Sophie" the gun in question.

Then came the exciting denouncement of the five years of espionage. Quickly, orders went out to the French frontier posts to keep an eye peeled for the mistress of the Saint-Avoid beer store. A wideawake poilu picked her up on the road to Metz, speeding toward Strasbourg by automobile.

In the pockets of the doors of the car were the incriminating plans of the Coume fortifications! Wrapped in ordinary butcher store paper on the floor of the car were the dismantled parts of the French machine gun! Back into France went Sophie! Plestan, Choppe and Sophie ultimately confessed!

Drosd will wait a long time before he hears from Sophie.

9000 'DRAKE ESTATE' DUPES IN AMERICA

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Oct. 28.—About 9000 persons in the United States, mostly in the Middle West, contributed to the fund for the settlement of the mythical Sir Francis Drake estate, according to the testimony of Amos Hartsock of Laurens, Ia., in Federal Court today.

Oscar Hartzell is on trial charged with using the mails to defraud and Hartsock, according to the Government, was Hartzell's chief lieutenant in the United States.

Hartsock said he had collected about $55,000 for the fund and that most of this had been cabled to London, where Hartzell then made his headquarters. Hartsock identified 129 receipts for money cabled to Hartzell, along with a large number of registered letters sent to him at Laurens, Ia., by Hartzell.

So great was Hartsock's reluctance that Judge Scott was compelled to warn him to give more frank and direct answers to the Government's attorneys.

The Government was reading into the record the contents of letters and cablegrams received by Hartsock from Hartzell when court adjourned until Monday.

RULES FOR FAIR TRADE PRACTICES DRAWN BY NRA

Six Basic Principles, to Be Adopted by All Businesses, Are Set Forth After Wide Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The National Recovery Administration today proposed a way for all trades to agree on the elimination of unfair competitive practices.

The code proposals to govern competition involved six basic principles worked out by a joint committee of the recovery unit and the Department of Commerce following a survey of the 1000 proffered codes; of resolutions adopted by trade associations; of rules approved by the Federal Trade Commission over 15 years, and of agreements for fair advertising and selling worked out by newspapers and better business bureaus.

The six practices singled out for elimination were: Inaccuracy in advertising and selling; attacks on competitors; price discrimmination; commercial bribery; breach of contract or interference with those of others; coercion by blacklists and other devices.

Simultaneously, to get into operation Monday morning the retail code, its biggest single one, NRA issued a series of interpretations, reduced to simplest terms so that every storekeeper might get the requirements of the compact straight without delay.

Summary of Retail Code.

The interpretations of the retail code were:

The code must be observed by all stores which do not engage "primarily" in selling foor, milk and tobacco, or those coming under separate codes: filling stations, automobile agencies, lumber and material yards, and sellers of oil burners, ice, coal, jewelry and sewing machines.

It does not apply to well segregated divisions of department stores such as restaurants, lunch fountains, and barber shops.

Starting Monday the "loss leader" is dead. That is, no merchant shall sell any article, except those specifically exempt, at less than it cost him or at which he could buy it today, whichever is lower.

Once the code authority sets an allowance for labor costs to be charged above cost of the goods to the merchant—probably early next week—this "markup," about 10 per cent, must be charged on all articles. As the bulk of articles are sold at or near a profit level which is still higher than this, it should not affect price marking generally.

Number of Employes.

No employer in a town of 2500 or less may legally make an "unwarranted reduction" in the number of his employes to come within the exemption from all code terms given to those with five or fewer workers in the small towns. Part time workers must be counted.

The exemption shall not apply in towns of 2500 or less whose boundaries touch the line of a bigger community, or to those within the metropolitan area of cities of 100,000 or more as defined by the last census.

Complaints on any subject by merchants are to be made to the nearest district office of the Department of Commerce pending creation by the trade itself of local committees, authorized by the code to help administer and enforce the pact.

Two important qualifications were made to these rules.

A retailer may cut below his own invoice cost to meet a competitor's price based on a lower invoice, but to avoid being classed as a violator must report his action immediately to the regional manager until the local committee is created. He cannot cut to meet bona fide clearance sales and disposal of damaged goods, etc., where a merchant is free of minimum price restrictions.

Even in towns of 2500, a merchant who will not suffer exceptional hardship is expected to "conform to the fullest extent possible with the requirements which could be otherwise obligatory."

Fair Practice Provisions.

The special committee on the fair practice provisions laid no claim to being able to cover needs of all industries under the six points enumerated, pointing out that a supplementary group of regulations could be developed in codes to regulate subjects such as return goods, piracy of design, hidden demonstrators, trading stamps, schemes of chance and others. On the six general points, a summary of its report said:

"Inaccuracy: Under this heading are the restrictions against inaccurate advertising and other misrepresentations of commodities, credit terms, values, policies and services. Also advertising and selling methods which tend to deceive or mislead the customer, usually referred to as "bait"; and misbranding. The report points out that the committee recognized that the test of fallibility can be more satisfactorily administered with the scientific approach to accuracy than by the moral appeal to truth with its implied converse. All persons are liable to unintentional error and are appreciative for having the mistake brought to their attention for correction, but no one wants to be accused either justly or otherwise of dishonesty. These rules eliminate from business discipline any moral element and place the adherence to the principle of fair-practice on a basis of factual proof.

"Attacking competitors: This heading embraces the practices aimed against competitors and their business such as inaccurate reference thereto, claims of generally underselling all competitors, unjustified threats of legal proceedings and most important of all selling below cost, which has recently been referred to as 'cut-throat competition.'

"Price discrimination: Secret payments or allowances of any kind fall within this class, also any form of discriminatory rebate and consignment except on a bona fide order or in a form that is accountable.

"Commercial bribery: Than which there is no greater evil, as it results in the betrayal of a trust, is covered by prohibiting the influencing or rewarding the action of an employe or agent without the knowledge of the employer or the principal, and the rendering of an inaccurate bill.

"Breach of contract: It is considered in this bracket that the interference with another's contracts or the repudiation of one's own are equally reprehensible.

"Coercion: Under this caption are the forced purchase of one article by the purchase of another and the discrimination known as a black list."

The report concluded:

"American employers' promised reward from NRA for the hours-wages benefits recently given their employes is the immediate protection against the unfair competition of recalcitrants. Because of the complex overlapping of industries protection against this 'cut-throat' minority is practically impossible without the adoption of uniform basic fair-practice rules, that will enable business to be effectively and economically policed, and insure that the consumers will receive the benefits of the new deal to which they are justly entitled."

ON WAY WEST

Lucrezia Bori, famous Metropolitan Opera star, passed thru St. Louis yesterday. She left for Denver over the Wabash.

"I always travel by train and prefer the Wabash whenever it is possible to use that splendid railroad," was her reply to the question, Do you drive your own car?

Madame Bori developed a remarkable voice at the age of six and began her American career as the youngest lyric soprano ever heard in opera in this country.

REGIONAL LABOR BOARD READY TO BEGIN WORK

Headquarters Chosen — First Meeting to Be Held Early This Week.

The St. Louis Regional Labor Board will start operation this week, former Circuit Judge Jesse McDonald, chairman, said yesterday in discussing methods by which the board would proceed to compose differences between labor and industry.

Headquarters will be established in Room 2, Suite 407, of the Federal Building, Eighth and Olive streets, and a meeting of the board of 11 members will be held not later than Wednesday, McDonald said.

He also announced that Frank C. Reilly, former assistant general manager of the Inland Waterways Corporation, had been named by United States Senator Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, as secretary of the St. Louis board at a salary of $3600 a year.

The St. Louis NRA Mediation Board, appointed by Mayor Dickmann, which has been successful in settling several strikes, will be disbanded, according to McDonald, who also served as its chairman. The regional board was appointed by Senator Wagner, Oct. 19.

McDonald urged that disputes be submitted to the regional board before they become so violent that strikes result. Complaints that involve a possible labor controversy affecting only a few persons will be submitted to the NRA compliance board, he said.

On receiving a complaint, the secretary will ask that a full and concise statement of all essential facts be prepared with supporting evidence. A copy will be submitted to the party complained of with the request that he answer in like form as soon as possible. When the points involved are established, the secretary, with the aid of the chairman, will attempt to bring about a settlement.

If this fails, the parties to the dispute will be notified to appear before the entire board for a hearing, and if no agreement is reached the case will be referred to the National Labor Board at Washington for hearing.

"The board is one primarily of mediation and conciliation," McDonald said. "It can act as arbitrator if all the differences are jointly submitted by the disputants for the board's determination. But otherwise, it will act as a board of mediation, and, failing as a conciliator, the dispute will be sent to Washington."

Those on Motor Craft Near Fort McHenry Are Mostly Crews Returning From North.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 28.—The motor boat Mabel, with more than 25 passengers aboard, on the way from Fort Fitzgerald to Fort McMurray, is frozen in on the Athabasca River somewhere north of Fort McMurray, according to word reaching here today. The passengers of the vessel are mainly boat crews returning from the north.

Two loaded barges, one with ore from Great Bear Lake, and the other with lumber, also are frozen in. Nothing can be done until ice conditions permit safe traveling, when airplanes may be sent to salvage freight and bring the stranded passengers to McMurray.

ANOTHER WOMAN SUES SALLY EILERS' HUSBAND

Actress Seeks $100,000 From Harry Joe Brown, Charging Breach of Promise.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 28.—Charging that Harry Joe Brown, movie director and producer, broke his promise to marry her when he wed Sally Eilers, screen star, Marjorie Gay, actress, has filed suit asking for $100,000 from Brown.

Filed under Miss Gay's real name [illegible] Marjor Whiteis, the suit related that she had been engaged to Brown since 1929.

Brown and Miss Eilers were married at Yuma, Ariz., last Sept. 23, after a surprise airplane elopement. Miss Gay's complaint said that she was on location for one of Brown's films when his manager called to inform her of the director's marriage to Miss Eilers.

Brown said he had not been served papers in the suit, but denied the allegations as they were related to him.

"The charges are absurd," he said, "and there is absolutely no truth in them. It is as much a surprise to me as it will be to all my friends."

Ickes Says Jobs Are Not Only Public Works Factor

Employment Wouldn't Justify Putting Up Pyramid, He Declares, Pointing to Maintenance Costs.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Public Works Administrator, told a delegation today he was making every effort to establish "a sane and national policy" in public building, and took occasion to criticise overlavishness in such projects.

He said "We are perfectly willing to build any building that is economically justified."

To the contention of Representative Crowe (Dem.), Indiana, leader of the delegation, that unemployment would be diminished and men removed from relief rolls by instituting the building program on a large scale, Ickes said "That doesn't justify us in building a pyramid." He directed attention to the cost of maintenance which would follow.

Ickes indicated he would confer with President Roosevelt on the program early next week and hoped a definite, new policy would be established. He had just received a preliminary report from a committee reviewing projects already listed.

The Secretary said he thought many of the proposed public buildings could be constructed for a third of the present estimated cost.

The hearing was the result of a program started nearly two weeks ago by Representative Crowe, who sent letters to members of Congress, Governors, Mayors and heads of industry, urging them to write to Ickes and Lewis W. Douglas, Director of the Budget, to hasten building.

In the delegation were Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee; Representatives Dies (Dem.), Texas; Greenwood (Dem.), Indiana; Jenckes (Dem.), Indiana; Marshall F. Garrett of the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters; Daniel Tracey, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; William McGinn, vice-president of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers; F. A. Fitzgerald, secretary of the International Union of Operating Engineers; John Garvey of the International Association of Operating Plasterers and Cement Finishers; William Gallager of the Brotherhood of Planners and Decorators; Michael Mitchell of the Journeymen Stone Cutters' Association of North America; E. J. Harding, managing director of the Association of General Contractors; John Alpine, representative of the National Automatic Sprinkler Industry Council, and A. B. Trowbridge of the American Institute of Architects.

HOUSTON, MO., VOTES BONDS FOR CITY WATER SYSTEM

Federal Funds to Be Sought to Aid in Paying for Improvement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Mo., Oct. 28.—In the largest vote ever cast in the town, Houston voted a $47,000 bond issue in a special election yesterday for a water works system.

The vote was 326 for to 41 against. The city will apply for Federal funds to aid in the work and the large vote is attributed much to the fact that labor will be furnished the unemployed.

100 MINIATURES TO BE SHOWN AT MUSEUM

Collection Offered to St. Louis by Widow of Former Resident, Frank Spiekerman.

Miniatures collected by the late Frank Spiekerman, former St. Louisan, who died last year at Greenwich, Conn., have been presented to City Art Museum in Forest Park and will be shown here for the first time at an evening reception Nov. 9.

There are about 100 miniatures, most of them water colors on ivory, representing chiefly work of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. The painters include some of the masters of that art, and the collection is regarded by the museum's officials as an important acquisition.

Spiekerman's widow, who offered the miniatures to the museum in accordance with a wish expressed by her husband, is coming to St. Louis for the opening of the exhibition. Spiekerman was a native of St. Louis but had not lived here for many years.

The museum will be open on that night from 7:30 until 10 o'clock. There will be a promenade concert by members of St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

In addition to the minatures, the museum is directing attention to the collection of old masters and decorative art objects lent by Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust about a year ago, which will be returned to the Faust home after the first week of November, and to an exposition of Indian tribal arts which will be placed on view next Saturday.

The Indian art work, about 600 items from 21 tribes, will be installed in the large gallery west of Sculpture Hall, now occupied by the exhibition of modern American art which is to be taken down Tuesday.

Assembled from private collections by a group headed by John Sloan, the painter, and Oliver La Farge, novelist, the Indian art work includes pottery, weaving, musical instruments, ceremonial masks and many other objects. While principally of contemporary origin, the exhibition contains some examples of early work.

BANK LOSES $63,938 JUDGMENT ON APPEAL

Supreme Court Holds Carleton Co. Not Responsible for Affiliate's Debts.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 28.—A judgment of $63,938 obtained by the National City Bank of St. Louis against the Carleton Dry Goods Co. in the St. Louis Circuit Court, on a loan which the defunct Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co., affiliated with the Carleton Co., obtained on an alleged fraudulent financial statement, was reversed today by Division No. 2 of the Missouri Supreme Court.

The court, in holding the bank's petition did not state a cause of action, ruled the fact the two companies had been under the same control did not render the Carleton Co. liable for the transactions and acts of the Ferguson-McKinney Co.

The bank sought to recover from the Carleton Co., charging both companies were dominated by the late Murray Carleton, and that a debt of $1,251,000 which the Ferguson-McKinney Co. owed the Carleton Dry Goods Co. was fraudulently omitted from a financial statement which enabled the Ferguson-McKinney Co. to obtain bank loans.

It was charged the Carleton Co. knew the Ferguson-McKinney Co. was "hopelessly insolvent" at the time the latter obtained the loan.

The suit involved a balance on a loan of $100,000 made by the National City Bank to the Ferguson-McKinney Co. in July, 1925. Ferguson-McKinney obtained other bank loans at the same time aggregating about $3,000,000.

Supreme Court Commissioner Henry J. Westhues, who wrote the opinion, held the fact that Murray Carleton was a stockholder, director and manager of both companies, did not of itself render the Carleton Co. liable for any acts of Carleton while he was transacting business for the Ferguson-McKinney firm.

He said the bank's petition "not only fails to state that Carleton was acting within the scope of his master's (Carleton Company) business, but it affirmatively appears from the petition that Carleton was acting in a business transaction for the Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co. at the time the fraud was committed, and not for the Carleton Co.

All of the judges of Division No. 2 concurred in the decision.

The National City Bank was merged in 1930 with the Franklin-American Trust Co., since taken over by the First National Bank.

BIDS THURSDAY ON WRECKING REMAINING PLAZA BUILDINGS

These Are Municipal Lodging House and Adjoining Commercial Structure.

Bids will be received by Deputy Comptroller Cunningham at 10 a. m. Thursday for wrecking the last two old buildings remaining on the site of Memorial Plaza. These are the old Municipal Lodging House northeast corner of Fourteenth and Pine streets, and the adjoining commercial structure at 1317-19 Pine.

The Bureau of Homeless Men will care for those needing lodging at Ozanam Shelter, 3215 Montgomery street, and in a building at Twenty-second and Chestnut streets.

The city plans to embellish Memorial Plaza next spring. There are two automobile parking lots and filling stations on the site, which will be required to move. The grade of Pine street is to be raised between Twelfth boulevard and Fourteenth street. Also Thirteenth street will be raised south from Olive street.

Cunningham also will take bids for wrecking a small building at 700 Davis street, in connection with the Alabama avenue widening. The city usually gets structures wrecked without cost or even collects a small sum, for the salvage.

RGE ACOUNT DURING THIS ANNUAL FALL EVENT

BEQUEST CONDITIONED ON WIDOWHOOD UPHELD

Will of Mrs. Scully Provides Heir Must Lose Husband by Divorce or Death.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 28.—A clause in the will of Mrs. Grace Letson Scully of St. Louis, bequeathing part of her property to a granddaughter, if and when the latter became a widow, either through death of her husband or by divorce, was sustained today by Division No. 2 of the Missouri Supreme Court, which affirmed a St. Louis Circuit Court ruling.

The granddaughter, Mrs. Adah Letson Hood, attacked this clause as invalid on the ground it was designed to induce Mrs. Hood to obtain a divorce and therefore was against public policy.

A residence at 3451 Abner place, St. Louis, was placed in the hands of a trustee by the will, to be held in trust for Mrs. Hood. The property was to be conveyed to her if she became a widow, in the manner outlined in the will.

Supreme Court Commissioner Henry J. Westhues stated in the opinion that the law was well settled that a bequest made on condition that the beneficiary obtain a divorce is void as against public policy.

In this case, he said, the language of the will did not impose a condition that Mrs. Hood get a divorce from her husband, Charles Hood, but only provided that she would receive the bequest if she became a widow, through death or divorce.

He construed the clause to mean that Mrs. Scully intended to provide for Mrs. Hood only in the event she became a widow and was not intended to bring about a separation. All of the Judges of the division concurred.

SENTENCE UPHELD FOR ROBBERY OF OSCAR JOHNSON

Felix F. McDonald, Who Tried to Abduct Wealthy Man, Must Serve 10-Year Term.

Felix F. McDonald, whose sentence of 10 years in prison for the robbery of Oscar Johnson in an attempted kidnaping was affirmed yesterday by the Supreme Court of Missouri, is held in jail at Clayton awaiting removal to the penitentiary at Jefferson City.

He was arrested Friday afternoon in a restaurant at 9404 St. Charles road, not far from his home in Overland, on a telegraphic order from the Marshal of the Supreme Court, sent out in advance of publication of the Court's opinion yesterday morning.

Johnson, wealthy son of one of the founders of the International Shoe Co., was set upon by McDonald and another man at midday, Aug. 3, 1931, as he drove along Melrose road in St. Louis County, on the way from the St. Albans country place of his mother, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, to his own home at 38 Portland place.

He stopped the car by kicking the ignition switch and fought off his assailants, who beat him severely and fled after taking from him $35.

In its opinion, the Supreme Court, Division No. 2, held, "there is an abundance of evidence to sustain the verdict." McDonald's lawyer had made an alibi defense at the trial, but the Supreme Court held that determination of its validity was purely a question for the jury to decide, and added that there was "ample evidence" to sustain its decision. The opinion was written by Judge C. A. Leedy Jr.

McDonald was tried and convicted in December, 1931. Bart Davit, indicted with him, was tried the following April, and acquitted. The charge against both men was first degree robbery with a deadly weapon, punishable under the Henry law by a sentence ranging from 10 years' imprisonment to death by hanging.

5 PER CENT COMPROMISE CUT IN CANADA'S RAIL WAGE ROW

Settlement of Dispute Between Roads and Union Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—A 5 per cent compromise was agreed on today by the railways and the running trades in settlement of a dispute over a second 10 per cent cut in basic wage rates. The wage reduction from the high point a few years ago will stand at 15 per cent.

A formal statement issued jointly by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways and leaders of the running trades unions read: "The agreement provides for a 15 per cent deduction from Nov. 1, 1933, in lieu of the 20 per cent reduction which has been in effect since May 1 last.

"This is to continue for one year, or until Oct. 31, 1934, when the deduction drops to 10 per cent, with the provision that after Sept. 1, 1934, either party may serve notice of desire to change this percentage."

Arrested last night after John R. Emery, State Bank Examiner, had discovered alleged irregularities of $11,193.15 in the bank's accounts, Cobel pleaded guilty in District Court this morning. The trip to prison at Lansing was started this afternoon.

Mussolini Says Italy Must Be First on Land and in Air

Premier Addresses 20,000 War Veterans in Nationwide Celebration of Fascism's Eleventh Anniversary.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 28.—Italy celebrated the eleventh anniversary of the Fascist Government today with speeches, martial displays and the inauguration of public works with Premier Mussolini himself taking a leading part in many activties.

In an address to 20,000 war veterans massed before his office, Mussolini declared he wished "to give the Italian nation a hard but magnificent task, that of obtaining primacy on earth and in the skies."

He called on his hearers to have in their hearts "the intention to make this certainty become the unanimous will of the Italian people."

A message from his pen was read to thousands of Fascists throughout Italy. Declaring that the Black Shirts were expected to continue to advance the prestige of the party, the communication was the keynote of many celebrations.

Many Projects Completed.

Mussolini opened to the public a network of avenues surrounding Cataline Hill, surveyed the archeological district, reviewed 20,000 holders of decorations for valor and inspected a public works program.

As he strode about the new Roman projects to the applause of thousands of sightseers and demonstrators, Fascist secretaries all over the kingdom followed his example.

Among the achievements dedicated today was the Cremona-Piacenza railroad, a stretch of graded track through rugged mountains which will link the rich Ligurian coastal regions, Piedmont and Lombardy, with trunk lines running across Northern Italy to Venice.

In Tortona, Black Shirts celebrated the completion of a year on drainage, road and other works, which have kept unemployment away from the district. This program will be continued during the coming Fascist year.

In Milan huge new public projects were started. These included new suburban power lines, street networks, drainage and water mains.

New Mussolini Stadium.

The formal inauguration of the completed Mussolini Stadium, a part of which was inaugurated at the recent University Olympics; the start of work on numerous projects and the dedication of a new police headquarters and public market kept Fascist dignitaries busy in Turin.

A new students' home was opened in Messina, Sicily, and party heads in Aquila launched a program for the building of several big tourist hotels, schools and sanitariums.

One of the many inauguration ceremonials performed by Mussolini held particular significance for Italians everywhere as well as for the witnessing Romans. It was the dedication of the newly-paved Triumphal Way, a modern conception of the roadway used by ancient Romans in their victorious entries into the capital.

Like the old road known by the same name, the new street passes under the Arch of Constantine, a monument built by the Emperor to celebrate his triumph over his enemies. By Mussolini's wishes this arch became a symbol for Fascist triumphs when Air Marshall Balbo returned from his mass flight to America. Cheering throngs watched Balbo stride through the arch and receive a greeting from Mussolini. The procedure was recorded as a precedent for future Fascist triumphs.

Official festivities virtually occupied all the time of Italians throughout the day. As dusk fell they jammed cafes, wine shops and amusement resorts and formed huge demonstrations at public concerts.

Macon Returns From Cruise.

SUNNYVALE, Cal., Oct. 28.—The dirigible Macon returned to its base here today after a 50-hour coastwise cruise over California, mostly through fog, undertaken as a Navy day maneuver. Commander A. H. Dresel said the ship performed "perfectly."

PENNSYLVANIA PROPOSES STORE-DOOR PICKUP SERVICE

Asks I. C. C. for Permit to Use It at All Points, Following Experiments in Three States.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28. — The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve the installation of store-door-pickup-and-delivery service for less than carload freight at all points on its system.

The application seeks permission to put the service into effect on less than the statutory 30 days' notice. No effective date is named, however.

The request is a sequel to correspondence between Joseph B. Eastman, Co-ordinator of Transportation, and President W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania, which Eastman made public. Atterbury asked if the co-ordinator would object and Eastman told him he would not.

The service would go into effect over protests of the New York Central.

The Pennsylvania has given a similar service in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia on certain items as an experiment.

M'KEE DISCLAIMS USE OF NRA SIGNS IN HIS CAMPAIGN

Candidate for New York Mayor Makes Denial After Johnson Calls It "Unauthorized."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Joseph V. McKee, "Recovery party" candidate for Mayor, who was informed by NRA Administrator Johnson today that he had no right to use the NRA insignia in political literature, disclaimed all responsibility for the pamphlets which caused all the trouble.

Fiorello H. La Guardia, fusion aspirant for Mayor, had protested to Johnson.

"I have no knowledge of the issuance of those pamphlets," McKee said. "They were not issued at my headquarters. You'll have to see Mr. Hoey's campaign manager."

He referred to James J. Hoey, his running mate for Borough President of Manhattan. The pamphlet carried Hoey's picture.

Shortly before the interview a boy at McKee's headquarters, who had many of the offending pamphlets in his hand, said he had been ordered to gather and destroy them. McKee said he had given no such order, saying, "I couldn't because I did not know the pamphlets had been issued."

Immediately after McKee disclaimed responsibility, Richard C. Murphy, secretary of the Hoey Campaign Committee, accepted it. Murphy said that Hoey had signed an NRA pledge and that as a matter for argument he could be justified for the action. He said that advertiser printers and shopkeepers displayed the NRA emblem, but emphasized that he used it with no intention of implying NRA indorsement.

Farley May Be Forced to Come Out Openly for McKee.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Whether Postmaster-General Farley will publicly support Joseph V. McKee, "recovery" candidate for Mayor of New York, was a lively topic of speculation here today.

Farley's friends said the demand of Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator, that McKee forces stop using the NRA blue eagle on his campaign literature had put Farley in a difficult situation.

Although the White House has reiterated that it had its "hands off" the New York political campaign, and Farley has evaded all questions, nobody has pretended that administration circles were not interested in the New York situation. The administration has been aware that McKee has been drawing closer to it within the past week and that Fiorella La Guardia, his Fusion opponent, has been asking "who authorized you to tie up your campaign with the President?"

Today's development over the blue eagle was regarded, even by his friends, as making it necessary for Farley either to put in a word for McKee or leave him open to the construction of having been repudiated by the administration.

"Roosevelt, McKee, the Flag."

Johnson's telegram to McKee said his forces had no authority to use the blue eagle on its stationery for political purposes. The stationery of McKee's "Recovery" party, in acrostic form, with NRA in large black letters, carried this legend: "Now is the time for all good citizens to stand by the President—Roosevelt, Lehman, McKee and the flag—all the country is calling, 'save the city of New York.'"

Johnson's telegram said, "The use of N. R. A. insignia or letters on a political poster in such a manner as to tend to identify it with a particular political faction is unauthorized and contrary to NRA circular No. 1, July 23; interpretation of Sept. 27; executive order of Oct. 14 and regulation of Oct. 17."

Farley's reluctance to enter the New York City campaign openly was said to be due to four things: He is a Cabinet officer and wants to keep out of a local fight, a view which the White House also holds; he is chairman of the Democratic National Committee and in that capacity is anxious to heal, rather than open, local breaches; he is Democratic State chairman of New York and has the same interest as he has as national chairman, and he is not a voting resident of New York City. His citizenship is as a resident of Stone Point, Rockland County, and he does not want to raise the cry of "interference."

Farley's friends were aware, on the other hand, that in the face of the Johnson telegram, the Postmaster-General might feel those considerations outweighed. McKee and Edward J. Flynn of the Bronx went out of the Tammany alliance and defied it in supporting Roosevelt.

If McKee wins, friends of the President would control not only the State, but also the city machinery and would give them a political headstart for 1936.

DIES OF FRACTURED SPINE

Miss Cecyl Carter, 36-year-old Negro school teacher of East St. Louis, died at City Hospital No. 2 yesterday of a fractured spine suffered Oct. 16 when an automobile in which she was riding ran into a concrete light standard at Tenth and Market streets.

The driver, John Hickman, Negro, 106 North Fourteenth street, East St. Louis, and two other passengers were injured. Miss Carter resided at 105 North Fourteenth.

JEFFERSON BARRACKS AND SCOTT FIELD TO BE ENLARGED

That Is Word From Congressman Cochran to Chamber of Commerce.

Jefferson Barracks and Scott Field will not be closed with consent of the War Department in the economy move inaugurated by President Roosevelt, but both of the posts probably will be enlarged instead, Congressman Cochran said in a letter received yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce.

President Roosevelt recently asked the War Department to submit a list of army posts which could be closed. Neither Jefferson Barracks nor Scott Field was included on the list, and Cochran stated he had been assured by officials of high rank in the War Department that "both posts are safe." Forty or 50 posts in other parts of the country probably will be closed.

Reformatory Youth Recaptured.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 28.—Recognized by his uniform, Everett Johnson, 17, of West Plains, an inmate of the Algoa Intermediate Reformatory near here, was recaptured this afternoon in the Ozark hills about 15 miles southeast of here, 24 hours after he escaped. L. B. Pape, a former employe of the reformatory, and George Linhardt of Jefferson City, out deer hunting, caught Johnson. Johnson was sent to the reformatory a week ago to serve two years on an assault charge.

BIG DEMAND FOR SEATS FOR SYMPHONY SEASON

Subscribers This Year Exceed Last by 700; No Cut in Personnel.

A full-strength St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, of 78 instrumentalists, will appear at the season's first pair of concerts, Friday afternoon and Saturday night, at the Odeon. Rumors of a reduction were denied yesterday by Charles H. Stix, chairman of the executive committee of the Symphony Society.

As indicating the public response, Chairman Stix said that there was a possibility of a "sell-out" at this season's concerts. This would be unprecedented.

"Only 340 season seats remain unsubscribed for the Friday afternoon concerts," Stix said, "and only 395 season seats are unsubscribed for the Saturday night concerts. The number of subscribers is more than 700 over that of last year. It is possible that before the first program, at least one of the series may be entirely subscribed. That is the more likely because, with so few seats remaining at this time, season subscription is the only insurance the music-lover can have of hearing his favorites among the list of assisting artists we have engaged.

"Season subscriptions provide that insurance, at a cost of no more than $1.66 a concert for the entire series, including the greatest masters of musical interpretation. Some sections of the lower-priced seats are sold out now, and there are waiting lists in those sections for both series of concerts."

There are but four changes in the orchestra's personnel. Two of these are the engagement of Felix Slatkin and Harry Lookofsky, young St. Louis violinists. Vladimir Golschmann is back as conductor, Scipione Guidi is again concertmaster and assistant conductor, and Max Steindel first 'cellist and personnel manager.

A Policeman and a Bishop

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

On a downtown corner the traffic policeman stepped over to the curb where a Ford V-8 was standing.

"That's the car that makes the boys down at the Police Garage get up early mornings," he said.

"How is that?"

"Well, you see we have two kinds of scout cars and flyers, and the boys hustle down early to get the Fords. If you're not there first you must take out the other make of car."

"But why do they all want the Ford?"

"Safer. Easier to handle. Takes the corners better. A car with Ford springs doesn't lean over or tip on a curve or a quick turn. A police flyer has to be a safe car."

It was pleasant to find a layman placing his finger on this exclusive feature of the Ford car, namely, the Ford transverse springs. They are used in our car for the very purpose he described, to perform their triple function of providing comfort, stability and safety.

The Bishop came down from the Northwest to Michigan and eventually arrived—as every Detroit visitor does—at Dearborn.

"I thought we had pretty nearly all the Ford cars in the world up where I came from," said he, "but I can scarcely see anything else around Detroit."

The Bishop is not the first to say that, and what he observed has a meaning.

People in this Detroit area know cars in a different and more penetrating way than perhaps is possible elsewhere. This is the acknowledged automobile producing center of the world. Nearly ninety per cent of all cars produced in the United States are made within a radius of 100 miles around Detroit.

Hundreds of thousands of workmen moving from shop to shop know the methods used on each make of car, and by word of mouth they spread complete first-hand information of manufacturing methods among the people. Suppliers also know which manufacturers insist on first quality of materials and workmanship. This information also leaks out.

That is, the people hereabouts KNOW THEIR CARS. And they buy nearly twice as many Fords in Wayne County, the central area of automobile manufacture, as any other make. We are naturally a little proud of that fact.

But, then, we are never doubtful of the result when the decision is in the hand of a buyer who knows.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The spell of gold hung over financial markets this week, as President Roosevelt began the management of the gold purchasing power of the dollar as a new movement in the campaign to restore commodity values.

The first response of speculative markets was a quick uprush of prices in the first half of the week, which largely discounted the advance in the monetary metal price which was to take place starting with the R. F. C. price fixing on Wednesday, with the result that trading turned dull and listless in the last half of the week.

Much confusion was manifest in financial quarters as to just what the new program means, how successfully it will work, and what its implications may be as to the Government's policy on inflation, although the President made it clear that he proposes to maintain a sound dollar and Government credit.

While prices of shares and sensitive staples were lifted, the bond market, which might be expected to take a contrary course in the gilt-edged categories if much inflation were believed in prospect, actually held up well, although the U. S. Governments sagged slightly. The price index of 60 domestic corporate issues showed a net loss for the week of only 1-5 of one point.

Generally speaking, prices of staples did not advance as much as the gold price went up, and the dollar did not depreciate in terms of foreign gold currencies as much as the increase in the gold price would indicate that it should. Nevertheless, the gold experiment seemed to be taking effect.

Stocks Follow Gold More Closely.

The stock market followed the gold price more closely than staples. In the week ending today, the price index of 90 representative shares advanced 6.8 points, or just 10 per cent, while the price of gold, as fixed in Washington, moved up a little more than 9 per cent.

The commodity markets seemed to follow the relation of the dollar to foreign exchanges more closely than they did the gold price. The French gold franc rose about 6 per cent against the dollar, while wheat futures advanced approximately 7 per cent, and cotton 5½ per cent. Only the more sensitive of the speculative commodities followed so closely, however. Moody's daily index of 15 raw staples advanced only about 3½ per cent.

Some observers consider the relation of the dollar to sterling more important in its effect upon our commodity prices than the dollar ratio to the gold currencies, but sterling also advanced, approximately 4½ per cent.

The share market, while it turned very dull, managed to advance in the face of declining business barometers such as electric power production and the movement of freight. Third quarters earnings statements, however, brightened corporate news, showing large advances over last year.

Moderate Reaction, Trading Dull.

Stocks reacted moderately today in very dull week-end trading. Commodities were somewhat mixed, with the trend downward, while the Stock Exchange was in session; wheat later reduced its extreme losses.

On the whole, markets seemed afflicted by another attack of indecision and hesitancy. Share offerings were light, but buyers made their bids conservatively and the net result was an average loss of a point. Sales, however, totaled only 376,590 shares, so the day's performance was inconclusive.

Foreign exchanges advanced against dollars but the rise was hardly pronounced. London's gold price was reduced while the R. F. C. lifted its quotation 6 cents to $31.82 per ounce; the latter level indicated a depreciation of about 35 per cent whereas against the French gold franc dollars were valued slightly less than 33 per cent under par.

Steel shares came under moderate pressure when it was announced that the bid of $37.75 a ton for rails had been rejected at Washington. Wall Street hoped a compromise could be reached inasmuch as steel operations over the balance of this year would be helped materially by placement of the tonnage which has been projected. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem sagged about a point each.

Allied Chemical and National Distillers products were down slightly more than 2 points each. New York Central, Santa Fe, American Tobacco "B," Westinghouse, Western Union, McIntyre Porcupine and Sears Roebuck were down one or thereabouts, while American Smelting yielded nearly 2. American Telephone, General Motors, Chrysler, International Nickel, General Electric and Pennsylvania eased fractions. Consolidated Gas was steady.

Washington dispatches related that the President was studying the question of possible market supervision or regulation by Federal authority; whether this had any bearing on the dullness of stocks was problematical, but it was evident that professional traders and the public element had taken to the sidelines again.

Steel rail mills, it has been estimated, would be kept busy for many weeks rolling the 844,525 tons which, under the recently outlined plan, would be purchased by the carriers with the help of Government credit. Without a price concession to $35, the Government said it would refuse to help finance purchases unless it examined the manufacturers' books and cost records.

CURB MARKET PRICES DRIFT LOWER IN DULL TRADING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—Curb stocks drifted slightly lower today in one of the dullest Saturday sessions in weeks. Recessions were mostly of fractional extent and activity was confined largely to alcohol shares and a scattering of specialties.

A. O. Smith and Aluminum of America sagged around 3 points each in light turnovers. Fractional losses occurred in Creole Petroleum, Hiram Walker, Lake Shore Mines, National Distillers (new) and Pioneer Gold.

Transfers dwindled to approximately 69,000 shares, compared with 163,000 for the previous Saturday.

Wall Street News and Comment

By the Associated Press.

The consideration was $3,000,021 in cash. International Nickel now owns 67,970 shares in the Ontario, while American Metal still holds 23,324 out of 100,000 shares outstanding.

The Bank of America (California) says in a survey of Far Western business conditions that wine producers will spend more than $5,000,000 a year in advertising upon repeal of prohibition laws. The bank says the bulk of the advertising will be done in newspapers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Only three unfavorable dividend changes were made this week, the smallest number for any one week since 1929, Standard Statistics Co. reports. There were 18 favorable revisions, one less than in the previous week. Five payments were increased, four resumed, three extras and six initial payments.

The New York Stock Exchange has been advised that interest due Nov. 1 will be paid on Wabash Railway first mortgage 5 per cent bonds of 1939 and on the Missouri Pacific Railway extended third mortgage 4s of 1938.

To Resume Stock Dividends.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Manufacturers' Trust Co. will resume dividends on its stock at the rate of $1 a year, beginning with the final quarter, Harvey Gibson, president, announced today. Restoration of payments to stockholders would be based, he said, on the investment by the Government in capital notes of the bank, which increases the bank's capital funds "to a degree which no longer warrants withholding dividends from our stockholders." The bank discounted dividends during the bank hiloday. Its current operating earnings would indicate that the proposed dividend would be earned during the coming year approximately three times, Gibson said.

WEEKLY METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Copper prices this week recovered half of their recent sharp break on a rally of ¾-cent per pound to the basis of 7¼ for electrolytic in the Connecticut valley. More active consumer buying extended into the first quarter of 1934 developed at the decline. The trade took a favorable view of prospects for higher prices based on the new governmental gold purchasing operations but after a fairly large business had been placed, buyers withdrew, awaiting further developments. While offerings had been rather limited as prices rallied, they became more liberal later in the week.

Lead also staged a partial recovery, the present quotation of 4.30, New York, representing a rally of $6 per ton after last week's $10 decline. Broad and active demand representing most consuming branches and including immediate, November and December deliveries, was reported. Although buyers withdrew after they had placed heavy commitments, sellers who were said to have materially improved their position, held firm.

Zinc remained quiet, the price still unchanged despite fluctuations in other metals. Firmness of sellers in face of recent declines elsewhere was attributed to reports of November mine curtailment and higher producing costs, but consumers were generally out of the market.

BUSINESS NOTES

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Sales of Majestic radios in October will be 50 per cent larger than in September and 150 per cent ahead of October, 1932, John F. Ditzell, general sales manager of the Grigsby-Grunow Co., says. It is the fifth consecutive monthly increase in sales, he said.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—A vigorous upturn in retail distribution, stimulated by cooler weather, is reported by the Dun & Bradstreet weekly trade review. General business conditions, the report says, are somewhat brighter in nearly all districts.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—J. C. Schmidtbauer, Northwest District manager of Westinghouse electrical appliance sales, announced September showed an 18 per cent sales increase over September, 1932, and that October so far is one of the best in the company's history.

WHEAT PRICES RALLY LATE TO OVERCOME SOME LOSSES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Distrustful feeling aroused over reports that the Washington administration would seek to curtail or eliminate speculation brought about extreme downturns of 3¾ cents in wheat today.

Subsequent buying both of immediate and future deliveries of wheat caused rallies, but did not entirely overcome losses. The buying which led to recoveries was regarded as largely for Government account.

Wheat closed nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅞ lower, corn 1¼@1⅝ down, oats ⅜@¾ off, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 17 cents.

BOND MARKET PRICES HAVE NARROW RANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Bond prices mulled about in an extremely narrow range today as most traders and investors stood aside to wait for developments in the administration's monetary program. Dullness was the rule throughout the two-hour session, sales totaling only $4,236,000 par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues eased one-tenth of a point to 74.7. This average was off two-tenths of a point on the week.

Secondary loans generally followed stocks, with losses in a number of these ranging from fractions to a point or more. The advance of only 6 cents to $31.82 an ounce in the R. F. C. gold price failed to stir speculative maturities, as it did equities. Most of the United States Government securities sagged 1-32d to 5-32ds of a point in relatively quiet dealings.

Minor gains were recorded by some bonds of Santa Fe, Consolidated Gas, Goodyear, National Dairy, Pennsylvania and Union Pacific. Houston Oil 5½s and Dodge Bros. 6s advanced 1 and 1½ points, respectively.

Losers included some loans of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Denver & Rio Grande, Inland Steel, International Telephone, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Portland, General Electric, Southern Pacific, Warner Bros. and Wheeling Steel.

Foreign obligations did little. French Government and municipal bonds were up fractionally to about a point and improvement was shown by issues of Japan, Great Britain, Sao Paulo and Denmark. Some of the Polish, Dutch East Indies, Cubans and Australians were a trifle heavy.

SLUM CLEARANCE, HOUSING AGENCY IS INCORPORATED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Government today incorporated the Public Works Emergency Housing Corporation under the laws of Delaware to provide low cost dwellings and to clear away slums in cities where such work otherwise would not be undertaken. The corporation is owned entirely by the Feder Government.

The articles of incorporation, as approved by Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Public Works Administrator, provide that it may "construct, reconstruct, alter and repair" low cost housing or slum clearance projects, including houses, homes, and structures "of every nature and kind."

If unable to acquire land by private contract, the corporation may exercise the right of eminent domain, which means that it may acquire property by condemnation proceedings.

To Supplement Private Enterprise.

The Public Works Administration, which will furnish the several hundred million dollars required for this work, declared tonight that it would "not interfere with or enter into competition against legitimate private businesses," but would supplement them "in a field of vital social importance."

The corporation may engage in a general construction business, finance low cost housing and slum clearances and do such architectural and engineering work as may be necessary.

In addition it may locate, lay out and construct roads, avenues, parks, playgrounds, recreational facilities, sewers, bridges, utilities and any improvements connected with housing projects.

Further, it may furnish, operate and manage homes and buildings of every nature and may borrow or otherwise raise money.

Ickes, described the corporation as "an effective arm of the public works administration to facilitate and expedite housing and slum clearance projects."

Bad Housing and City Revenues.

He remarked that few cities realized "that bad housing has a direct effect" on revenues.

"The success of this program depends on the acquisition of low cost land in contiguous blocks which will involve the destruction of slums," he added. "A single clearance and rehousing operation may involve the acquisition of other low cost land than that cleared so as to reduce further land cost per unit and better distribute the new low cost housing with respect to industrial employment."

Other purposes will be to make available to state legislatures information on the basis of which they may create housing authorities which could co-operate with the Government and to assist cities where aid is necessary in working out a long-term plan to continue the development started out by the Government.

Ickes said the scheme should produce housing "at rentals which have never before been attained," but that the "housing thus provided will not be competitive with existing housing of good character."

Isaac T. Cook Allowed Compensation in Mortgage Firm Case.

A fee of $1500 was allowed to Isaac T. Cook as receiver of the Fidelity Bond and Mortgage Co. by Circuit Judge Hamilton yesterday.

Cook was named as receiver Nov. 30, 1931, and has had charge of the assets of the company, which was engaged in marketing bonds for apartment and other buildings, agreeing to guarantee the bonds to investors. The fee is the first he has received and is in partial payment for his services.

BOY WRITER OF EXTORTION NOTES FREED ON $5000 BOND

Robert E. Schwarz Waives Preliminary Hearing on Charge of Misuse of Mails.

Robert E. Schwarz, 19-year-old McKinley High School student, was released on $5000 bond yesterday after he waived preliminary hearing on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to extort.

Robert, who demanded $10,000 from his father and wrote the father of a chum about disposal of the money, did so, he explained, in order to force his parents to let him out at night. His father, Michael Schwarz, 2810 Eads avenue, is superintendent of the Crunden-Martin Manufacturing Co., 760 South Second street. His chum's father is Emil Bucher, who lives and operates a shoe store at 1536 South Broadway.

Both men have indicated their unwillingness to prosecute, but Robert is held under bond, pending the action of the Federal grand jury. The penalty for using the mails in a scheme to extort is imprisonment for not more than 20 years, a fine of not more than $5000, or both.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 28.—The game but seemingly shell-shocked forces of one of football's long-time powers, Notre Dame's Burly green shirts, fell a victim today to the Pittsburgh Panthers for the second successive year, chiefly through the exploits of bare-legged shifty Mike Sebastian of Sharon, Pa. The score was 14 to 0.

The lanky, speedy Pitt halfback, who was largely instrumental in breaking up the ball game a year ago, repeated this afternoon with a dazzling exhibition of broken-field running for the benefit of a crowd of 25,000 spectators. He galloped 78 yards for the first touchdown, aided in tallying another in a concentrated second period onslaught and otherwise distinguished himself as the Panthers' contributed another big jolt to the riddled record of the fighting Irish.

Two Defeats in Succession.

Beaten a week ago by a rival from the same district, Carnegie Tech, Notre Dame experienced the unpleasant novelty of being held scoreless on two successive Saturdays for the first time in 16 years. Simultaneously, Pittsburgh joined the select few college teams, including Carnegie and Southern California, which have enjoyed two straight victories over the Irish.

After being out-classed for two full periods, Notre Dame rallied in the last half today and came within inches of scoring a touchdown on a pass in the closing moments of the game. This saved the game from being a complete rout but there was little consolation otherwise for the home team, which was out-rushed nearly three yards to one, consistently outplayed on the line and unable to show anything resembling a sustained running attack.

The record of one victory, one tie and two defeats for its October campaign is one of the poorest any Notre Dame team has ever experienced. It leaves little hope for a comeback now, with Navy, Purdue, Northwestern, Southern California and Army yet to be encountered.

Pittsburgh, after being upset a week ago by Minnesota, showed a return to form. The Panthers compiled all their points in the second period, but missed at least two other good scoring chances, once when they reached Notre Dame's three-yard line and had a short fourth down pass intercepted, the other when Howard O'Dell fumbled at the critical stage of a 55-yard drive deep in opposing territory.

Sebastian Gallops 78 Yards.

On the emerald turf made famous by similar exploits of the home guard, Sebastian broke loose for his long gallop of 78 yards and the first Panther touchdown soon after a Notre Dame pass was intercepted by his backfield mate, Henry Weisenbach, on the Pitt 15, midway in the second quarter. Sebastian was in the clear in an off-tackle reverse, and well surrounded by blockers, before the defense knew what it was all about. He scored standing up.

Another intercepted pass, by Ken-

By J. Roy Stockton.

Washington University's Bears gave a great exhibition of football between the 20-yard lines at Francis Field yesterday afternoon, but the mistakes of inexperience hobbled them when their greatest opportunity beckoned and the Drake Bulldogs, driving through for one hard-earned touchdown, scored their fourth straight Missouri Valley Conference victory, 6 to 0.

Gridiron statistics were flouted by the Bulldogs. The Bears outgained them from scrimmage, 222 yards to 141, and Jimmy Conzelman's desperately striving young men made 10 first downs to six for the heavier athletes from Des Moines. But just as they don't pay off on the drive on a golf course and just as they count runs rather than base hits in baseball, so the touchdown is the ultimate yardstick in football and let no statistical summary detract from the glory of the Bulldogs.

Those statistics, however, and the fact that the Bears threatened several times and had one great chance to gallop down the boulevard of victory, made the defeat a bitter pill for Coach Conzelman and his warriors. But there was some measure of consolation. The young Bears gave the finest exhibition Washington fans have seen in many a year against the Valley Conference's leading championship contender.

Bears' Last Stand.

And there was consolation in the stubborn fight the Washington warriors waged. There is nothing more discouraging than a great opportunity that has been missed, but the Bears fought on even as the sun was casting ever lengthening shadows and the efficient Mr. Don Henry, field judge, was fingering his pistol and counting the waning seconds of the struggle. And in those final moments the Bears made a last desperate thrust and Harry Brown had hauled down a forward pass from Edward "Baby Face" Frederickson and lugged it to the Drake 15-yard line when Bulldog tacklers got him and the bark of the field judge's gun ended the contest.

Bill Wolf, substituting for Harry Brown in the backfield, gave the Bears their big chance to score, and if he had had fleetness of foot to match the skill with which he launched his one-man offensive, Jimmy Conzelman and Gale Bullman could be wearing the becoming grins of victory today.

Shortly after the second quarter started Mike Zboyovski received a punt and returned the ball to his 21-yard line. Wolf then dashed off tackle, reversed his field, eluded one Bulldog after another and reeled off 55 staggering yards before a couple of Bulldocks overtook him, eluded his interference and threw him on the Drake 24-yard line.

Bears on Drake 13-Yard Line.

Nathan Tutinsky, the game cock who plays even when he has a dozen stitches in his chin, skirted the end for nine yards and Wolf hit the line to make it another first down on the Bulldogs' 13-yard line.

Dwight Hafeli, who spent the afternoon shifting from end to fullback, as necessity and the distribution of limited man power required, cracked the line for three yards and Wolf added three feet more.

And then it was that a strategic mistake was made—if it is fair to sit up in the grandstand and second-guess the young men who are out there on the gridiron taking all the bruises. The Drake defense was spread out and, things being as they were, it seemed that it would have been wise to send Hafeli into the line, a Hafeli who was having a whale of an afternoon. But Tutinsky lost a yard at end and when Zboyovski's forward pass on the fourth down was grounded in the end zone Drake took the ball on its 20-yard line and Oscar Important Opportunity said farewell to the Bears for the day.

And here is how the Bulldogs performed when they heard a knocking at the door: Midway in the third quarter, Al Wieland, outstanding among Drake ball carriers, surprised the Bears by making a quick kick and the ball sailed over Safety Man Zboyovski's head and carried and rolled 55 yards to the Bears' five-yard line, where Capt. Brechler of the Bulldogs fell on it.

Wieland Makes Long Run.

Wolf punted to Potts on the Bears' 36-yard line and after Raffety hit tackle for three yards, Wieland, on a half-spinner, darted through the line, side-stepped the secondary and slipped and dodged until he was downed 10 yards from the goal line.

Swan punched center for three and when Wieland was stopped the ball was on the two-yard line. Another Wieland thrust left a margin of only six inches, and Potts, on a quarterback "sneak" play, went over for the touchdown. Wieland failed in his attempt to rush through for the extra point, but the

Mata Hari Captures Jockey Club Stakes, Second in Eight Days

By the Associated Press.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 28.—Eased up at the finish, Mata Hari of the Dixiana Stables continued her brilliant comeback today, winning the $10,000 added Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes handily.

With it Mata Hari, first filly ever to win in the 14 years this race has been run, captured a purse of $16,230, to be added to the $15,064 she took in winning the Breeders' Futurity as handily here just a week ago.

As on last Saturday, the race was to a duel between Mata Hari and Discovery, owned by Adolphe Pons. Then Discovery finished third. Today he was a poor second despite closing strength. Collateral, coupled with Sainted as the C. V. Whitney entry, was a distant third.

A go-getter early in the season, Mata Hari slumped badly as the summer wore on, and was little more than lightly rated a week ago. Today, howver, her backing was such that she paid only $4.60 to $2 to win.

Dan Sabath broke in front after delaying the start, but could not maintain the pace. Mata Hari swept by Hadagal and Dan Sabath in the back stretch, opened a lead of four lengths, and then just coasted in. Discovery, meanwhile, forged up in the stretch to finish in the money, with Collateral far back, Dan Sabath fourth, and Hadagal a weary fifth.

Granite City Loses and Drops From First Place

East St. Louis defeated Granite City yesterday afternoon in a Southwestern Conference game by a score of 11—0, tallying two safeties on blocked punts and Willy Wilton scoring the lone touchdown of the game an a 55-yard runback of the kick-off following the first safety in the second period. The second safety came in the last period.

In other East Side games, Madison defeated Belleville, 7—0, and Wood River won from Collinsville, 8—0.

The East St. Louis game was mostly a punting duel between Julius Kassin of East St. Louis and Beahler, end, of Granite City.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Navy's fighting midshipmen struck twice before 60,000 fans here today, in the opening and closing minutes of play, to defeat a hard-luck Penn team, 13 to 0.

WRAY'S COLVMN

Hasn't Been Done Yet.

ROME is disappointed in Primo Carnera. He failed to take the smaller Paulino Uzcudun apart in their 15-round fight before Mussolini. He must be "one beeg cheese" to let a little man stick around that long, is the Latin thought today.

PAULINO.

But Rome isn't acquainted with that chunk of wrought steel who has been "taking it" for 10 years under the name of "Paulino." He's a real tough hombre. Carnera couldn't put him on the floor; the same is true of everyone else Paulino has faced. It isn't being done.

Max Schmeling, who caught Uzcuzdun in very bad physical condition, gave the Basque a terrific drubbing—but he couldn't put him down or out.

Paulino isn't going anywhere, but few fighters are going to fatten their reputations greatly by opposing him. Whoever meets him today is assured an unpleasant evening and dubious glory.

Ask Max Baer—he tried it a couple of years ago. And got whipped. Probably the last man Baer wants to take on today is this same Paulino, old and battered as he may be.

No Telling.

THE winter heavyweight fight program is still scrambled. Unofficial word from Joe Jacobs, who is in Berlin using his vocal wiles on Max Schmeling, is to the effect that Schmeling may fight Uzcudun, Sharkey, Tommy Loughran and finally Carnera.

But when the words are finally sifted down to facts, we probably will find Max taking on not more than two foes.

It is very doubtful if he will face the shifty Tommy Loughran,

Minnesota Defeats Iowa, 19 to 7, Before Crowd of 40,000

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 28.—Iowa saw its Big Ten title aspirations plowed under today by Minnesota's powerful eleven, which harvested three touchdowns to give the boys from the Corn State their first football defeat this year, 19 to 7.

Francis "Pug" Lund, one of the greatest Gopher half backs since Earl Martineau made the all-America team a decade ago, sowed the first seeds of victory before 40,000 persons with a great display of running and blocking that made possible his team's scores.

It was enough to make the Minnesota home coming slogan—"Shock Iowa"—come true for Ossie Solem's team, the surprise of the Western Conference race, was defensively helpless before the Gopher's powerhouse.

Just to make it decisive, Babe Levoir, substitute back, plunged through the line for the third touchdown in the third period.

Crayne Scores on 58-Yard Run.

Dick Crayne, flashy Iowa fullback, made the most thrilling run of the day when he intercepted a Minnesota pass in the last period and scampered 58 yards down the side line for the Hawkeyes' only touchdown. Rook place-kicked the extra point.

The Hawkeyes found the Gopher juggernaut unstoppable and with Lund making 30 yards in two plays, Minnesota in the first period gave warning of what was to come.

Scintillating runs by Lund and Alfonse and Larson's brilliant catch of Lund's forward pass, enabled Minnesota to march to the Iowa 10-yard stripe but there the Hawkeyes held for downs.

In the second period, however, Beise's line smashes and wide sweeping end runs by Lund and Alphonse brought the oval to Iowa's five-yard mark from where Alfonse ran around left end for a touchdown.

Fumble Leads to Third Score.

A fumble by Hoover in the third quarter was recovered by Lund on the Iowa 15-yard stripe and Alfonse scored a few plays later on the same play that netted the first touchdown. Bevan, who kicked the first goal, missed the second.

A penalty offered the Gophers their final scoring opportunity and after power plays brought the ball through to the eighty-mark Levoir went over in two plays through the line.

Aside from Crayne's touchdown run, Iowa never got beyond the Gopher 36-yard mark. A desperate Hawkeye passing attack in the final minutes was broken up. Crayne and Laws were the big guns in the Hawkeye assault that netted them 142 yards by rushing compared with 273 for Minnesota.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 28.—Princeton defeated Washington and Lee, 6 to 0, today, but for the first time this season the Tiger met a foe that forced it to use everything in its bag of tricks. Chick Kaufmann's stable scored for Nassau in the first period.

The Southerners received the kick-off and drove 40 yards into Tiger territory. A 15-yard penalty halted the march and several punt exchanges gave Princeton the ball on Washington and Lee's 44-yard mark. Pepper Constable drove through center for two first downs in a row, and Chick Kaufman twisted the last 15 yards for a touchdown. John failed to convert.

By the Associated Press.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 28.—Iowa State joined the Big Six victory parade for the first time this season today by bowling over Missouri, 14 to 7, before 5000 home comers.

It took the Cyclones all of the first quarter and most of the second to put over their initial touchdown and during this time the visitors bungled two opportunities within the State five-yard line.

Coasting along on the thin 7-point margin, the Cyclones saw their advantage wiped out in a desperate four period Tiger attack, but they came back in the final five minutes to shove over the winning points.

Bill Allender, shifty Sophomore halfback, scored both times for the Cyclones.

Trailing 7 to 0 early in the fourth period, Missouri downed Allender's poor punt on State's 20-yard line. Unable to gain through the line, Missouri took advantage of a 15-yard penalty against Iowa State, then flipped two passes, Lochiner to Schiele and Hatfield to Lochiner, for the touchdown. Hatfield placekicked the tying point.

Allender went in for Graveno at the start of the second period and fired a steady march goalward. After two drives within the Tiger 5-yard line, State made its successful thrust from the 30-yard mark, two forward-lateral passes gaining 21 yards. Allender smashed over from the two-yard mark, Dana kicking goal.

The final Cyclone tally started when Iowa State blocked a punt and recovered on the Tiger 42-yard line. Allender passed to Williams for 12 yards, Miller added 10, then Allender took the ball to the two-yard line in four smashes. He crossed the goal on the next try.

Iowa State made 13 first downs, 218 yards from scrimmage and 47 yards on passes, while Missouri made 12 first downs, 197 yards from scrimmage and 95 yards on passes. The Cyclone punters had an off day, averaging only 18 yards to 32 for the Missouri kickers.

Principia Scores 20 to 0 Victory Over Wentworth

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Mo., Oct. 28.—Superior all-around play in the line, in blocking and in ball carrying gave the Principia a 20-to-0 victory over Wentworth Military Academy here today before a crowd of 2000, including the members of the Kansas City Alumni club who were honor guests.

A long pass, Tullis to Conklin, gave the visitors their chance in the first quarter, putting the ball on the 20-yard line. A later one with Stitt receiving gained 10 and Tullis again used the lateral to Stitt to score. Stitt drop-kicked goal.

Wentworth's only rally was nipped in the second quarter and in the fourth quarter, Wentworth, forced back, kicked short to the 20-yard line and Tullis ran the punt back for a touchdown, a pass for point to Branniger was good. The final counter came when Benton cut inside tackle from the 5-yard line to score. The kick was wild.

Last year almost one-fourth of the total number of deer killed were shot in Gasconade country.

The open season on deer closed yesterday at sundown.

No announcement of the total number of deer killed this year has been given out by the state game department. More than 2500 deer hunting tags were issued.

The largest deer reported killed during the 1933 open season was brought down by W. H. McNichol, 5972 Lotus avenue, who reported one of 280 pounds, shot a few miles out of Salem, in Dent County. It had eleven points and required three bullets, all fired by McNichol, to drop him. He ran 100 yards before he succumbed to the final shot.

A buck weighing 270 pounds fell before the rifle of Henry Doyle, motor salesman, 2555 N. Grand avenue, St. Louis. It took two bullets at 150 yards range to bring down this victim.

One party including Wayne J. Duke of 4909 Lansdowne avenue, St. Louis, hunting under the guidance of Tony Jokerst, near Bloomsdale, St. Genevieve County, killed three deer. Duke killed one, an 8-point buck weighing 230 pounds, early Thursday morning and another was killed at about the same time by Henry Slaughter, 4506 McPherson avenue. The third was credited to Martin Carron of Lawrenceton, Mo., who killed an 8-point buck which was wounded by Pete Pratte of Bonne Terre. The party counted 28 deer in their three days of hunting.

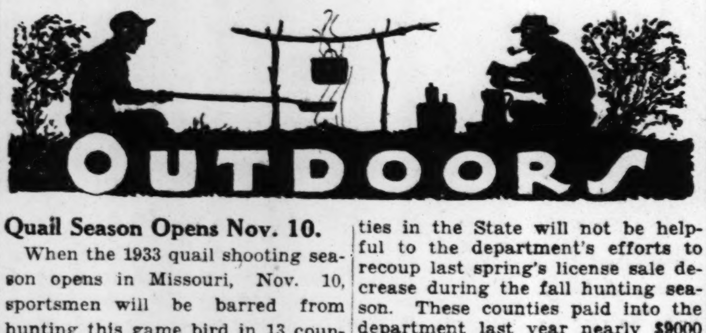
William J. Baggerman of 731 Radcliffe avenue, University City, came home with his share of venison after bringing down a 4-point buck weighing 165 pounds on the farm of Henry Waldecker at Bay, Mo. Baggerman killed his deer with one shot from a distance of about 350 yards.



Quail Season Opens Nov. 10.

When the 1933 quail shooting season opens in Missouri, Nov. 10, sportsmen will be barred from hunting this game bird in 13 counties. This is the greatest number of counties on the closed list since the local option quail law was enacted eight years ago.

State Game and Fish Commissioner Wilbur Buford recently made a survey of the State and has announced that county clerks in the following counties have notified him that the bobwhite quail has been placed on the protected list: Andrew, Atchison, Cooper, Bates, Daviess, De Kalb, Harrison, Johnson, Knox, Dade, Maries, Moniteau, Schuyler.

Harrison County is no new addition to the list as quail hunting has been barred there ever since the local option law became effective. Only two counties, Maries in the south central part and Dade in Southwest Missouri, lie outside of the agricultural belt. Surveys made within the last two years show that the quail density per acre in each of the closed counties is at least normal for the entire State and that no closed season on the birds was necessary to prevent them from being shot out.

What the Figures Show.

Andrew, 2 to 4 acres per quail; Bates, 2 to 4 acres per quail; Daviess, 4 to 8 acres per quail; De Kalb, 8 to 12 acres per quail; Harrison, 2 to 4 acres per quail; Johnson, 2 to 4 acres per quail; Dade, 2 to 4 acres per quail; Maries, 2 to 4 acres per quail; Schuyler, 4 to 8 acres per quail. Detailed figures on the other closed counties are not available, but conservation authorities say the average density for these will not be less than 4 to 8 acres per bird.

Coming as they do, with a marked shortage in revenue already hampering Game and Fish Department activities, bans on quail shooting in more than one-eighth of the counties in the State will not be helpful to the department's efforts to recoup last spring's license sale decrease during the fall hunting season. These counties paid into the department last year nearly $9000 for licenses. This amount is expected to be less now on account of the closed season. Because of the closed seasons making bird hunting more difficult each year around Kanass City and St. Joseph, especially, the bans may effect revenue from Buchanan and Jackson counties, those particularly interested in the department's finances say.

Good Hunting Is Expected.

Regardless of the closed seasons in 13 Missouri counties, quail hunters who do go afield this fall may well expect good hunting, State game officials say. Reports from game wardens, park and refuge workers and others indicate an excellent crop this year with couverts running large and numerous.

Although the hunting season is yet a few weeks in the offing, many sportsmen are practicing wing shooting on skeet grounds in preparedness for the opening.

Game Farms Leased.

Following closely upon his announcement that the Missouri Game and Fish Department would produce 10,000 wild turkeys in 1934 for distribution in the Ozarks, Wilbur Buford, Game and Fish Commissioner, last week made known his leasing of two commercial game farms where he expects to produce 12,000 bobwhite quail next year for restocking shot-out areas.

The two hatcheries leased are the Missouri Pheasantries at Windsor, and the Ozark Quail Farm at Hardinville.

The Missouri Pheasantries, operated by E. E. Breisch, a former racing car driver, is now the largest producer of bobwhite quail in Missouri and in the Middle West. He started his game farm several years ago by producing English ringneck pheasants, most of which he sold to the State Game and Fish Department during the time the State was conducting experiments with this exotic game bird. Later, seeing that the future of the ringneck in Missouri was uncertain, Breisch began raising bobwhite quail. He obtained brood stock and eggs from North Carolina and Virginia and it was from this stock that he produced several thousand birds this year. His plant has a capacity for 10,000 birds annually. It is located seven miles east of Windsor and covers 120 acres. Pheasant production there has been limited to a few show birds.

Original Methods.

Breisch's methods of producing quail are largely original with him. He has designed and built nearly all of his equipment, including the special brooder houses. The incubators used by him are an exception. The hatching device used was found after experimenting many months with virtually every commercial hatching unit available in this country. The incubator which gave the best results was one built in Missouri. Since Breisch's experiments, this incubator, produced at Higginsville, has been widely used by commercial game breeders for hatching quail, pheasants, turkeys and wild ducks.

Breisch will remain in charge of the hatchery for the State as will C. H. Burnett, present operator of the Ozark Quail Farm, continue in charge of the Ozark County hatchery. This latter hatchery, while not as large as the one at Windsor, is capable of producing a large number of birds for the State Department.

The leases will become effective at once and the plants will be put in complete readiness this winter for the start of the 1934 hatching season next spring.

While Buford was arranging the leases with Breisch and Burnett, work on the new Mudlick wild turkey plant at Sam A. Baker State Park in Wayne County was going forward. Sixty range pens already have been erected and brooder houses and a field experiment station are now being built. The department expects to produce from 6000 to 10,000 birds annually at this plant. Harold L. Blakey of Fayette, a graduate of the University of Missouri and an ornithological expert, is in charge of this turkey plant.

Spawning Operations.

Start on the spawning operations at the Bennett Spring State Park trout hatchery in Dallas and Laclede counties may be held up for a few days after the trout season closes Nov. 1, Dr. G. B. Herndon, chief of hatcheries for the State Game and Fish Department, said last week. The reason, he pointed out, was that considerable construction and repair work is planned for the park, utilizing the Conservation Corps camp workers stationed there, during the winter. Among the projects proposed is the construction of a new concrete dam and bridge across the trout stream and the rebuilding of the sluice and waterwheel. As the success of the trout hatching program there depends much upon the condition of the water, work of stripping trout eggs and setting them in the hatchery troughs will not be undertaken until a definite program for the winter has been established.

The department also has trout hatchery equipment at Sequiota Hatchery, near Springfield, and Roaring River State Park, near Cassville.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 28. — While a superior Harvard team relaxed in the last minute of play, Bill Clark raced outside his right tackle for 55 yards and a touchdown that enabled Dartmouth to gain a 7 to 7 tie today before 30,000, one of the smallest crowds in the history of this 40-year-old New England gridiron classic.

The Crimson, which dominated the game for 59 minutes, had one ear cocked for the final whistle when Captain Johnny Dean tried to lengthen its 7-0 lead by attempting a field goal placement from Dartmouth's 30-yard line. His try was short and Dartmouth started passing from its 20-yard line.

Stangle Outwits Harvard.

The Crimson had knocked down or intercepted every one of the 12 aerials that Dartmouth attempted up to this time of the game, but a cog slipped in its passing defense and George Stangle managed to connect with two consecutive tosses to put his team on its 45-yard line.

Knowing the Dartmouth of old, Harvard spread its passing defense all over its side of the field and awaited Stangle to cut loose with his long forwards. The Crimson backfield covered every possible zone and the line spread out to guard against short ones.

But Stangle crossed them. As he feinted by fading back, the ball went to Clark and he was outside his right tackle and in the clear before Harvard realized he had the ball.

Clark reversed his field and was heading for the left corner of the Harvard zone before the pursuit started. Johnny Lockwood, reserve center who intercepted three consecutive Dartmouth passes, was the only Harvard player to get his hands on the sprinting Clark, just as he sprawled over the goal-line. Don Hagerman, another Dartmouth replacement, place-kicked the tying point.

Crimson Scores In Third Quarter.

Harvard made several impressive threats, which were halted by penalties, before the fleet Fergy Locke scored early in the third period. Dean had kicked off to Jim Aieta, who was inserted in the Dartmouth backfield at the start of the second half, and he suffered a sour break. With a clear passage for 30-yards, he stumbled and fell on his 10-yard line, and forced a first-down punt that was grounded on the Indians' 48. Bob Haley, third of the quartet of signal-callers that directed the Harvard offense, tossed a flat pass to Locke on the 44-yard line and that sprinter, aided by perfect interference, reversed his field twice before going over the last Dartmouth line. Dean's place-kick gave Harvard its seventh point which, at that point of the game, appeared a safe lead over Dartmouth.

ST. MARY'S ELEVEN ROUTS NEVADA, 61-0

a crushing offense that scattered the opposition all over the bowl, St. Mary's Gaels made their farewell bow yesterday before heading East by trouncing the University of Nevada Wolves, 61 to 0.

Thirty thousand fans saw Coach Ed Madigan's husky squad roll up the biggest score in the football history of the college.

WRAY'S COLUMN

who might outpoint him in a short fight. Uzcudun he already has beaten. Jack Sharkey, whom he can whip almost any day, and Carnera with a title to lose, might be his goals.

Sharkey is a likely engagement. It might draw because in a way there would be a sort of a grudge in the background. Carnera, however, would not want to waste such good ammunition as Schmeling on a Miami fight, unless stimulated by a guarantee such as no sane promoter would offer in these days.

Carnera really has little to fear from Schmeling. Max is too hopelessly small. The big fellow would wear him out and batter him down, if the bout went 15 rounds. He probably could do it in 10. No 190-pound foe can carry Carnera around on his shoulders more than half a dozen rounds without becoming exhausted.

And then, even the so-called "punchless" Primo could finish his foe.

And as for Miami coming back as a big fight center, a lot of obsolete dividends will have to become active again before enough sports will be sufficiently "in the money" to risk a trip to Florida.

About "Iron Men" Teams.

WHILE coaches continue to moan about lack of reserves, Oregon State University football players don't seem to know what they are talking about. That eleven men can still play through an entire game without substitutions they proved recently when they held the mighty machine from Southern California University to a 0-0 score. Not a substitution was made by Oregon.

The feat invites the thought that the majority of football players today are "softies" compared to players of earlier decades, when contestants were carried out, rather than ordered out of a game.

That thought, however, is not borne out by facts. Football players today play much faster and contacts in many instances are even more severe than was the case under any football except that during the days of mass plays, under the old "three downs and five yards to gain" rule.

They Come in Cycles.

AS a matter of fact, every now and then a team bobs up under existing rules that achieves a no-substitution game or plays through a season using only half a dozen subs. But they are the exception.

The last previous notable case was that of the "iron man" team of Brown University six or seven years ago, which astonished the world by its feats of endurance.

Perhaps the real reason why there are so few no-substitution games today is that coaches are loath to extend players to the point of physical exhaustion, because of the fear injuries may result and also because of a desire to give more players on the squad an opportunity to develop.

Football squads of major institutions today usually have three or four men for every position, each practically as good as the other.

Using 11 tired men when fresh units are available doesn't make sense.

But because playing games with no substitutions isn't attempted today, doesn't mean that it could not be done.

At Last Some Common Sense.

EVER since 1920, the suggestion has been advanced in this column that money for United States Olympic teams should be supplied by Federal appropriation, not by the system of passing the hat.

Under the prevailing plan, a few citizens supply the funds for the defense of this country's prestige on international fields, whereas the proper equipment and welfare of the United States team seems to be more a matter for national pride and public responsibility.

Other nations long ago beat us to this viewpoint and have financed their teams out of the government purse. But America has continued to stumble along in haphazard fashion, causing a great deal of labor and embarrassment to those who were assigned the unpleasant duty of begging.

Now an effort has been begun to obtain Federal support for the 1936 Olympics and it should be given nation-wide support. The sum required is not more than $300,000, if that much. This represents a total of only 2½ mills for each inhabitant of the country.

Unfortunately, the machinery for collecting even such a small sum is inadequate, and a few individuals have borne the cost in the past. The public treasury would not miss such a total, and in such a cause it seemingly could and should be spared.

Our Racing Situation.

MISSOURI, which has had bootleg horse racing with betting in North Kansas City for several years, may pass a law legalizing betting on horse races.

Perhaps we should have such a law. It might put some money in the State Treasury. It would at least save the officials of the county in which Riverside Park is located from blushing.

Properly conducted, it might even protect the public by prescribing a scrutiny of what goes on at race tracks, from the stables to the pari-mutuel department.

A rather humorous possibility lies in the fact that the promoters of Riverside privately may fight the passage of a bill legalizing Missouri racing. The reason, of course, is financial. The situation is this:

Without a law legalizing race track betting, Riverside conducts spring and fall meetings in this State, without competition and without payment of one cent of racing taxes.

With a Missouri law, Riverside would have to pay something like $1000 a day and perhaps 20 cents on each admission ticket, not to mention the strong probability of having competition from other tracks.

It's highly probable, therefore, that Riverside will promote no torchlight and transparency parades in support of a racing bill.

When Is a Bet Not a Bet?

At Riverside a bet is merely "a donation." For 99 out of 100 of us, a bet at any race track usually is a donation. But at Riverside they advise you before hand that your $2 is just that.

"DONATION MEMORANDA."

"Received from the bearer hereof the amount indicated on the front of this ticket as a donation to the purse fund of the Riverside Park Jockey Club, said donation to be applied to the payment of purses, as indicated in the receipt, or such other purse or purses, or the expense of such purse fund as the management shall provide and appoint.

"Such donation is given and received as a voluntary donation to the purse fund for the sole purpose of stimulating horse breeding and racing in the State of Missouri and insuring full payment of any and all purses offered and advertised to be paid during the racing meet held at North Kansas City, Missouri . . . and it is further accepted upon condition that the donor has and does waive any and all right to the said sum of money so donated and understands that the Riverside Jockey Club will not return it or any part of it to him.

RIVERSIDE PARK JOCKEY CLUB.

Still, if you had a $2 bill to risk and you thought a certain horse would win a certain race at Riverside, by making such a donation, you would not only receive back your donation but also any profit from the mutuel pool which the management decided to allow you to take away.

To all intents you would have made a bet and won it.

But, of course, those instances are so rare that perhaps after all the broad definition of a "donation" best fits the situation.

ARKANSAS FIELD GOAL IN FINAL QUARTER BEATS S. M. U., 3 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 28. —The University of Arkansas cast a long shadow over the hopes of Southern Methodist to win the Southwest Conference football championship by whipping the Mustangs, 3 to 0, today with a last quarter field goal.

The winning points in Arkansas' first victory over an S. M. U. team in 11 years resulted from a 69-yard dash by George Jordan, which placed the ball on the Methodist 11-yard line. Elvin Geiser then booted the ball high between the posts and over the bar.

The Arkansas victory was the third in as many games in the 1933 conference season and kept the Razorbacks ahead of the field with a perfect percentage. Until today's reversal, Southern Methodist also had been undefeated in conference competition.

TENNESSEE RALLIES TO HAND FLORIDA ITS FIRST DEFEAT

By the Associated Press.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 28.—Facing defeat for the third successive Saturday, the University of Tennessee football team came to surprising life in the final quarter today, scored two touchdowns on line drives and beat its Southeastern Conference opponent, the Florida 'Gators, 13 to 6. It was Florida's first defeat of the season.

Feathers, in the closing minute of the third period, took a lateral pass and swept left end for 23 yards, ploughed through tackle for nine yards and rested the ball on Florida's four-yard stripe. At the beginning of the final period, Craig scored.

Later, a sustained drive from midfield carried the ball to Florida's 13-yard line. The Vols passed over the goal line and Florida took the ball. Tennessee recovered a fumble on Florida's six-yard stripe. Craig made three and Feathers raced around right end to score.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 28. — Nebraska's Cornhuskers tried to fumble themselves out of the Big Six Conference football leadership here today but Oklahoma joined in the pastime and the Cornhuskers won a nightmare game, 16 to 7.

The Cornhuskers played heads-up football in streaks. On the first play of the game Hub Boswell, halfback, recovered an untouched Nebraska kickoff for a touchdown. Again midway in the first half, they mixed passes and running plays to march 72 yards for their other touchdown.

But Oklahoma, trailing at the half, 13 to 0, returned after the rest period to stop the Cornhuskers' attack almost completely and to take advantage of Boswell's fumble on his own 19-yard line to send Bob Dunlap across for the first 1933 touchdown against Nebraska. It was the only time Oklahoma's offensive could go places. An Oklahoma fumble a few minutes later gave George Sauer, Nebraska fullback, a chance to score a field goal to keep the game safe.

A dozen fumbles marred the game and misplays accounted for most of the scoring. Eight fumbles came in the last half, most of them deep in the offenders' territory.

The big bobble was on the first play when Bernie Masterson, Nebraska quarteback, kicked off over the goal line against a strong wind. The wind kept the ball from rolling out of the end zone and the Oklahoma backs let the ball lie. A trio of Nebraskans rushed for it and Boswell dived on it for the touchdown. The crowd, estimated at about 20,000, was too surprised to cheer and only the Nebraska players patting Boswell on the back brought a realization of what had happened.

Nebraska made ten first downs to four for Oklahoma. The Huskers gained 95 yards from scrimmage and 81 from passes while the Sooners made 27 yards from scrimmage and only eight yards by passes.

V. P. I. LOSES THIRD HOME GAME IN EIGHT YEARS TO SOUTH CAROLINA

By the Associated Press.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Oct. 28. — South Carolina defeated Virginia Polytechnic Institute 12 to 0 here today.

The Carolinians' brilliant running attack carried to touchdowns in the second and fourth periods with Earl Clary, the "Gaffney Ghost" scoring both.

The defeat, the Techmen's third at home in eight years, dealt Virginia Tech's Southern Conference championship hopes a crushing blow and placed South Carolina in the position of needing just one more victory for a claim at least to a share in the title.

BEAUMONT IS WINNER OVER M'KINLEY TEAM BY SAME SCORE

By Harold Tuthill

Cleveland High School's "cripple [illegible]ues" were changed into a pean of victory as the Carondelet eleven moved into a first place tie with Soldan in the City High School League football race with a 7-to-0 victory over Roosevelt in the first game of the doubleheader at the Public Schools Stadium yesterday afternoon. The attendance was about 6500.

Beaumont Wins, 7 to 0.

Beaumont showed a decided reversal of form and trimmed McKinley's Goldbugs, 7 to 0, in the second game. Beaumont's victory was something of a surprise because McKinley had won from Central, 7 to 0, a team which defeated Beaumont last week, 27 to 12.

Wilson Schwenk paved the way for the winning touchdown by tearing off a run of 41 yards as the second quarter opened. The run moved the ball up to McKinley's 19-yard line with first down to go. Beaumont rushed its way to the six-yard mark. On the third down, Ed Ball went over center for the score. Ball also plunged over for the extra point. Beaumont and McKinley each owns a record of one victory and two defeats.

Although Cleveland was not in the best condition, yet coach Bert E. Fenega's wails were slightly exaggerated since two of the three cripples—Marvin Knaus and Don Ghidoni—appeared in the game. The third regular—Wilfred Kracke, however, was still convalescent and his ability to carry the ball was missed.

Scoreless for Three Periods.

For three quarters two fine high school lines tugged and pulled at each other to no avail. Cleveland made several threats to score, but the Rough Riders were adamant until the final period. Even then if it had not been for a break in the form of a recovered fumble, the game might have resulted in a scoreless tie.

The Rough Riders were on their own 19-yard line and Guy Moser, in the quarterback position, fumbled, Manuel Wisbrock recovering for Cleveland as the third quarter ended. As the final period got under way Cleveland made two rushes and then Jack Carlson drove to the five-yard line for first down. On the first play, Russell Rapp laterally passed to Bill Ryan, who swept around right end for the touchdown. Jack Carlson plunged through for the extra point.

This constituted all the scoring in the battle, but some mention should be made of the great punting duel between Marlowe "Swede" Jovaag of Roosevelt and Ed Stelmach and Rapp of Cleveland. It was Jovaag's kicks which proved almost as great an offensive weapon as the Rough Riders' 84 yards gained from scrimmage and which also served to put Cleveland on the defensive for most of the game.

Smerek, Cleveland Tackle, Hurt.

Pete Smerek, Cleveland tackle, was added to the hospital list when he suffered a possible fracture of the left hip. After a preliminary examination by the doctor at the stadium, he was taken to Barnes Hospital, where X-rays were made of his hip.

The result of Cleveland's victory put the Carondelet eleven in a first place tie with Soldan, which also has two league decisions to its credit. It was Roosevelt's fifth defeat of the season and second in league play.

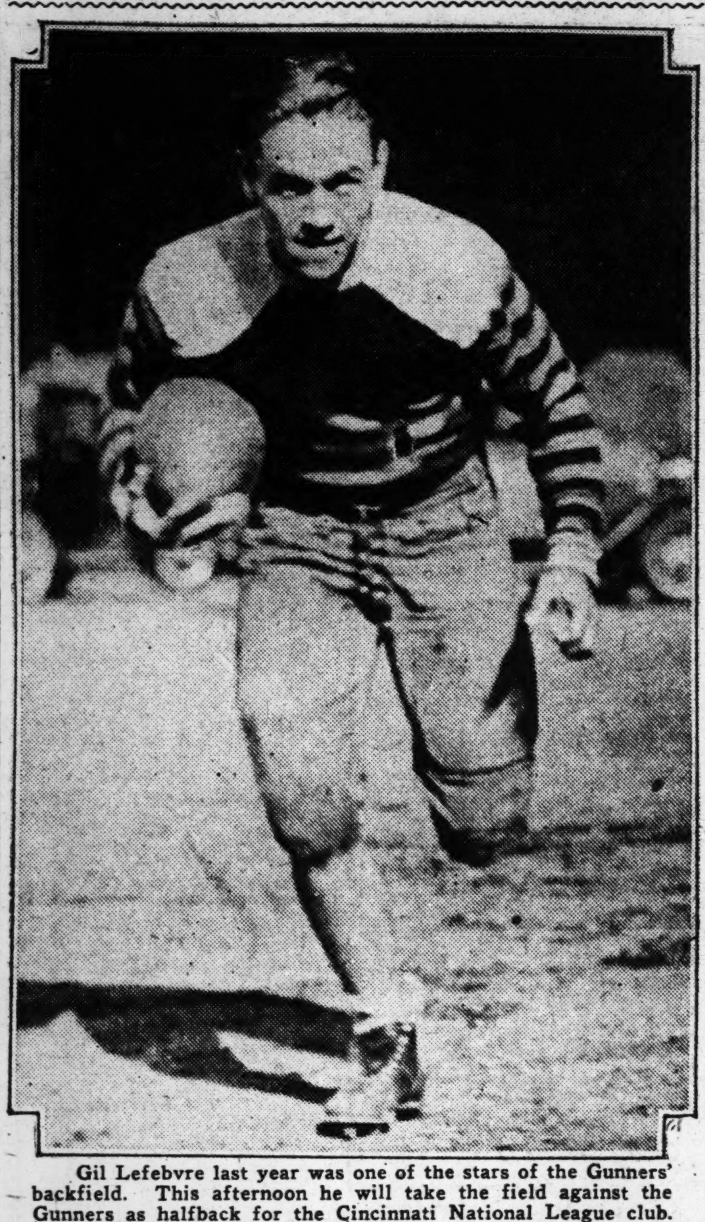
Turns His Guns on the Gunners



Gil Lefebvre last year was one of the stars of the Gunners' backfield. This afternoon he will take the field against the Gunners as halfback for the Cincinnati National League club. Lefebvre is not a college trained player. He learned his football playing on a team representing the Pacific Coast fleet of the U. S. Navy. Although weighing only 157 pounds he is rated highly in pro football circles.

Joie Ray, Here, Plans To Meet Nurmi and Zabala in Marathon

Joie Ray, who for years was one of the world's greatest distance runners and who three times carried the Stars and Stripes in Olympic games competition, but whose most recent publicity has been acquired through flyers in marathon dancing, prize fighting and other professional promotions, is preparing for a comeback in his first love, foot racing.

JOIE RAY

Sitting in the home of a sister in Overland, Joie last night announced that he intended to run in a special match race to be held in some Eastern city, probably New York, against Paavo Nurmi, the Finnish champion, and Juan Zabala, Argentine winner of the marathon event in the Olympic games held at Los Angeles last summer.

This race, which is expected to be held some time this winter, will mark Zabala's desertion of the amateur ranks, which Nurmi and Ray forsook some years ago. Hugo Quist, Eastern sportsman, is said to be the promoter of the event, which will be at the regulation marathon distance, 26 miles and 209 yards.

Nurmi, according to Ray, now is in Europe but is expected to sail for the United States soon.

Touching on the subject of professionalism, Joie said the Fates had not been any too kind to him in his ventures thus far.

"When I first turned 'pro' in 1928, I made a few thousand dollars through Tex Rickard's promotions," he said, "but the purses soon fell off and races became too few. Then I started on this marathon novelty stuff."

He told o fhis experiences as a long-distance dancer and of his earning $3000 for his first attempt at Newark, where he danced 104 days. Then he went to Atlantic City, where he danced five full months and got only $900. After that he entered a New York event and drew only $300 for dancing more than two months.

"Why I even ran against some horses for six days and nights at Philadelphia," said Joie, intimating that his remuneration in that venture was nothing to brag about, either."

Ray said he did not blame Tilden, Vines, Bausch or any other athlete for turning professional if he could get a livelihood out of athletics.

"I really made more money as an amateur than as a pro," Ray said, revealing the fact that he quite often was paid as high as $300 for running in meets where his expenses totaled only about $50.

He also said that on several occasions he had seen the athletes line up for their pay envelopes following track events in the East.

"I know that some of the boys who lived in Newark got as high as $25 for competing in meets at New York and it only cost 20 cents to go from one city to the other," Ray said.

Ray established several world records in his career but all have been surpassed in recent years. Ray's best race was the one-mile run, his fastest time in this event being 4 min. 12 secs.

After spending a few days here, he will return to his home at Gary, Ind., where he will take up serious training for his comeback campaign.

GUNNERS PLAY CINCINNATI, OF NAT'L LEAGUE

Realizing that a victory would enable them to gain national recognition in gridiron circles, Coach Gwinn Henry's St. Louis Gunners will oppose the Cincinnati Reds, of the National League, in a professional football contest this afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium. The game starts at 2:30 o'clock.

The Henrymen have defeated the Des Moines All-Stars, 21 to 0, and the Chicago Shamrocks, 7 to 6, and tied the Memphis Tigers 13 to 13, and the Oklahoma City Chiefs, 0-0, in game to date, but the contest with the Reds is regarded as a tougher assignment.

However, in all their contests this season, the Gunners outgained, outplayed and outsmarted their opposition and although the scores were close on several occasions Henry's gridders appeared to be many times stronger than the enemy.

The former Missouri University coach believes he has his combination clicking to perfection and looks forward to his huskies playing their best football of the season at the expense of the Reds.

Bausch With Visitors.

Cincinnati, by the way, is depending on virtually the same players who held the powerful Pittsburgh Pirates scoreless last week and lost a thrilling 3 to 0 verdict to the Chicago Cardinals.

The Reds have two great fullbacks in Jim Bausch, Olympic decathlon runner, and Lester Corzine, a product of Davis Elkins. Each excels in line plunging and running through broken fields, in addition to being dependable blockers. Bausch, though an outstanding football player at Kansas University, broke into the limelight when he won the decathlon championship in the Olympic games last summer in Los Angeles. He is also a baseball and basketball player of renown.

Gil Lefebvre, diminutive Gunner back last season, will be playing against his old teammates. Lefebvre and Lewis Pope, Purdue flash, will form the halfback duo for the invaders. Each has ripped off numerous long runs in National League competition this season. Lefebvre built up a huge local following last season.

A husky with several years of big league experience, Meyers Clark of Ohio State is the Reds' signal caller and he has been the main cog in the Ohio machine this season.

The Reds' Line.

The invaders also boast of numerous grid celebrities on the line, for Lloyd Burdick, 257-pound tackle from Illinois University; Hilary Lee, one of Coach Henry's proteges from the Big Six Conference, and John Rogers, ex-Notre Dame center, are included among the Reds' front wall men. Other regular linemen are Joe Crackes, South Dakota, and Jim Mooney, Georgetown, ends; George Munday, Emporia, tackle, and Les Caywood, St. John's College, guard.

The Gunners will have their full strength for the game with the National Leaguers, with the exception of Ray Jennsion, guard, who is on the shelf with an injured shoulder. His place will be manned by the tiny but scrappy Homer Reynolds, a Tulsa University boy. Guard Leonard McGirl, Tackles Sandy Sandburg and Marion Broadstone, Center Eddie Kawal and Ends Bob Gonya and Charley Malone are in tip-top shape.

Although he has Don Moses and Bill Senn playing like first-string backs, Coach Henry will start his regular quartet of Quarterback Joe Spudich, Fullback Swede Johnston and Halfbacks Dick Frahm and John Breidenstein. Blake Workman, a newcomer from Tulsa University, and Cowboy Kyle also will be used in the ball-carrying department before the game is completed.

AUTOPSY INDICATES HORSE WHICH FELL DEAD WAS NOT DOPED

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 28.—After an autopsy today, Dr. Henry J. McCarthy, veterinarian to the Maryland State Racing Commission, said there was no superficial indications that Rapscallion had been subjected to doping.

Dr. McCarthy said he would be surprised if the chemical examination disclosed the use of narcotics.

MICHIGAN RUNS UP 28-0 SCORE ON CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Chicago proved to be just an old-fashioned Maroon team against the mighty Michigan eleven today, with the Wolverines registering an overwhelming 28-to-0 triumph in their march toward a fourth Western Conference gridiron championship.

What had been called the best Chicago team in years was nothing more than a straw man, which the Wolverines proceeded to kick apart in the first few minutes of the game. In less than four minutes of play, the alert Wolverines, powerful in line rushing, deceptive and accurate in passing, had scored a touchdown, and a few minutes later banged across with another.

Then the Michigan attack slowed down until the fourth period, when another passing attack doubled the score, the Wolverines providing a real thrill for their final marker when Bill Renner, Wolverine quarterback with a mighty throwing arm, tossed a 33-yard pass to Louis Westover, who caught the ball over his shoulders and stepped over the goal line.

Stan Fay, Michigan captain, scored the first touchdown on the first seven plays of the game, and Herman Everhardus the second a few minutes later. Renner went over for the third goal early in the final period and hurled the long pass that gave Westover his chance late in the game. All the Michigan place-kicks for the extra points were good.

Two fumbles by Leeper, Purple left half and safety man, on the same play in the first quarter gave Ohio an unearned touchdown.

A bad pass from Hajek, Northwestern center, in the second quarter, gave the Buckeyes their second marker. Both attempts at goal failed.

Warburton's 60-Yard Run Gives Trojans, 6-3, Victory Over California

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 28.—A Trojan "will o' the wisp" known as Irvin Warburton popped out of a tangle of arms and legs today to dash 60 yards to the goal and bring a 6 to 3 victory for Southern California over California's Bears.

Seventy thousand wildly cheering fans had sat through three full periods and five minutes of the final quarter on what appeared destined to be an amazing reversal of form and the first defeat of the Trojan forces in 27 games. The Bears were battling their traditional football foes on better than even terms by the margin of a field goal scored by Arleigh Williams, sub halfback, in the first period.

It was a cutback play. Warburton headed toward the right. His cleats dug in and he was off toward the left. A hole opened in the line. The "big boys" of the Trojan ranks couldn't have squeezed through, but it was made to order for the "scooter."

Warburton swerved and dodged. Half a dozen eager Bear tacklers clutched at the little fellow. He seemed more slippery than a greased pig. Out in the open, the Trojan quarterback fairly flew. The Bears in pursuit had no chance against a player who is a good quarter miler.

Larry Stevens failed to kick the goal on the try for point, but Southern California's remarkable string of games without deefat had been raised to 27.

Hero to all the Trojans, Warburton also just narrowly missed becoming the "goat." Shortly before the close of the game, he misjudged a rolling punt and fumbled. Three Bears slid after the ball but Warburton's teammate, McNeish, subbing at left half, recovered on his own five-yard line.

Behind but still in the running, the Bears rushed Clemens so hard his punt from behind his line sailed out of bounds on the 16-yard mark. With scoring ground only a short distance away, California lost four yards on two line plays and then tried a place kick in an effort to at least tie the count. Williams dropped back to about the 27-yard line for the boot but the ball sailed to the right of the goal posts.

Washington Upsets Stanford, 6-0.

SEATTLE, Oct. 28.—Thirteen thousand rain-soaked Kibitzers saw 11 Washington Huskies go grand slamming with the Stanford Cards today, to make a new bid for the Pacific Coast Conference football championship. The score pad tallied Washington 6, Stanford 0.

Taking a tip from their neighbors, Oregon State, the 11 starting Huskies went through the battle without substitution. Only last Saturday the O. S. C. Beavers sprang the biggest upset of the season by holding the mighty Trojans of Southern California to a scoreless tie, using only 11 men.

The surprise victory came with two field goals planted between the Stanford uprights by Bill Smith, Washington's candidate for All-America end honors.

Smith booted the first in the opening quarter after the Huskies had been stopped on the Cardinals' six-inch line on the fourth down and the second in the third quarter. Jay Hornbeak, Washington quarterback, held the pigskin for both attempts.

Both kicks traveled approximately 35 yards.

OREGON STATE DEFEATS WASHINGTON STATE, 2-0

CORVALLIS, Ore., Oct. 28.—A blocked punt which rolled behind the end zone in the second period gave Oregon State College a 2-to-0 victory over the Cougars from Washington State here today.

Coach Lon Stiner's Oregon Staters thus stayed at the top of the Pacific Coast conference standings. They have yet to suffer defeat this year.

The eleven "iron men," who last week fought the University of Southern Californian Trojans to a standstill battled together again until a spine injury took out William Tomscheck, left tackle, just after the winning play. He was replaced by Stanley McClurg. It was the only substitution for O. S. C. in the game.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 28.—A hard-running, hard-riding Army team swarmed all over Yale to win their annual game this afternoon by a score of 21 to 0, the Blue seldom being dangerous and never having a chance to get its hands up. A crowd of 50,000 featuring the traditional pomp and ceremony peculiar to this occasion, reveled in the Army's show of power and deftness. Buckler's brilliant punting, first putting the Cadets in a position to score and his dazzling pass to Brown for 42 yards, produced the desired result in the early minutes before the Blue had a chance to settle down to the business at hand.

While Yale was still doing a little settling down, the Army promptly went on to another touchdown, short gains by Buckler and Johnson being interspersed with passes to get down inside the six-yard line, from which point Johnson broke off center for the second score.

The third was produced by a pass from Buckler to Grove for 45 yards while the stunned Yale defense was caught flat on its feet.

HOCKEY MAN BEGINS SUIT FOR $250,000

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Preliminary papers in a suit for $250,000 against James Norris, Chicago broker and owner of the Red Wings, Detroit hockey team, were filed today by Thomas J. Shaughnessy, former manager of the disbanded Chicago Shamrocks.

Attorney Richard S. Tuthill, Shaughnessy's lawyer, said the suit involved a deal made at the time the Red Wings team was organized.

Shaughnessy will contend in the suit, Tuthill said, he has not received compensation due him for his services in forming the Detroit team.

neth Ormiston, a guard, paved the way for a 35-yard march to Pitt's second tally. It required only three plays, a pass from O'Dell to Sebastian, for 18 yards, and a 14-yard dash by Weisenbach, who then plunged the remaining three yards to the goal and kicked the extra point.

The "breaks" were rapid and frequent throughout the last half, but Pittsburgh's defense up forward, as well as its ability to interrupt aerial attacks, proved decisive in keeping Notre Dame from scoring. Pitt intercepted five enemy passes at critical moments and knocked down as many others.

In the final quarter, after O'Dell had broken up Notre Dame's first real threat by intercepting a short pass on Pitt's 10, the Irish gave their supporters a thrill with a sweep to the Panther eight-yard line, touched off by a 54-yard return of a punt by Andy Pilney, substitute back.

This put the ball on Pitt's 33. A pass, Lukats to Banas, gained 19 yards and another missed a touchdown by inches when Mazziotti raced into the end zone only to have the ball skid off his fingers. Pitt was penalized, giving Notre Dame another chance with the ball on the opposing eight-yard line, but Ormiston intercepted the next pass a few seconds before the final whistle.

six were enough for the Bulldogs.

While the Bears had a wide margin in yards gained from scrimmage, Drake could have made the score rather one-sided if the wing men had been able to hold a few of the passes which were almost caught.

Early in the first quarter, after three line plays failed to net first down from the 20-yard line, Wieland made a pass straight into the arms of Frank Smith, the Drake left end, but Smith, standing in the end zone, muffed the ball and the Bears took it on their 20-yard line.

Three or four other passes found potential receivers uncovered by the Bears, but each time the Bull dogs muffed.

Drake's Blunders.

Drake did not go through the game without a blunder and had the last desperate drive of the Bears netted a touchrown, the Bulldogs would have gone home mourning over the high cost of quarterback mistakes. The visitors had the ball deep in the Bears' territory, with a couple downs to go, when an unwisely conceived forward pass was intercepted by Tutinsky of the Bears, but the battle ended before Washington could profit by the blunder.

Frederickson, Wolf, Brown and Tutinsky did their share at ball-carrying and in the line John Lamb, the sophomore who pushed the husky Ciarniello to the bench, was the best tackle on the field. He and the ubiquitous Gus Erspamer were in every play and made many a Bulldog bite the turf of Francis Field.

And when these sophomores grow into juniors and seniors and the Messrs. Hudgens, Gibbons, Brungard and other freshmen advance to carry the banner for Dear Old Washington, Jimmy Conzelman and the irrepressible Gale Bullman won't have to talk about what might have been, after games with teams like the Drake Bulldogs.

DARK SECRET VICTOR IN CLOSING HANDICAP AT LAUREL

Coming from behind 50 yards from the wire, the four-year-old thoroughbred finished with a burst of speed that carried him across the line half a length in front of Albert C. Bostwick's Mate.

In third place was Cornelius V. Whitney's Mad Frump, which ran a surprising race that beat the remainder of the sterling field, including George D. Widener's Jamestown, Sylvester W. Labrot's Tred Avon and the Brookmeade Stable's Inlander.

The race brought $8575 to the winner.

In the other feature of the day's racing, the Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap, E. R. Bradley's Bazaar was victorious, bringing in a purse of $3015 in the $2500 added race.

The Brookmeade Stable's Cavalcade was second and the Belair Stud's Vicar was third. This race was for juveniles over a mile course. The Washington Handicap was for three-year-olds and over and the distance was a mile and a quarter.

Mate was a slight favorite over Dark Secret in the Washington handicap. Jamestown, third as a favorite, and known as a sprinter, took an early lead.

He was unable to hold the pace, however, and by the time the mile mark was reached Sylvester W. Labrot's Tred Avon, winner last year, was running ahead of the pack, a neck in front of Jameston. Tred Avon held this lead around the turn and coming into the stretch.

Bazaar Gets Good Start.

At this point, Mate and Dark Secret both accelerated their pace, Mate going to the fore. After the last sixteenth pole had been passed, Hank Mills, riding Dark Secret, pushed his mount ahead and finished in the good time of 2:02 4-5.

The start of the Spalding Low Jenkins Handicap was very favorable to Bazaar, which lunged just as the starter gave the "Go" signal, thus getting away to a running start. Bazaar was always within striking distance of the leader and went in front on the stretch.

Mareno to Meet Arthur Pierson at South Broadway

The South Broadway Atheltic Club will ring up the curtain Tuesday night on a new season of amateur boxing activity, with four special bouts heading a program that has drawn entries from 30 scrappers, who will draw for pairings in the open events. With several additional entries in prospect tourney officials expect the card to provide 10 contests.

Matchmaker Willie Miller complated the feature portion of the program with the announcement last night that he has paired Sam Moreno of the South Broadway team, and Arthur Pierson of the E-K Athletic Club, in a special featherweight event. Moreno showed real promise in tourney competition last year and he is now being groomed by Coach Joe Weber to try for title honors in his class. Pierson numbered Victor Gimarino, a former Mississippi Valley A. A. champion, among the topnotch amateurs he defeated last year.

Beauhold, now an unattached contestant, will meet Al Brenot of the Jefferson A. C., while the other lightweight match brings Wilbur, a teammate of Brenot, against Bob Pashalian, a rugged young South Broadway ringman.

SPORT SALAD

How Come?

IN baseball we are rated high,
In fact we are top liners,
Which often makes us wonder why
We're in the football minors.

The Old Album.

IF there's one thing that makes me wild
It is my picture as a child.
Those golden curls and velvet knickers
Provoke a violent fit of snickers.

"Moran Hasty, Harridge Says."

Call 'em as you see em' not before.

Billy Hack, the well an favorably known Memphis explorer, is the guy who discovered Bill Terry, unless some obscure claimant can prove to the contrary. It was a nice piece of work. We don't know where Charley Barrett was when all this was going on, but a guy can't be everywhere at the same time.

We don't want to take anything away from Carl Hubbell, but if you want to get a general idea of how valuable a man is to his team, try to buy "Chuck" Klein.

Of course, we understand that this is the football season but during the week when there is no football there is no law against dropping an occasional remark about our favorite outdoor sport, baseball. Anyhow, it won't be long until the Hot Stove League gets under way.

Ruth's passing is said to mean the return to strategy and speed.

Now that sounds something like football, as there is only one Ruth, it evidently refers to baseball.

Off hand we should say that the passing of Ruth is strategy of the highest degree. Especially when the bases are loaded and none out.

Don McCorkindale, the 190-pound Scotchman from South Africa, may not be a knocker-out but he ought to win many close decisions.

Phil Weintraub, reserve outfielder of the New York Giants, didn't even see the series but he contributed no little to his team's victory. It comes out now that when Mel Ott clinched the series with that homer he used Weintraub's bat. Nice work, Phil!

Like almost every ball player, Bill Terry started as a pitcher. But it didn't take Bill long to discover that he wasn't a good pitcher. So one day when covering first base on a play he discovered that he was a pretty good first baseman and decided to stay there.

"Disbarred Lawyer Asks for Reversal."

As Goldsmith says, he hasn't lost his skill,
"For e'en though vanquished he can argue still."

"Rumor Places Cronin's Pay at $25,000."

Why not? The Dame doesn't have to pay it.

It begins to look as though it will take the last game of the season to determine the football championship.

Which means that the Hot Stove League will have to mark time until about the first of January, as Thanksgiving day is just another Thursday in the football calendar.

Overweights—Pomposity 1. Scratched—Inlander.

QUEL JEU WINS FINAL FEATURE AT EMPIRE CITY

By the Associated Press.

EMPIRE CITY RACETRACK, Oct. 28.—With the running of the get-away card here this afternoon, New York racing went into cold storage for the winter, with only the one-day United Hunts meeting left to top off the regular season.

The Keystone Purse, at about six furlongs, headed the final program. Quel Jeu and Irene's Bob, coupled in the betting at the prohibitive odds of 1 to 8, had no difficulty running one-two. Harold Thurber, leading rider at the meeting, brought, Quel Jeu, from the Arden Farms, home by a half length, but the victory was an easy one. G. M. Odom's Irene's Bob beat H. T. Archibald's Westy Junior by a length and a half for the place award.

Quel Jeu made the good time of 1:09 4-5 without ever being pressed for his best.

With very little speculating being done on the feature, the crowd sat back and enjoyed the perfect weather while Irene's Bob jumped into a wide lead, with My Purchase and Quel Jeu in close pursuit. Thurber brought his mount around the leaders turning for home. Quel Jeu was much the best and quickly overtaking My Purchase, he just as easily disposed of Irene's Bob in the closing strides. Westy Junior finished well to be third.

W. & J. Holds Carnegie Tech To Scoreless Tie

The sturdy W. & J. eleven not only outpointed and out-first-downed Carnegie, but put on the only serious scoring threat of the fray, a 70-yard third-period march that collopsed only when a forward pass grounded in the end zone.

Tech never got started against the fast-charging Presidents' line. Its last desperate scoring attempt failed as Captain Red Stewart's deep-angled placement kick went wide of its mark in the final minute of play.

Entering the game as favorite, Carnegie, victor over Temple, Xavier and Notre Dame in successive contests, could not match the W. & J. aggressiveness. The Presidents gained 193 yards to 173 for Tech, and made 13 first downs to Tech's 9.

Twenty-one thousand saw the game.

GEORGIA RUNS AROUND NEW YORK U. ENDS FOR 25-0 VICTORY

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 28.—Skirting New York University's ends almost at will, the University of Georgia celebrated homecoming today by crushing the Violets on their first invasion of the South today, 25 to 0.

The Bulldogs of the South scored in three of the four periods. The Violets held them scoreless in the third. Today's victory gave three wins to two in the annual contest with the Northerners.

McKENDREE WINS OVER SHURTLEFF, 6-0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALTON, Ill., Oct. 28.—The Bearcats of McKendree College defeated Shurtleff 6 to 0 at the Pioneer's homecoming today.

A drive in the third period carried the ball down the field and W. Rauth, scored after catching a forward pass from Fulkerson.

This was the seventeenth game between the two since 1916. The Pioneers gained more ground, showing nine first downs to McKendree's seven, but the Bearcats had a more effective pass attack. Abbott's 65-yard run was the Shurtleff feature while Wilson led the McKendree attack.

Michigan State Wins, 27-3, Over Syracuse Eleven

By the Associated Press.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 28.—Making its initial bid of the season for Eastern recognition, Michigan State College defeated Syracuse University, 27 to 3, today before a homecoming crowd of 10,000 persons.

State entered the game the underdog, trailed to the tune of 3 to 0 for the first half and then executed a thrilling reversal of form and pounded out four touchdowns.

Syracuse twice marched to within scoring distance in the first period. The last drive ended on State's 10-yard line, from where Joe Vavra kicked a placement. State's backs seemingly were unable to make any headway either by plunging or passing.

State's first touchdown came in the third period, when Al Kircher, the ambidextrous quarterback, stood on the Syracuse 10-yard line and passed to Klewicki, who caught the ball on the Syracuse goal line. McCrary kicked the goal.

Warmbein emerged as the star of the final period, scoring two touchdowns. The first was on a wide left-end sweep and the second was a spectacular 70-yard gallop behind brilliant blocking. McCrary scored the final touchdown, going through the Orange line for 15 yards.

The defeat was a severe blow to Syracuse, whose team came to East Lansing undefeated and cherishing dreams of national honors. It was the second straight year that State has defeated the Easterners.

The Western Military Academy's B team won by a 26-0 score, while the C game ended in a 7—7 tie, in the double-header with Principia yesterday morning at Taylor Field. In the first period of the "B" game the Cadets scored 13 points, Rest making both touchdowns. In the second quarter Callahan, substitute quarterback, scored from the 10-yard line. The last touchdown came in the final period, Thorgsen crossing the goal line.

Principia was the first to score in the "C" game. In the opening period Ruf of the Page Avenue team, ran 15 yards to end a 50-yard march. In the same period Western recovered a blocked punt and then a pass from Latham to Latham on a spread formation was good for the score. In the last quarter Principia was within one yard from Western's goal, but the game ended before it could take advantage of its position. By virtue of the tie, Western and Principia are still in a deadlock for the lead in the C division.

Illinois Harriers Lose.

NORMANDY WINS 21 TO 7 OVER WEBSTER GROVES

Scoring a touchdown in every quarter except the first, Normandy High School's football team won its first County League victory yesterday afternoon at Webster Groves, defeating the Statesmen, 21 to 7. Normandy has a .333 percentage, while Webster dropped to the mark.

Coach Jim Major's boys outrushed, outpassed and outkicked Webster throughout the game. With Eddie Haefler and Harold Tracy running wild, the team found little trouble in piling up 17 first downs to Webster's two, one of which was made on the touchdown drive.

First to score for the winners was Haefler. An 80-yard march led to the touchdown. When they reached the four-yard mark, Bill Green slipped Haefler to a lateral and the Normandy star dived through the line for the score. He also kicked the point.

A 70-yard drive preceded Normandy's second touchdown. A long pass, Doug Haines to Tracy, was good for 37 yards and put the boys a yard away from the goal, Tracy plunging for the six points. Haefler again kicked the point.

Both teams counted once in the final quarter. Late in the third Paul Peterson of Webster intercepted a pass and ran from the 35 to the 10-yard line. On the fourth down Morgan Coggeshall went around right end to score. Kenny Robins kicked the point.

Normandy's last touchdown drive was a long, drawn out affair. Without losing the ball they chewed off 60 yards to the Webster "six." Webster was penalized five yards for too many timeouts. Normandy was penalized 15 on the next play for roughing, and then Haefler tossed a pass to Green, who stumbled across the goal line. Again Haefler converted the point.

BURROUGHS "B" TIES AND "C" TEAM WINS FROM COUNTRY DAY

The John Burroughs B and the Country Day B football teams played a scoreless tie in an APS League game played yesterday morning on the Brown Road field. The Burroughs C team marched to their first victory of the year by a 7-0 score, in the other game.

In the second half of the "B" game, Country Day made a long march, completing two long passes and a nice run, but the Burroughs defense tightened on its 10-yard line. Toney and Scudder were outstanding for Burroughs while Lindsey starred in the Red and White line.

The only score in the "C" game came after Simmons of Burroughs punted out on the one-yard line. Codasco kicked out of immediate danger but Lawry passed to Fraise on the next play for the touchdown. Another pass, from Lawry to Capt. Buder, was good for the extra point.

The Post-Dispatch's second annual free bowling school, personally conducted by Mrs. Floretta McCutcheon, the woman's world champion, will open next Thursday, Nov. 2. Last season these lessons proved highly successful, many new bowlers being in the games this year as a result of the nine days of free instructions under the world's best among the women. These lessons were conducted at three alleys.

However, there will be even more opportunities for the novices this season, since instructions will be given at five alleys in different parts of the city, and will last for 14 days.

While the instruction will be primarily for beginners, the classes are open to all women bowlers. The lessons should be of great value even to bowlers of some experience, because of the inside knowledge Mrs. McCutcheon is able to impart.

All women, especially novices, are invited to enter these classes, which will be conducted without charge to the entrant, either for the lesson or for the use of the alleys.

Time of Instructions.

If you are interested, clip out the accompanying entry blank, specifying the time you desire to bowl, and mail it to one of the five following alleys, which is most convenient to you:

MELENE RECREATION, 4800 Natural Bridge, Nov. 2, 10:30 a. m., 1:30 p. m. and 3 p. m.; Nov. 3, 10:30 a. m., 1:30 p. m. and 3 p. m.; Nov. 4, 1:30 and 3 p. m.

ARWAY RECREATION, 4923 Arsenal street, Nov. 6, 1:30 a. m., 3 and 4:15 p. m.; Nov. 7, 1:30, 3 and 9 p. m.

MIDTOWN BOWLING, INC., 3630 Olive street, Nov. 9, 1:30, 3 and 4:15 p. m.; Nov. 10, 1:30, 3 and 8 p. m.; Nov. 11, 2 and 3:15 p. m.

HEIDEL'S BOWLING ALLEYS, 3035A Park avenue, Nov. 12, 2:30 and 4 p. m.; Nov. 16, 2, 3:30 and 5 p. m.

VESCOVO'S UNIVERSITY CITY RECREATION, 6661 Delmar, Nov. 13, 10:30 a. m., 2 and 3:30 p. m.; Nov. 14, 10:30 a. m., 2 and 3:30 p. m.; Nov. 15, 10:30 a. m. and 2 p. m.

The lessons will take up all phases of bowling from the women's viewpoint. The world champion's course includes a lecture on bowling as well as personal instruction in handling the ball and how to bowl. While the fundamentals can be taught in a single lesson, women are privileged to return for subsequent instruction during Mrs. McCutcheon's course.

Will Roll in Exhibitions.

In addition to giving her instructions here last season, held at the Melene, Arway and Midtown alleys, Mrs. McCutcheon has appeared in St. Louis in competition on several occasions, while her feats in the tenpin game are known throughout the country. At each of the alleys at which Mrs. McCutcheon will give instructions this year she will appear in an exhibition. These are scheduled as follows: Nov. 4, at Melenes, 8 p. m.; Nov. 5, at Arway, 8 p. m.; Nov. 11, at Midtown, 8 p. m.; Nov. 12, at Heidel's, 8 p. m.; Nov. 15, at Vescovos, 8 p. m.

Mrs. McCutcheon, during her bowling career, has rolled eight perfect games of 300. That this is no feat of small importance is understood when it can be truthfully said that many famous men bowlers go through an entire career without ever rolling a perfect game. Five of the woman champion's 300 games came while rolling in special matches.

She has a high three-game exhibition record of 822, rolled at Morris, Minn. She has another series of 813 to her credit, while on more than 50 occasions she has gone over the 700 mark, which in itself is an average of better than 233 a game.

Has Been Bowling Eight Years.

Mrs. McCutcheon has been bowling only eight years. She went into the game at her home in Pueblo, Colo., originally to reduce. Almost immediately she discovered she had a special knack for the game and since then she has made it her life's work.

She has been on the "road" for six years preaching the doctrine of bowling for women.

The services of this marvel of the bowling world will be at your complete disposal, ladies, beginning Thursday, Nov. 2, through the cooperation of prominent alleys and the Post-Dispatch. NORMANDY WINS 21 TO 7 OVER WEBSTER GROVES

Scoring a touchdown in every quarter except the first, Normandy High School's football team won its first County League victory yesterday afternoon at Webster Groves, defeating the Statesmen, 21 to 7. Normandy has a .333 percentage, while Webster dropped to the mark.

Coach Jim Major's boys outrushed, outpassed and outkicked Webster throughout the game. With Eddie Haefler and Harold Tracy running wild, the team found little trouble in piling up 17 first downs to Webster's two, one of which was made on the touchdown drive.

First to score for the winners was Haefler. An 80-yard march led to he touchdown. When they reach he four-yard mark, Bill Gre slipped Haefler to a lateral and the Normandy star dived through the ine for the score. He also kicked he point.

A 70-yard drive preceded Normandy's second touchdown. A long ass, Doug Haines to Tracy, was ood for 37 yards and put the boys yard away from the goal, Tracy lunging for the six points. Haefer again kicked the point.

Both teams counted once in the inal quarter. Late in the third Paul Peterson of Webster intercepted a ass and ran from the 35 to the 0-yard line. On the fourth down Morgan Coggeshall went around ight end to score. Kenny Robins icked the point.

Normandy's last touchdown rive was a long, drawn out affair. Without losing the ball they chewed ff 60 yards to the Webster "si Webster was penalized five yards or too many timeouts. Normandy as penalized 15 on the next play or roughing, and then Haefier ossed a pass to Green, who stumled across the goal line. Again aefler converted the point.

The Post-Dispatch's second annual free bowling school, personally conducted by Mrs. Floretta McCutcheon, the woman's world champion, will open next Thursday, Nov. 2. Last season these lessons proved highly successful, many new bowlers being in the games this year as a result of the nine days of free instructions under the world's best among the women. These lessons were conducted at three alleys.

However, there will be even more opportunities for the novices this season, since instructions will be given at five alleys in different parts of the city, and will last for 14 days.

While the instruction will be primarily for beginners, the classes are open to all women bowlers., The lessons should be of great value even to bowlers of some experience, because of the inside knowledge Mrs. McCutcheon is able to impart.

All women, especially novices, are invited to enter these classes, which will be conducted without charge to the entrant, either for the lesson or for the use of the alleys.

Time of Instructions.

If you are interested, clip out the accompanying entry blank, specifying the time you desire to bowl, and mail it to one of the five following alleys, which is most convenient to you:

MELENE RECREATION, 4800 Natural Bridge, Nov. 2, 10:30 a. m., 1:30 p. m. and 3 p. m.; Nov. 3, 10:30 a. m., 1:30 p. m. and 3 p. m.; Nov. 4, 1:30 and 3 p. m.

ARWAY RECREATION, 4923 Arsenal street, Nov. 6, 1:30 a. m., 3 and 4:15 p. m.; Nov. 7, 1:30, 3 and 9 p. m.

MIDTOWN BOWLING, INC., 3630 Olive street, Nov. 9, 1:30, 3 and 4:15 p. m.; Nov. 10, 1:30, 3 and 8 p. m.; Nov. 11, 2 and 3:15 p. m.

HEIDEL'S BOWLING ALLEYS, 3035A Park avenue, Nov. 12, 2:30 and 4 p. m.; Nov. 16, 2, 3:30 and 5 p. m.

VESCOVO'S UNIVERSITY CITY RECREATION, 6661 Delmar, Nov. 13, 10:30 a. m., 2 and 3:30 p. m.; Nov. 14, 10:30 a. m., 2 and 3:30 p. m.; Nov. 15, 10:30 a. m. and 2 p. m.

The lessons will take up all phases of bowling from the women's viewpoint. The world champion's course includes a lecture on bowling as well as personal instruction in handling the ball and how to bowl. While the fundamentals can be taught in a single lesson, women are privileged to return for subsequent instruction during Mrs. McCutcheon's course.

Will Roll in Exhibitions.

In addition to giving her instructions here last season, held at the Melene, Arway and Midtown alleys, Mrs. McCutcheon has appeared in St. Louis in competition on several occasions, while her feats in the tenpin game are known throughout the country. At each of the alleys at which Mrs. McCutcheon will give instructions this year she will appear in an exhibition. These are scheduled as follows: Nov. 4, at Melenes, 8 p. m.; Nov. 5, at Arway, 8 p. m.; Nov. 11, at Midtown, 8 p. m.; Nov. 12, at Heidel's, 8 p. m.; Nov. 15, at Vescovos, 8 p. m.

Mrs. McCutcheon, during her bowling career, has rolled eight perfect games of 300. That this is no feat of small importance is understood when it can be truthfully said that many famous men bowlers go through an entire career without ever rolling a perfect game. Five of the woman champion's 300 games came while rolling in special matches.

She has a high three-game exhibition record of 822, rolled at Morris, Minn. She has another series of 813 to her credit, while on more than 50 occasions she has gone over the 700 mark, which in itself is an average of better than 233 a game.

Has Been Bowling Eight Years.

Mrs. McCutcheon has been bowling only eight years. She went into the game at her home in Pueblo, Colo., originally to reduce. Almost immediately she discovered she had a special knack for the game and since then she has made it her life's work.

She has been on the "road" for six years preaching the doctrine of bowling for women.

The services of this marvel of the bowling world will be at your complete disposal, ladies, beginning Thursday, Nov. 2, through the cooperation of prominent alleys and the Post-Dispatch. Send in your entry blank today, either to the alleys named or to the Bowling School Editor of the Post-Dispatch, Twelfth boulevard and Olive street.

AUBURN IS VICTOR OVER TULANE, 13-7

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 28.—Tulane went down to defeat, 13 to 7, before Auburn here today.

With five minutes to go and the ball in midfield, Tulane opened a vicious attack that carried the ball to the five-yard line when the whistle blew ending the game.

Until the fourth quarter Auburn was clearly, the master, making Tulane's game appear listless and at times stupid.

Three Motorcycle And Five Auto Races at Ramona

The third weekly combination automobile and motorcycle racing program will begin this afternoon at 1 o'clock at Ramona Speedway, a half mile north of Natural Bridge on Carson road. Three motorcycle events will open the program, followed by five automobile races. In addition, there will be a novelty program of bicycle sprints, under the auspices of the Guarantee Bicycle Club of St. Louis.

The automobile races will be headlined by such well-known short track drivers as Red Campbell, Mac McCoy, Earl "Tex" Murray, who was injured in a spill last Sunday when his car turned two complete somersaults. Another entrant is Pete Alberts, East Side driver, who won the feature 50-lap race on the opening program at Ramona, besting Johnny Rogers, Benton driver, who also has filed his entry.

Officials announced that 12 cars would be on hand for the races, which are being held under the sanction of the Central Auto Racing Association. This means that drivers who have filed entries and do not appear, will not only forfeit their entrance money, but will be suspended from the racing association, which governs all Midwestern short tracks.

The Domyan brothers of East St. Louis, George and Steve, will be out to add to their laurels gained in two Sundays of competition on the motorcycle program. Ben Chesney, who finished first in last year's annual Savannah, Ga., 200-mile road race; "Sizzle" Baer and a newcomer, "Ted" Bolen of Alton, are also on the program.

The three motorcycle races will be sprints of six laps each. The automobile part of the program will start at 3 o'clock and include three 10-lap preliminary races, one 15-lap consolation race, and the final race of the day, which will go 35 laps.

BOBSLED WINS DERBY IN TEXAS BEFORE 27,000

By the Associated Press.

ARLINGTON DOWNS, Tex., Oct. 28.—Mrs. A. M. Creech's Bobsled, a black gelding, today won the first annual Texas Derby, a mile and a quarter run for 3-year-olds, at W. T. Waggoner's newly opened course here.

A crowd of 27,000 saw Bobsled outmaneuver Gay World, J. A. Nix's Chicago Derby entry winner, and a 7 to 1 favorite, in the three-horse race.

The winner ran the distance—the first time it has been contested over the one-mile oval—in 2:06 without being hard pressed. Jockey Wright was up.

Bobsled won by two lengths from Gay World. The Radio Stable's Justice B finished third by two more lengths.

Justice B was shot out of the gate fast, and led to the first turn, with Gay World easily in second place and Bobsled close on his heels. Jockey Wright swung to the outside and came back again to forge ahead on the final stretch.

With only three entries, there was no place or show price and Bobsled paid $6.20 to win.

Perfection and St. Louis Play De Molay Feature

Having scored a victory in the inaugural games last week, Coach Ralph Prinz's St. Louis Chapter, defending champions of the De Molay Football League, will be after its second triumph in the game with Perfection Chapter at Sisler's North End Park, this afternoon. The kickoff is set for 1:30 o'clock. Harmony and Carondelet meet in the second game.

The St. Louis-Perfection game should furnish most of the thrills. The teams are evenly matched in all departments. The Perfection, which was held to a 7-to-7 tie last week by Carondelet, should be at its best for the fray, having obtained the services of Bob Minkey and John Owens, half backs and members of last year's Soldan High School team. Frank Galine, who played center on Perfection's championship team, rejoined his mates earlier in the week. Coach Al Feldman also announced that he had released Ben Hian, Morris Padratzik, Al Bilotsky and Al Kolchinsky.

Coach Prinz has changed his lineup considerably. Fred Baltz, a newcomer, and "Mops" Patton, who tallied the lone touchdown against Harmony, will play the end positions, replacing Jim Wolf and Hamilton Card. Charles Cohen, guard, and Dave Howle, a half back, who have recovered from injuries, have also been named to start, replacing Dan Stewart, and George Aubeshon. Ralph Yeida may start at left tackle, with Julius Jouret, the regular at that position, moving to center in place of Holle Herlte.

With their sprained ankle and shoulders failing to respond to the treatment, Woody Knorr, tackle, and Bill Amelung, half back, will be forced to watch proceedings from the bench, as Carondelet seeks its first victory at the expense of Harmony.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 28.—Kansas State College's ever-threatening aerial offense produced one touchdown on a pass from Quarterback Lee Morgan to Oren Stoner, halfback, in the third period for a 6—0 victory over the University of Kansas in their thirty-first annual football clash here today.

The Wildcats from Kansas State took advantage of a momentary lapse on the part of the Jayhawkers for the only score. Stoner snatched the toss from Morgan early in the third quarter from the grasp of a Jayhawker in the end zone.

Griffin's try for extra point was wide, but the six-point advantage held to the end and Kansas never got inside the Wildcat 10-yard mark. A crowd of 17,000 witnessed the game.

CLAYTON ROLLS UP 34-0 SCORE ON ST. CHARLES

Clayton scored its second County League victory yesterday afternoon on its own field running up a 34 to 0 count against St. Charles, Bud Hanson accounting for three touchdowns and Leroy Litzsinger for the other two.

St. Charles held Clayton for the first period, Hanson broke loose twice in the second quarter, running 55 yards for the first touchdown and smashing through the line for the second score. Hanson made a 50-yard jaunt for his third touchdown of the afternoon and Litzsinger then took up the scoring duties. He matched Hanson's 50-yard dash in the third period and added a 27-yard run for a touchdown in the fourth.

Clayton's line was too strong for St. Charles' backs to penetrate, and the numerous passes St. Charles threw were seldom completed although they were in the arms of the receivers many times.

Clayton's victory places them in a fourth-place tie with Webster Groves in the league standings.

Post-Dispatch Free Boxing Class To Open Tomorrow; 500 Entered

First Instruction Under Benny Kessler Will Be Held at Buder Community Center.

Classes Will Be Conducted on Four Other Nights This Week — Boys From 12 to 21 Eligible.

BENNY KESSLER.

The Post-Dispatch boxing school, opening of which was postponed Thursday due to the illness of Boxing Instructor Benny Kessler, will begin tomorrow afternoon at Buder Community Center, California avenue between La Salle and Hickory streets.

Boys between the ages of 12 and 16 years will make up the first class and the instructions will be from 4 to 5 o'clock. At 7 to 8 o'clock Monday evening, boys from 16 to 21 years of age will receive their first instructions, also at Buder center.

Kessler has recovered from his illness and his brother, Harry, also is ready to lend a hand with the teaching.

The schedule for the rest of the week and for the subsequent weeks of the school, which will occupy some 10 weeks, is:

Tuesday—Mullanphy Playground, 7 to 8 p. m.

Wednesday—Sherman Park, 4 to 5 p. m. and 7 to 8 p. m.; Soulard, 7 to 8 p. m.

Thursday—Buder, 4 to 5 and 7 to 8 p. m.

Friday—Sherman Park, 4 to 5 and 7 to 8 p. m.; Soulard, 7 to 8 p. m.

Sunday—Mullanphy 10 to 11:30 a. m.

Boys of all weights between the ages of 12 and 16 are eligible for the afternoon classes and from 16 to 21 years of age for the evening classes.

Kessler an Experienced Teacher.

Benny Kessler is chairman of the boxing committee of the Western A. A. U. and has had a wide experience in amateur boxing, both as a boxer and as a teacher. In addition he is a boxing referee, licensed by the Missouri Athletic Commission.

More than 500 have filed entries for the classes and at the completion of the instruction period there will be two weeks of training, during which Kessler will instruct the boys between 16 and 21 in conditioning, diet, etc., to prepare them for the city-wide tournament with which the school will be climaxed. Eliminations for this tournament will be held at the community centers with the semi-finals and finals at some central point.

Kessler, in addition to his teaching, will write a series of articles which will appear in the Post-Dispatch twice each week.

As has been told, the purpose of the school will be to aid boys in building their bodies and to instill a spirit of good sportsmanship. To this end, fathers of the boys taking the instructions are urged to attend classes with their sons.

The school has the commendation of Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., and city officials also have shown their interest by announcing their intention to attend classes.

120 BOOTHS AT SCOUT MERIT BADGE SHOW

More booths than ever before have been arranged for the eighth annual Boy Scout Merit Badge Show to be held at the Arena Nov. 9 to 11. Two new features—a section of 17 booths demonstrating the First Class Scout Trail and a carnival section—have been added to the show.

The show, comprising 120 booths, 18 more than last year, will be officially opened at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, Nov. 9, by Walter W. Head, president of the National Boy Scout Council. Head, formerly of New York, came to St. Louis to assume the presidency of the General American Life Insurance Co. following the collapse of the Missouri State Life. He has been president of the national council since 1928.

The show will be repeated Friday night from 7:30 to 10 p. m., and on Saturday from 1 to 10 p. m. Each night there will be two performances of the "little theater," an annual feature of the show.

Scouting Trail Exhibit.

The first class scouting trail exhibit will endeavor to show the various steps through which a scout goes in advancing from a tenderfoot to a first class scout. It will supplement all the other demonstrations of scout activity.

It will begin with the scout oath and law, in which will be demonstrated by Home Heights Troop 1. Maplewood Troop 6, Valley School Parent-Teacher Association, will tie knots. Overland Troop 1 will explain the significance of the scout badge. After the candidate has fulfilled these requirements, he becomes a tenderfoot scout.

The second class scout station on the trail will include safety and first aid by Troop 95, Longfellow School; knife and ax work by Kirkwood Troop 5, Robinson School; elementary signaling by Troop 37, Hodgen Elementary School; methods of earning money and scout habits of thrift by Troop 113, Church of the Messiah; scout pace and the points of the compass by Troop 87, United Hebrew Temple; wilderness tracking by Troop 81.

The final steps in the trail, first class scouting, will embrace the judging of height, weight and distance by Webster Groves Troop 3; speed signaling by Troop 75, Washington School; cooking of hunter's stew and "twist-on-the stick" by Troop 17, First United Presbyterian Church; seven-mile hike and mapmaking by Kirkwood Troop 3, St. Peter's Catholic Church; first aid to the injured by Troop 100, South Side Lions Club; rustic handicraft by Troop 163, Curley Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Art T. Sheppard is chairman of the committee in charge of the exhibit. M. N. Leavitt, field executive of the suburban district, is working out technical details.

Carnival Section.

The carnival section will be set apart in one end of the Arena and will contain all the established carnival games, shooting galleries, archery and dart games, bagatelle and penny arcades.

Broadsides advertising the show and urging all scouts to persuade their parents to see the exhibits were sent out to the 10,000 scouts and cubs in the city last week. More than 50,000 tickets have been distributed among scouts and scout executives.

Troop Notes

NEGRO WHO REFUSED TO HALT SHOT BY TERMINAL DETECTIVE

He Was Carrying Basket of Stolen Battery Plates With Another Negro.

A Negro who said he was Bennie Parker, 24 years old, was shot and wounded Friday night by Edwin Reidel, Terminal Railroad detective, when Reidel discovered him and another Negro carrying a box of stolen battery plates and ordered them to halt.

The shooting occurred in the railroad yards near Theresa avenue. Reidel said that when he ordered the pair to halt, they dropped the box and ran, disregarding a shot fired into the air to warn them. Reidel fired two shots at the fugitives, one bullet hitting Parker in the thigh. The second man escaped.

Parker, according to police, denied he knew the plates were stolen but said he had gone into the yards when the other Negro asked him to "help carry a box of junk."

GREECE TO MAKE DECISION IN INSULL CASE TUESDAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATHENS, Oct. 28.—The five Greek Court of Appeals jurists who will hand down the decision in the United State's second demand for the extradition of Samuel Insull, after considering evidence in the hearing which closed yesterday, today set Monday for a special judicial meeting behind closed doors.

The final decision will be drawn up Tuesday, and well informed circles here, including the American Legation, believe the indicted former Chicago utilities magnate will be extradited.

The only possible loopholes, it is said, are conflicts in Greek and American laws. The defense counsel submitted a written brief after the close of the court yesterday pointing out:

1. That while transfer of funds of a corporation, while insolvent, is a penal offense in the United States, the opposite is true in Greece, and

2. That payment of dividends from capital instead of profits is a crime in Greece but not in the United States unless fraudulent intent is established to the satisfaction of the Court.

Insull is charged with both transfer of funds and payment of dividends from capital. The conflict in the law is a bare possibility of escape for him.

CITY TO BUY FIVE ODOR-PROOF GARBAGE COLLECTION TRUCKS

Special Bodies Designed by Department of Streets and Sewers.

A special body has been designed by the Department of Streets and Sewers for five new garbage collection motor trucks to be obtained by the city soon. Director McDevitt described it in a talk Friday night before the local chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, at the Engineers' Club.

The body is closed, with sliding doors, and is expected to prevent leakage and escape of odors. There will be a perforated false bottom to permit collection of moisture in a separate compartment. This will be drained before delivery of the garbage to the disposal contractor, who is paid on the basis of weight.

Extension of the use of modern sweepers and flushers for street cleaning is reducing the cost of this service, McDevitt related. He described increased efficiency and economy in the city's asphalt paving plant, in shoeing city horses and in maintenance of Street Division equipment.

In the past the department has not kept accurate track of the time its many employes worked, McDevitt charged, but he hopes to correct the condition. He said the department had no inventory of its belongings, although the law required one to be filed with the Comptroller every six months. More help would be needed to prepare it. McDevitt advocated appointment of assistants to four key executives in his department.

Henry West, Negro messenger for the Clerk of the Circuit Court, who was discharged last March for delivering a list of prospective jurors to a lawyer's office, died of a stomach disorder Friday at St. Mary's Infirmary. He was 53 years old and lived at 2653 Adams street.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Hennings said his death would not hamper the prosecution of Verne R. C. Lacy and Joseph W. Hartman, attorneys charged with corrupting a juror in the first trial of Paul Richards in the Alexander Berg kidnaping case.

Lacy was one of the attorneys in the office to which West took the jury list. He represented Richards in both of his trials, the second resulting in acquittal after the first jury had disagreed. Richards recently was disbarred for his part in the Berg case by the Missouri Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—F. A. Silcox of New York, was appointed today as chief of the United States Forest Service to succeed R. Y. Stuart who died Monday as the result of a fall. Silcox has been director of industrial relations of the New York Employing Printers' Association, but was described by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as a "professional forester."

PICHER, Ok., Oct. 28.—The mill of the Redskin zinc mine, one mile west of Picher, in Kansas, caught fire today. The derrick and sludge mill burned but firemen saved the jig mill. The loss was estimated at $20,000. Ernest Treece, 33, hoisterman, was burned severely.

DENIES SPEEDING UP MILLS TO BEAT CODE

President of Cotton Textile Institute Replies to Charges by Wallace.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, today took issue with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who yesterday charged flour and textile mills increased activity before wheat and cotton taxes and higher wages under the NRA became effective, and slowed down when the taxes and wages became effective.

Wallace's charge was made in connection with the Federal Reserve Board's monthly report stating industrial activity had slackened most noticeably "in industries in which processing taxes or codes have become effective recently."

"If this report (of Wallace's charges) is correct," a statement authorized by Sloan said, "then the secretary has been misinformed as to the facts.

"There was an enormous demand from buyers on the cotton mills for shipment of goods in May, June and July. That demand the mills, of course, met. It involved an important increase in the consumption of raw cotton. That the mills were not manufacturing during this period to do anything but fill orders is shown by two things:

"First, that cotton mill stocks in the aggregate, instead of heaping up, were reduced to the lowest point in years.

"Second, to say that the cotton mills were taking advantage of pre-code wages is squarely contradicted by the fact that this industry proposed its code providing for higher wages on the very day on which the President signed the National Recovery Act.

"Further, the fact is that without waiting until the actual effective date of the code, wage increases were made throughout the industry.

"If there had been any such spirit to chisel labor or to defeat the purposes of the President's program, this industry obviously would not have been the first to present and put its code into operation. The successful operation of the cotton textile code is a matter of record with the administration."

OKLAHOMA CONGRESSMEN ARE INDIGNANT AT ICKES

Marland Says He Was Told 40,000 in Drouth Area May Be Moved to California.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Some members of the Oklahoma congressional delegation were aroused today over a statement attributed to Secretary Ickes that the drouth-stricken area of the State should be turned back to the public domain.

Senator Thomas said the entire delegation would go to President Roosevelt next week for an explanation.

Representative Marland said Ickes made the statement in telling him there was no hope for administration approval of any of the proposed dams in the area.

Marland quoted Ickes as saying the Government contemplated moving 40,000 persons from the area, perhaps to some point along the All-American Canal, in California.

"It's preposterous," he added, pointing out families had lived there for decades and that there had been a drouth only the last two years.

Representatives Johnson said he took the matter up with President Roosevelt today. The President, he said, assured him of his esteem for Oklahoma and added he was certain Ickes made no such remark with serious intentions.

DEMANDS ON RED CROSS GROW

Changes in Laws Bring Requests from 411,124 Veterans.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Red Cross reported tonight that need among families of disabled veterans and peace-time service men arising from economic conditions and altered veterans' laws was taxing the organization's facilities "to the limit."

The section of the annual report covering this activiey showed that during the fiscal year ended last June 30, unemployment relief and other aid were given 411,124 former service men or families, and 7346 now in service. A total of 69,905 ex-service men or families, and 24,232 in service, were aided by national Red Cross camp, hospitals and liaison workers. Thousands of appeals to Red Cross chapters were reported received since the new compensation regulations went into effect last July 1.

A delegation of business men will leave St. Louis Tuesday morning on a special train for a three-day good will trip through north-central Missouri. The trip is sponsored by the Sales Managers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

With regard to Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations, he declared that action did not affect Russo-German relations, adding: "We did not expect Germany's or even Turkey's—our closest friends—entry into the League, nor do we now object to Germany's resignation."

WEEK IN U. S. ENOUGH, LITVINOFF THINKS

Soviet Negotiator in Berlin on Way to Confer With Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 28.—Maxim Litvinoff, here on his way from Mossow to Washington to confer with President Roosevelt, refuses to "anticipate future events," but thinks that "every new relationship established between two nations must to some degree affect the relations of all other countries."

The Soviet Foreign Commissar met American correspondents at the Soviet Embassy today soon after he arrived by train from Warsaw.

"I know you expect me to say something, but that's impossible at present," he declared after shaking hands all around. "Naturally, I am tremendously pleased at the cordial manner in which the American press of all shades greets the impending conference with Mr. Roosevelt, and I hope this good will continues."

He denied reports that the first Russian Ambassador to the United States had been chosen, refused to give information about his sailing plans, and expressed the opinion that a week in America should be enough to accomplish his mission.

He was asked about problems he and President Roosevelt will consider and the economic effect of recognition on the economic relations of the Soviet Union with other nations.

"So far as I am concerned," he replied, "everything could be settled in a half hour. We diplomats are afraid of knowing a future we don't want to know. Why anticipate?"

CHANGE OF VENUE GRANTED IN SUIT OVER LOBBY FEE

Hamp Rothwell of Clayton Charges Two Failed to Pay $200 Each For Defeat of Sewer Law.

A change of venue was granted by Justice of the Peace John Fahey at Ferguson yesterday in the case of Hamp Rothwell, Clayton attorney, who is suing to collect $400 for his services as lobbyist for repeal of the Ralph sewer law in 1931.

Rothwell said five St. Louis County business men agreed to pay him $200 each for his services and that H. E. Billman, president of the Rock Hill Quarry Co., and John Boland, cashier of the First National Bank of Clayton, have failed to keep their verbal contract.

John E. Mooney, president of the Taxpayers' Protective Association, and central figure in the successful fight for repeal of the sewer law, is representing Billman and Boland. Mooney also spent several months at Jefferson City in 1931. The suit has not been assigned to another court.

OPENINGS FOR VOLUNTEERS IN RECREATIONAL ACTIVITIES

Community Council Has Places for Leaders at Playgrounds and in Specialized Lines.

Several hundred volunteer workers could be placed immediately in recreational activities of various organizations in the Community Council, it was said yesterday by A. H. Wyman, assistant director of the council.

Many, he said, could be assigned to playgrounds as leaders of groups of children or adolescents, while others, with special hobbies such as music, art, manual training and games, would find interested boys and girls awaiting their direction.

Those desiring to take up volunteer service are to be enrolled through a special division of the Community Council recently organized for that purpose. That division, at 613 Locust street, is under the supervision of Mrs. Pearl Case Blough.

The Government will be asked to supply an additional $30,000 from public works funds.

DOOMED MAN ALSO GETS LIFE

Condemned Chicago Slayer Convicted on Second Charge.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Already under death sentence for the killing of a policeman, John Scheck was convicted by a jury tonight of another slaying and sentenced to life imprisonment. He was convicted on murder charges along with Carl Grundhoefer and Frank Keglovitz for the slaying of Harry J. Mueller, cashier of the National Bank of Niles Center, during a bank robbery on April 7. Grundhoefer got a life sentence and Keglovitz' term was set at 14 years in prison.

Several weeks ago Scheck, in a desperate attempt to escape from the criminal courts building after arraignment on the murder and bank robbery charges, shot and killed Policeman John Sevick. Scheck later was sentenced to death for the killing of Sevick.

COCHRAN FOR WHISKY AT $1.50 A QUART

Says If Taxes Are Too High Bootleggers Will Continue to Do Business.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Asserting that bootleggers will continue to thrive unless good whisky is legally obtainable at $1.50 a quart, Representative John J. Cochran (Dem.) of St. Louis said today that the Missouri Legislature could obtain more revenue from a tax of less than a dollar a gallon on spiritous liquors than from a tax above a dollar.

Cochran declared that it would be a serious mistake to have the combined Federal and state taxes amount to more than $3 a gallon. He said that he would urge the House Ways and Means Committee not to levy a tax in excess of $2.20 a gallon, which would leave an 80 cents a gallon tax available to the states.

"Whisky," Cochran said, "must be put within the reach of the man with a small income as well as the rich. Otherwise temperance will not benefit by the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"The present Federal liquor tax is $1.10 a gallon. A tax of $2.20 for the Federal Government, leaving 80 cents for the states, should be adopted. Government officials who have been administering liquor regulations for years inform me that such combined taxes would enable dealers to tell fine whisky for $1.50 a quart and still leave an excellent profit for the manufacturer as well as the distributer.

"To go beyond these taxes would mean an increase in price to the consumer. That must be avoided, or the consumer will continue to patronize bootleggers who will be able to sell at a low figure because they defraud the Federal and State governments of the legal taxes.

"Our State Legislature should give careful consideration to this question. It would certainly secure a larger revenue from a tax of less than a dollar than from a tax above that amount. In the last session of Congress some members advocated a tax of five and six dollars a gallon on whisky. Such a tax would only perpetuate the bootlegger and mean good whisky for the rich and moonshine for the man of moderate means.

"I have also discussed with Government officials the question of finding some way to keep the warehouses from being drained before Congress has an opportunity to increase the Federal tax. If it is possible to limit the amount withdrawn to actual needs until Congress acts, that should be done. Unless some action is taken there will be little good whisky left in warehouses when Congress meets. The whisky will have been withdrawn to escape the increase in tax.

"Officials are much concerned over this situation. They have the power to stop withdrawals by authorizing importations and I predict will do so unless the holders of the warehouse receipts agree not to drain the supply for the sole purpose of escaping the proposed tax."

PROCESSING TAXES ON RYE AND BARLEY CONSIDERED

Wallace Orders Aids to Study Question and Hearing Is Called for Thursday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Compensatory processing taxes on rye and barley appeared likely tonight incident to the Farm Adjustment Administration's attempt to get its $500,000,000 corn-hog control program under way before snow flies in the corn belt.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace ordered his aids to study the question of taxing the two grains. A hearing called for next Thursday to consider whether the processing tax on corn will put corn processors at a disadvantage with processors of other products also has broadened to include the processors of malt, rye and barley.

The corn tax will be levied, starting Nov. 5, at 28 cents a bushel. It will be collected from plants producing products from whisky to breakfast foods.

On Monday the administration will seek to determine at another hearing whether compensatory taxes should be levied on cattle, sheep, vegetables, oils, fish, poultry, eggs and similar products to offset any disadvantages to hog processors resulting from the hog processing tax, which also becomes effective Nov. 5. The hog tax will be at 50 cents a hundredweight at the outset, increased gradually to a maximum of $2 on Feb. 1.

The consideration was not disclosed, but the purchase was made subject to a $38,000 deed of trust, filed in this connection. The Sybillene Realty & Investment Co. was the grantor of the title. The building, comprising 20,000 square feet of floor space, has a lot frontage of 115 feet on Duncan, with a depth of 170 feet. It is served by Wabash tracks, which are available on the east and north sides of the property.

Milliken Chemical Co., manufactures of chemical drugs, as a nucleus of its St. Louis branch, which is under the management of E. F. Gillis.

The St. Louis branch will serve as a source of supply for the Southwest territory, including Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas, and for the South, including Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas and parts of Kentucky and Tennessee.

Large Apartment Sold.

Daniel C. Kerckhoff, president of the Pevely Dairy Co., has concluded the purchase of a large apartment building at 4412 West Florissant avenue, owned by the Farm & Home Savings and Loan Association. The site has a frontage of 115 feet on West Florissant by a depth of 138 feet. The property was acquired by the Farm & Home Loan concern under a mortgage.

DISCOUNT PLAN SPEEDS TAX PAYMENTS IN CITY

Collector Has Received $2,030,820; Many Take Advantage of New Law.

Taxes for 1933 received by Collector Koeln up to Friday night amounted to $2,030,820. Usually collections are not this large until about Dec. 1 of each year, but the law providing discounts for advance payments, effective this year, is speeding payments.

So far about $17,000 has been allowed in discounts, which apply to city and school taxes but not to the comparatively small State taxes. The discount is ¾ of 1 per cent during October. It will be ½ of 1 per cent in November and ¼ of 1 per cent in December, the last month for payment without delinquency.

Many taxpayers visited the Collector's office at City Hall Friday and yesterday. Collections for yesterday have not been compiled. The office was closed to the public yesterday noon, but clerks toiled in the afternoon and will return today to take care of the rush of office work. This work has been augmented by the new policy on bills. Due to the discount law, the Collector has quit mailing postcard notices of bills. Instead taxpayers must inquire the amounts, specifying the month in which they wish to make payment. This entails much clerical work.

Larger crowds of taxpayers are expected tomorrow and Tuesday, the last business days of October.

Tuesday will be the last day for payment of delinquent taxes with only 50 per cent of the usual penalties. During November and December 75 per cent of the usual penalties will be charged.

Current city and school taxes in St. Louis may be paid in installments of 25 per cent each, at any time the taxpayer desires. Such payments, before Jan. 1, are subject to the discount. State taxes must be paid in full on paying the first installment of local taxes.

Berberich plans to redecorate the clubhouse and to build a concrete swimming pool, 40 by 100 feet, north of the clubhouse. West of the clubhouse will be a six-court clay tennis court, and at the north will be riding stables. There will be a playground for children.

This is a concrete case proving that

MISS MARIAN DAVIS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Massey Davis, who will make her debut this afternoon at a mixed tea at her parents' home in Brentmoor —Ashen-Brenner.

Debut Tea for Marian Davis This Afternoon

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH MASSEY DAVIS will be host and hostess at a mixed tea this afternoon at their home, 37 Brentmoor Park, to introduce to society their daughter, Miss Marian Davis.

The large living room of the attractive home is decorated with masses of clear yellow roses banking the mantel and adorning the tops of the piano and cabinets. A log fire will burn in the open fireplace. Mr. and Mrs. Davis and their daughter will receive about 150 guests between 5 and 7 o'clock. Those invited include the debutantes of this season, and a few who came out last year, with their escorts.

Miss Davis will wear an afternoon gown of deep wine red velvet and will carry an armful of new yellow roses which have been named for Mrs. Roosevelt. Her gown is designed with short puffed sleeves and a long flaring skirt. The bodice is slashed twice at the back and held by rhinestone buttons, and a buckle of rhinestones adorns the belt. Mrs. Davis will wear a velvet gown in the new eel gray, with long sleeves, open from shoulder to wrist. She will wear a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Tea will be served in the dining room, where yellow decorations will also predominate. The table will have a centerpiece of roses and will be illuminated by white tapers in silver candelabra. Autumn tinted chrysanthemums have been used throughout the reception rooms. There will be punch bowls in the garden room and hall.

The debutantes serving will be Miss Laura Gray, Miss Harriet Turner, Miss Virginia Garesche, Miss Ruth Ferriss, Miss Jane Metcalfe, Miss Elizabeth Cave, Miss Virginia Brown, Miss Elsie Ford, Miss Jane Moulton, Miss Catherine Davis, Miss Susan Elizabeth Wyman, Miss Jane Johnson, Miss Betty Caulk, Miss Mary Elizabeth Bascom, Miss Delphine Polk, Miss Edwina Preetorius, Miss Julia Walsh, Miss Betty West, Miss Peggy Wendling, Miss Catherine James and Miss Carol Randolph.

The large living room of the attractive home is decorated with masses of clear yellow roses banking the mantel and adorning the tops of the piano and cabinets. Parisian Motif For Gay Party At the St. Louis Country Club

MORE than 250 guests dined and danced in an amusing reproduction of streets of Paris at the opening fall party at the St. Louis Country Club last night.

The three connecting dining rooms represented an enormous sidewalk cafe illuminated by realistic wood street lamps. Figures familiar to the Paris visitor were depicted in great paintings hung on the walls, and at the far end of the alcove dining room was painted a composite picture of two intersecting streets with lighted buildings rising ceiling height and a full moon shining brightly from a black sky.

The entrance to the rooms represented the customs office at the French border. A poster covering the side of the wall showed a pile of baggage awaiting inspection, and in the center sat an Englishman in cutaway clothes, silk top hat and monocle, tagged "Aix-les-Bains, C. O. D." A sign, "Entree," was hung over the doorway, and a life-sized cut-out of a red cap hauling trunks marked the way to the room.

Entering the "streets," the guests strolled at will down the Place Vendome or the Avenue des Champs Elysees, the names of which, along with the names of many others, were written on hollow squares hung with French flags and covering the ceiling chandeliers.

At one side a gendarme directed an American woman tourist who was obviously troubled by the French directions she found in her Paris guide book. Announcements of the sports events, including a bicycle race, appeared at intervals, and cigarette advertisements of red-garbed figures wearing fezzes added color. Silhouettes of gay Parisians leaned against lamp posts, and under a sign, Cafe de Blind Pig, men sat drinking at small tables.

The wall about the refreshment stand was a highlight in the decorations. In the center, silhouetted by lights from behind the figure, was portrayed a waiter shaking cocktails, and on the pink background were written in silver the names of the noted Paris cafes. At each side were life-sized paintings of bathing girls on colbat blue.

In keeping with the decorative theme the small tables which filled the rooms were adorned with French flags. Following the dinner the tables were removed for dancing.

The largest party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Williams Jr., who entertained for Miss Betty West and Miss Jane Johnson. A horseshoe-shaped table seating 47 guests, a group of the debutantes and their escorts, was arranged in the alcove dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Williams entertained 20 of their friends at a smaller table. The debutante party in addition to Miss West and Miss Johnson, included the following young women: Miss Bonnie Langenberg, Miss Judith Gamble, Miss Patricia Thompson, Miss Betty Caulk, Miss Julia Walsh, Miss Delphine Polk, Miss Mary Pettus, Miss Jane Metcalfe, Miss Peggy Wendling, Miss Laura Gray, Miss Martha Nicolaus, Miss Carol Randolph, Miss Mary Louise Simpkins, Miss Mary Elizabeth Bascom, Miss Elsie Ford and Miss Betty Flach of Cincinnati, who is spending the week-end as the guest of Miss Johnson.

An over skirt of the type popular 20 years ago, was drawn back at the knees and held by a motif of roses and leaves embroidered on satin. The bride's veil was fashioned from an old lace scarf belonging to her great-aunt, Miss Elizabeth Chipley. She carried Easter lilies.

Miss Janet Wilson, her sister's maid of honor, wore ashes of roses crepe, made simply with a high neck line in front and cut to the waist in back. Pleatings of the material were used to trim the arm openings and the skirt edge. Miss Wilson carried talisman roses and blue delphinium. Dr. Fred Kramer was his brother's best man.

A reception followed. The dining room decorations were also in white, with chrysanthemums and white candles. Mrs. Wilson entertained her guests in a French blue chiffon gown, the drapery of which was caught with jeweled clips. She wore pink roses.

NEMOLASTIK controls full figures like a heavy corset—but with the flexible ease and lightness that only two-way stretch can bring.

These new Nemolastik garments are specially designed for figures "over 36." They're made of genuine Nemolastik, the only 2-way stretch fabric which can adequately control the heavier figure.

The around-the-body strands are made of double elastic strands, giving double holding power. The lengthwise strands are single, permitting easy up-and-down give. This holds the garment in position, keeps it from riding up.

TEACHERS TO DISCUSS FUTURE OF EDUCATION

State Association Convention to Be Held in City Nov. 9 to 11.

Addresses on the future of education in America will feature the seventy-first annual convention of the Missouri State Teachers' Association, which meets in St. Louis, Nov. 9 to 11.

Dr. Edmund de S. Brunner of Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York City, will discuss "The Future of Rural Education in America" at the Coliseum the evening of Nov. 9. Charles A. Lee, State Superintendent of Schools, will discuss "The Future of Rural Education in Missouri" at the same session.

Dr. Lotus D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota, will speak on "The Future of Higher Education in America" at the opening session the morning of Nov. 9, at the Coliseum, and Dr. George W. Rosenlof of the Nebraska State Department of Education on "Vocational Education a Distinctive Part in the Future American Education Program" at Hadley Vocational School that afternoon.

Other addresses are "The Future of Professiional Training of Teachers in America" by Dean William Russell of Teachers College, Columbia University, and "The Future of Character Education in America" by Dr. Hugh S. MaGill of Chicago, secretary of the International Council of Religious Education. Both will be given at the morning session, Nov. 10, at the Coliseum.

Convention headquarters will be at Hotel Statler, where the assembly of delegates will meet at 9 a. m. on the opening day of the convention, instead of on the day before the convention as in previous years.

About 5000 teachers are expected to attend the meeting. Dean Theodore W. H. Irion of the School of Education, University of Missouri, is president of the association.

TUBERCULOSIS DEATH RATE DECLINES 8.6 PCT. IN CITY

The tuberculosis death rate in St. Louis to Sept. 30 was 8.6 per cent lower than for the corresponding period last year, Tuberculosis Controller Spector anounced yesterday.

The report, the first under a decision to inform physicians and the public by monthly summaries, pointed out again the shortage of hospital facilities for the tuberculous, Last month 63 patients were hospitalized and 76 new cases were diagnosed, about half of them in active stages of the disease and between 15 and 35 years old.

A pneumothorax out-patient clinic at Isolation Hospital, established six weeks ago to provide "refills," primarily for tuberculosis convalescents unable to afford private care, demonstrated the newest developments in treatment yesterday in the second annual Clinical Conference on Tuberculosis.

Pneumothorax, Dr. Spector explained, is the process of collapsing a lung by admitting atmospheric pressure between it and the chest wall. Healing advances in the absence of the breathing motion, but "refills" are required in one to four weeks as the air originally admitted around the lung is absorbed by the body.

HELD FOR ADVERTISING TO GET MEXICAN DIVORCES

Mexican Offered Decree to Policewoman for $150, $75 Down.

Francisco A. Romero, 31-year-old Mexican, was charged with advertising to procure divorces, a misdemeanor, in a warrant issued yesterday.

Romero, whose home is in Juarez, Mexico, was arrested at the American Hotel following an investigation by policewomen of a newspaper advertisement suggesting Mexican divorces for St. Louisans. One policewoman said he offered to get her a divorce at Juarez for $150, with $75 to be paid on account and the remainder when the decree would be granted 23 days after papers were filed.

Edmundo L. Aragon, Mexican Consul, told the Prosecuting Attorney that Romero was unaware he was violating any statute. The maximum penalty is a year in jail and a $1000 fine.

Vice-President of Reller Chevrolet Co. Gets Decree on Ground of Indignities.

Peter F. Smith Jr., vice-president of the Reller Chevrolet Co., obtained a divorce at Clayton yesterday from Mrs. Erma Laura Smith on ground of general indignities.

Mrs. Smith formerly was the wife of Fred G. Bentrup, who sued Smith for $100,000, alleging alienation of affections in 1930, but later dropped the action. The Smiths were married in August, 1931, and separated last August. He lives at 542 Locust court, Webster Groves.

Wife Sues Norman Hemp.

Suit for divorce was filed yesterday against Norman Hemp, 5712 Enright avenue, by Mrs. Mary Wendler Hemp, who charges desertion. They were married in 1924, and in July, 1932, Hemp left his family, his wife states. She asks for alimony and the custody of their children, Betty, 9, and William, 5 years old.

SPECIALISTS TO ADVISE CITY HEALTH BUREAU

They Accept Invitation to Act as Consultants on Public Problems.

Outstanding St. Louis specialists have accepted invitations of Health Commissioner Bredeck to act as consultants to guide the city authorities in problems of public health requiring specialized knowledge.

The innovation was explained as a means of making the best medical thought available for both the avoidance of nonsensical regulations and the adoption of the most advanced and effective measures for the protection of the public.

Such measures were strikingly demonstrated last summer as most economical in money as well as in health. In the midst of a rabies epidemic, the city obtained the services of an expert who cut the taxpayers' cost of preventive treatment by two-thirds from $1765 to $513 in his first month.

The aid which the medical profession can give the health authorities was shown in the encephalitis epidemic, when Dr. Bredeck did not hesitate to call on the outstanding experts in both universities and in private practice for any advice or service the emergency demanded. One of many immediate results, as generally known, was the first material progress science has ever made toward the cause of the little known disease. Beyond that, it awoke a spirit of working co-operation of permanent benefit to the profession and the public.

Fostering that spirit, said Dr. Bredeck, is a chief aim of the new consultation groups. He expected their association with the department to aid in enlisting the interest and support of St. Louis physicians generally.

Consultants have been appointed in maternal hygiene, child hygiene—mental hygiene, epidemiology, tuberculosis, social hygiene, dental hygiene, the medical laboratory sciences and public health nursing. The 45 physicians and six nursing executives on the list comprise virtually a roster of the outstanding local experts in each branch. They are, of course, not serving for compensation.

CONCERT BY NEGRO SINGERS TO BE GIVEN ON FRIDAY

A concert by the Celestial Choristers, Negro singers, will be presented at the St. Louis University Auditorium at 8:15 o'clock Friday evening, under the sponsership of the Inter-Racial Review.

The program consists of five groups of songs—selections of the vocal polyphonic school of the sixteenth century, a group of Russian a cappella numbers, songs by American composers, concertized versions of Negro spirituals, and spirituals sung in traditional Negro manner.

In the last group no attempt has been made to determine how many voices or parts the numbers contain. Leaders determine the number of stanzas, as well as pitch, tempo and character of the closing. The chair is directed by C. Spencer Tocus.

More than 2,500,000 head of stock were handled by Exchange members during the past 12 months. The Exchange has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to give this market the same privileges by the railroads that are accorded concentration points.

BOY TURNS SIDESHOW TO GET HOME FROM CHICAGO FAIR

North Carolina Youth Exploits Ability to Put Out Fire With Bare Feet.

By the Associated Press.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Oct. 28.—Fourteen-year-old Ralph Faison Jr. went to the World's Fair, spent all his money on the sideshows, and then became a sideshow himself to replenish his funds.

Everybody around was wearing shoes. At home the lad had gone barefoot all his life, even in cold weather. His feet were tough as leather. He prepared a sign: "Burning cigarette and cigar stumps put out with bare feet."

That seemed to panic 'em. The boys made a circle and Faison stood in the middle. A crowd gathered. The charge for stamping out cigar stumps was 10 cents, 5 cents for cigarette stubs. Stubs fell in the circle and money fell in a hat. The lad used his big toe, his heel, the ball of his foot. Eleven dollars was counted.

"That's enough," said one, so the sideshow folded its human tent and stole quietly away in the night back to Dixie.

Italy was third.

It is doubtful whether the exact position of Russia and Japan was then known; but it is certain that both have considerably increased their strength since 1931, whereas we have permitted a relative decrease.

The decline of our air force to sixth place is due to our failure to carry out the sanely visioned, gradual building program laid down in 1926; second, to sharp budget cuts; and, finally, to a policy of "watchful waiting" to see what arms reduction agreements, if any, emerge from Geneva.

Suggested Aircraft Quotas.

It is significant that the latest disarmament discussions abroad include suggestions for fixed quotas of aircraft for different nations. If such discussions come to concrete form it will be found that European formulas allot to America—with her vast distances, long frontiers, large population and great wealth—a quota equal to that of European nations small in territorial extent. And in that event Britain's "self-governing dominions" — having established precedent by separate membership in the League of Nations—unquestionably will have to have separate air forces.

On one occasion during disarmament discussions Britain approved a proposal to limit air forces arbitrarily to 250 planes. The reason was clear. If no potential enemy had more planes than that Britain was virtually freed from danger of aerial invasion.

Great Britain's Advantage.

Only recently the suggestion was seriously made that the armed forces of each nation be limited to 1000 plans. Under such an arrangement Great Britain, with her small area and comparatively small coast line, would have as many planes as the United States with her vast area and 8000 miles of sea coast to defend.

But adding to America's thus created inequality would be additional air forces for Canada, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa, every one of them as British as the States of Illinois, California and New York are American.

Another habit of European disarmament negotiators, when they see advantage in it, is to base reduction formulas upon present relative strength. In other words, we are quite likely to hear from Geneva proposals whose intent would be to make our present inferiority permanent.

Habitually the people of this country, peaceful-minded, given to no dreams of imperialism and isolated by oceans, have believed war impossible until it was upon them. Certainly they have thought no enemy could attack us successfully.

Lesson of Balbo's Flight.

The flight of Balbo's fleet, the development of airplane carriers, the building of heavy bombers of long range and the designing of planes of constantly higher speeds —such things as these should awaken us.

No longer are we safely isolated. We can be attacked by air, from bases at sea or in adjoining foreign territory. We are vulnerable. Nor can the most inland city consider itself safe in its industries or its railways which are deemed by an enemy to be vital to an American war of defense.

Properly, since by treaty and by neglect we have permitted the United States 17th in Military, Third in Naval Strength, Sixth In Aircraft, Gen. Fechet Says

Declares Balbo's Flight Should Awaken Us and Lead to Revival of Forgotten 10-Year Army Plane Program.

By MAJOR-GENERAL JAMES E. FECHET (Retired),
Formerly Chief of the United States Army Air Corps.

FIRST in wealth and first in length of vulnerable shore line, the United States is third in effective naval strength, seventeenth among military Powers, and has the sixth air force of the world.

Published figures do not correctly measure the present relative air strength of leading nations. Ostensibly we stand in fourth place, but the figures on which this rating is based are of late 1931. France then was first, with a strength more than double that of Great Britain. Italy was third.

It is doubtful whether the exact position of Russia and Japan was then known; but it is certain that both have considerably increased their strength since 1931, whereas we have permitted a relative decrease.

The decline of our air force to sixth place is due to our failure to carry out the sanely visioned, gradual building program laid down in 1926; second, to sharp budget cuts; and, finally, to a policy of "watchful waiting" to see what arms reduction agreements, if any, emerge from Geneva.

Suggested Aircraft Quotas.

It is significant that the latest disarmament discussions abroad include suggestions for fixed quotas of aircraft for different nations. If such discussions come to concrete form it will be found that European formulas allot to America—with her vast distances, long frontiers, large population and great wealth—a quota equal to that of European nations small in territorial extent. And in that event Britain's "self-governing dominions" — having established precedent by separate membership in the League of Nations—unquestionably will have to have separate air forces.

On one occasion during disarmament discussions Britain approved a proposal to limit air forces arbitrarily to 250 planes. The reason was clear. If no potential enemy had more planes than that Britain was virtually freed from danger of aerial invasion.

Great Britain's Advantage.

Only recently the suggestion was seriously made that the armed forces of each nation be limited to 1000 plans. Under such an arrangement Great Britain, with her small area and comparatively small coast line, would have as many planes as the United States with her vast area and 8000 miles of sea coast to defend.

But adding to America's thus created inequality would be additional air forces for Canada, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa, every one of them as British as the States of Illinois, California and New York are American.

Another habit of European disarmament negotiators, when they see advantage in it, is to base reduction formulas upon present relative strength. In other words, we are quite likely to hear from Geneva proposals whose intent would be to make our present inferiority permanent.

Habitually the people of this country, peaceful-minded, given to no dreams of imperialism and isolated by oceans, have believed war impossible until it was upon them. Certainly they have thought no enemy could attack us successfully.

Lesson of Balbo's Flight.

The flight of Balbo's fleet, the development of airplane carriers, the building of heavy bombers of long range and the designing of planes of constantly higher speeds —such things as these should awaken us.

No longer are we safely isolated. We can be attacked by air, from bases at sea or in adjoining foreign territory. We are vulnerable. Nor can the most inland city consider itself safe in its industries or its railways which are deemed by an enemy to be vital to an American war of defense.

Properly, since by treaty and by neglect we have permitted the effectiveness of the navy to deteriorate during more than a decade of self-imposed naval "holiday," our Naval Air Force has been strengthened until it stands first in the world. In first line tactical strength of naval aviation France, Japan, Britain and Italy fall in line behind us, in the order named.

Japan Building Air Fleet.

Of these five only the United States and Japan operate fleet aviation as a separate unit. Our Naval Air Corps is a part of the fleet. In the event of war it would remain with the fleet, being vital to its operations.

In war defense of America's harbors and railways, its factories and cities will be the responsibility of the Army Air Corps. This arm of air defense must protect the homeland from the type of warfare most likely to be launched against us.

Japan, it will be noted, has made no proposal regarding reduction of aircraft. She has been building airplanes, warships and airplane carriers on a scale which certainly does not seem to be warranted even by her considerable imperial ambitions in the Orient.

We have no quarrel with Japan, nor with any other nation on the globe. But, looking at world affairs today and our part therein, and considering the mood of Japan, the temper of Europe, envy of America and animosity toward us, we cannot be sure that we shall not have war forced upon us.

Army Program Lags.

As a result of the investigations of the Morrow Board, Congress, at a period when there were no clouds upon our skies, at a time when the threatening wave of arrant nationalism had not yet swept across the world, recognized the need for the building of adequate air defense.

A five-year program for the Army Air Corps was laid down, with a view to continuing expansion over a period of 10 years. Here was a necessary, constructive policy. After more than seven years the first five-year segment of the program remains incomplete. As I view the situation, the policy itself seems almost to have faded from sight. Why is this?

Perhaps it is due to the failure on the part of the War Department fully to realize what air power missions really are under conditions of modern warfare; perhaps it is due to uncertainty in the face of changing conceptions of the role of aviation in national defense. Finally, it may even be due to continuation of the old army game of subordinating every new weapon of warfare to the predominant role of infantry.

Whatever the causes have been, there is no possible justification today for a failure to have in the United States, in such tense times as these, a well-defined national air defense policy. That policy should be one which recognizes the full value of air power as demonstrated and proved by the remarkable advance of aviation, commercial, military and naval, the world over.

First Line of Air Defense.

At present there is a short-sighted conviction among ground officers that the only role of aircraft in warfare is in close cooperation with ground troops.

They do not realize that there is a first line of defense in the air, as well as a first line of defense

CHARLES E. HUGHES

Says Administration Has Conjured Its Authority Out of the Constitution Much as the Magician Discovers Rabbit in Silk Hat—Calls Doctrine of Emergency Most Dangerous Legal Heresy That Could Be Invented.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.

"THE National Recovery Act offends both the letter and the spirit of the entire Constitution," Representative James M. Beck, Solicitor-General under President Harding, says in a signed article in the November issue of Fortune Magazine.

Beck, who is recognized as one of the outstanding constitutional lawyers in Congress, is the first nationally prominent figure to challenge publicly the validity of the law behind the Blue Eagle. In his article he predicts that the issue "as to whether the Constitution can be temporarily suspended to meet the exigencies, real or imaginary, of an economic emergency" will shortly confront the Supreme Court of the United States and that "upon its decision may hang the fate of our form of government."

"It is probable that such a case will reach the Supreme Court," he writes, "for it seems inconceivable that the industrialists of America, who have been accustomed to economic freedom, will not . . . challenge the validity of the statute," and this, he declares, "raises a question which goes beyond the mere mechanics of government."

Lists Four Violations of Rights.

"The purpose of the Constitution," says Beck, "was to limit the power of government and to provide a deadline beyond which a government could not go. It attempted to give concrete expression to our deathless Declaration of Independence, that a man had certain inalienable rights which no government could take from him . . . Among these inalienable rights is that of liberty of contract and the greater liberty to pursue any lawful business free from unreasonable governmental interference."

These rights, Beck charges, have been violated by the NRA because:

"It seeks to regulate the conditions of production . . . in respect to wages, hours of labor, prices and even maximum production;

"It effectually destroys in the sphere of economics our dual form of government, for that was based on a clear distinction between interstate and foreign commerce, as to which the Federal Government was given plenary power, and the production and domestic trade within the borders of a state, as to which governmental power was reserved to the states;

"It creates an economic dictatorship over the business interests of the United States. The President . . . can permit or refuse, to permit any business man to sell his goods in interstate or foreign commerce, and this in principle condemns American industry to economic bondage;

"It gives the National Administrator the power . . . to regulate . . . production, although the decisions of the Supreme Court . . . have consistently held that the production of articles of merchandise could not be regulated by Federal power."

"In my opinion," Beck says, "no express grant of power in the Constitution can be found to justify the Recovery Act. Its proponents, however, argue that it may be justified under the implied powers. . . . One cannot conjure an implied power out of a vacuum in the Constitution as the conjurer takes a rabbit out of a hat."

"Pernicious and Dangerous Heresy."

Dealing with the contention that "an unusual emergency . . . necessitates a departure from the Constitution," Beck declares: "Time was when this doctrine of emergency would have been recognized as easily the most pernicious and dangerous legal heresy that the wit of man could suggest. Nevertheless, as a legal conception it has found an uncertain place in our jurisprudence. . . . It raises the question whether the Federal Government can usurp the reserved rights of the states and also abolish the distinctions between the legislative and executive branches of the Government as defined in the Constitution."

Beck finds that the decision involving the constitutionality of the war-time Adamson Wage Law is the only possible recognition by the Supreme Court of this doctrine, and that "the Court has repeatedly referred to the fact that that decision went to the extreme verge of Federal power. The Supreme Court has never formally overruled it, but . . . its authority as a precedent is, to say the least, doubtful.

"The Congress attempted to justify the NRA by providing that it should be in force for only two years," Beck notes, but he adds, "if the plan succeeds, there may be a similar extension from time to time, until the Constitution has become little more than a memory.

" —— Serious as the present depression is, there have been at least three economic crises of a grave character in our history, and in none of them did the American people believe it was necessary to violate a Constitution under which they had grown from a little nation. . . . That fact suggests a portentous change in the character of the American people and their attitude towards the Constitution. It was once a religion with Americans of all parties; today its solemn mandates have little appeal to the imagination of the people," he says.

Liberals and Conservatives.

Referring to the alleged division of the Supreme Court into liberals and conservatives, Beck in his article states:

"The Court is little influenced by . . . public opinion, but it is profoundly affected . . . by the deeper currents of social change, and the Court cannot be unmindful of the fact that the American people, whose social philosophy was once purely individualistic, has now become a nation of collectivists." But no "conflict between advanced sociology and conservative conceptions of government is involved in the NRA, for the legal question is not one of economics or of social philosophy, but of the powers of the Federal Government. . . .

"When the doctrine of emergency is invoked . . . my belief is that the Supreme Court will sustain its decision in the Milligan case (of 1866) by concluding that an emergency creates the very strongest reason for supporting the Constitution in its full vigor, since in peaceful times we are hardly sensible of its great protection, but in times of emergency we need it most. Otherwise Congress can at any time determine the fact of an emergency . . . and at the very time that property interests and individual liberties most need the protection of the Constitution it will be found that by fiat of Congress, exercising powers never granted to it, the Constitution has become a 'scrap of paper.' "

Beck concludes by asking:

"Is the spirit of the Constitution to become an extinct political religion with the American people?

"To them," he says, "it was once as a religion, and the Civil War was fought at infinite sacrifice to maintain its integrity. If the Supreme Court shall decide that, whenever the American people are terrified by some passing emergency, their representatives in Congress may dispense with the Constitution

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES delivered a short series of lectures on the United States Supreme Court at Columbia University during the interim between his two periods of service in the court, and in a foreword to the little volume in which these lectures subsequently appeared under the title "The Supreme Court of the United States," he wrote that the lectures were being published to give his "interpretation of an institution which, despite its constant and unique service, is a mystery, I fear, to most of our people."

In explaining the mental processes of this mysterious institution, he said, among other things: "Another established principle is that the Supreme Court does not undertake to review questions of legislative policy. . . . . . The legislature, within its sphere, is deemed to possess all available knowledge and to be the treasure house of wisdom. So long as it acts within the limits of legislative power, the actualities of legislative processes are not the subject of judicial consideration. He (the conscientious judge) recognizes that there is a wide domain of legislative discretion before constitutional boundaries are reached, and he holds himself to the duty of not allowing his view of the proper exercise of that discretion to control. . . . . . If it be said that this is an impossible degree of self-control and that even with the most conscientious judge political and economic views will sway the judgment, albeit unknowingly, it may be answered that judges are constantly sustaining the validity of legislation which, as legislators, they would probably condemn."

Controversy Over Labor Clause Of NRA Quieted, But Expiration Of Motor Code May Reopen It

BY CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.

THE long and acrimonious controversy over the meaning of Section 7A—the collective bargaining section—of the National Industrial Recovery Act has been checked, for a time at least, by an official interpretation by President Roosevelt. In a letter to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, the National Recovery Administrator, the President said in effect that while the so-called "merit clause" of the automobile code does not violate the intent of the National Recovery Act, neither this clause nor any other attempt to interpret Section 7A should be included in a code of fair competition. The President drew a distinction between the bona fide use of the employer's right to deal with employes on the basis of individual merit and the use of this right for the ulterior purpose of interfering with the rights guaranteed to all employes by Section 7A.

Gen. Johnson issued the President's statement with the comment that in the opinion of both industrial and labor leaders it would "do much to quiet current disputes" regarding the labor provisions of the Recovery Act.

Long Story of Troubles.

Behind these developments of the present week lies a long story illustrative of the troubles faced by the NRA in seeking to reconcile the differences between capital and labor.

Section 7A, which labor has hailed as a new charter of rights, reads as follows:

"Every code of fair competition, agreement and license approved, prescribed or issued under this title (title I of the Recovery Act) shall contain the following conditions;

"1. That employes shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing, and shall be free from interference, restraint or coercion of employers of labor, or their agents, in the designation of such representatives or in self-organization or in other concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection; 2. That no employe and no one seeking employment shall be required as a condition of employment to join any company union or to refrain from joining, organizing or assisting a labor organization of his own choosing; and 3. That employers shall comply with the maximum hours of labor, minimum rates of pay and other conditions of employment, approved or prescribed by the President."

As the suspension of the antitrust laws was the great boon to industry in the Recovery Act, so this section was the chief prize won by labor. It places on the statute books, in possibly the most far reaching piece of legislation ever adopted by Congress, a definite recognition of the right which labor has always maintained is inherent in our American institutions—the right of workers to organize and to bargain collectively through agents of their own choosing.

Dispute on Exact Meaning.

The prize was not won without a struggle. After the recovery bill had passed the House, the Senate Finance Committee amended the labor section to provide that it was "not intended to compel a change in existing satisfactory relationships between employes and employers." This was designed to legalize so-called "company unions." Senator Norris led a fight against the amendment in the Senate, and it was defeated.

As industry began to be brought under codes, four months ago, controversy arose over the exact meaning of section 7A. Industrial leaders sought an interpretation. Some of them appeared to cling to the hope that the company union might yet be sanctioned. Labor leaders retorted that no interpretation was necessary; the meaning of the section, they maintained, was as plain as words could make it. Labor, they said, would tolerate no dilution of the right of workers to organize in unions of their own choosing. The controversy was fanned by the charges of industrialists that labor organizers were using section 7A to drag workers into unions against their will.

Gen. Johnson held out against the demand for "clarification" until the automobile code came along. Then his foot slipped. In an unguarded moment, as he himself later said, he permitted the automobile makers to write into their code a provision that employers in this industry "may exercise their right to select, retain or advance employes on the basis of individual merit, without regard to their membership or nonmembership in any organization." Though this clause, the so-called "merit clause," was qualified by the provision that it did not modify the requirements of section 7A of the Recovery Act, its acceptance as part of the automobile code encouraged advocates of the open-shop and correspondingly aroused the fears of labor.

Only a few hours after the automobile code had been approved by the President, the operators of nonunion coal mines brought in a proposed code containing a similar merit clause. Labor leaders at once cited this as proving their contention that the clause was designed to cloak anti-union activities.

The automobile code was approved by the President on Aug. 26. A few days later Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said in a letter to members that there was no reason why a merit clause like that in the automobile agreement should not be included in all industrial codes. He said that all codes should make it "perfectly clear that the principles of the true open-shop operation are not contravened."

Reply by William Green.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, replied warmly the next day that the Harriman statement simply reflected the "traditional attitude" of the Chamber toward labor. Harriman and his associates, said Green, should realize that section 7A had created a "new

NRA and the Constitution.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN REPLY to the communication of James P. Whiteside, Foristell, Mo.: Mr. Whiteside represents former Senator James A. Reed as criticising the President for being a violator of the Constitution and imperiling the freedom of the people, because of the recent administrative measures passed by Congress, popularly known as NRA.

All national legislative enactments bear the presumption of constitutionality. The NRA enactments have been before several Federal courts and the presumption of constitutionality has been sustained. The cases are now on appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. That court has the duty of passing upon the constitutionality of these enactments. If they are unconstitutional, the court will undoubtedly so declare. I believe the country at large has confidence in the Supreme Court and will abide by its decision. It seems to me that it is an unwise policy to attempt to influence a tribunal in litigation pending before it by propaganda. The better course would be to display confidence in the court and patiently await its decision. If the decision requires political action, such as was occasioned by the Supreme Court's decision in the income tax cases, it can be done then very properly by agitation, propaganda and discussion.

There can be no objection to Senator Reed thinking the recovery acts are unconstitutional, if he does. There are many able men who entertain a contrary view.

Precedent would seem to establish the constitutionality of this new legislation. The most serious charges leveled against the acts are that they impair freedom of contract, that is, the individual's right to make any contract he desires, and they embrace the exercise of powers by the Federal Government that are not fairly contained or implied in the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution.

The Sherman Anti-trust Act, the Clayton Act and the Adamson Act were all sustained against these objections. There is no doubt that these acts had and have a tendency to impair the right of freedom of contract. The eight-hour law, the minimum wage law and the child labor laws have been sustained against similar objections.

Mr. Whiteside notes from his personal observation that the President's course has tended to estrange former Republicans and Democrats who voted for him. I feel confident that the President is proceeding on his course without regard to political results, whatever they may be; and that he is actuated by an earnest desire to relieve the American people from their present distress, and is doing what he in his judgment thinks most likely to accomplish this end.

The President makes no claim to perfection or infallibility, but the fact that he is sincere in his desire to lift the nation out of its present economic condition is amply supported by able and patriotic citizens, regardless of party politics.

Judge Lenroot, former United States Republican Senator from Wisconsin, in his radio speech the other evening, said that the President was actuated by the highest motives. Mr. Hurley, Secretary of War under President Hoover, has publicly said the same thing.

Let us forget party politics. The President is the President of all the people. Let us give the administration a fair trial in this new legislation. Every piece of new legislation is more or less experimental. The laws that I have previously mentioned were all criticised as being experimental and would be attended by unfortunate results, which has not proved to be the case.

Let us await patiently the decision of the Supreme Court, in the knowledge that it will be fair, impartial and fully alive to its responsibilities.

G. T. PRIEST.

A Home Owner's Experience.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WAS very much amused when President Roosevelt stated in his nationwide speech that anyone who was about to lose his chattels or real estate should wire Washington immediately. This gesture was all right, and was taken hook, line and sinker by many, I suppose. But the President did not say what would be done to save the homes or chattels.

I happen to have a home that cost me $13,000 in 1926. Up to the present time, I have paid all of my loan except $4800. When the Home Loan Corporation was first opened in this city, I applied for and received an application blank, and a set of rules for making it out. One of the rules is that I was to get the consent of the mortgage holder to accept the bonds. My loan is held by one of the large insurance corporations. I wrote and inclosed the Government acceptance blank for it to sign.

In a few days, I received a curt reply from the insurance company, stating it would not accept the bonds. So you can see the joker in the deck. And you can hardly blame the insurance company for its stand, as I see by the paper that these bonds are quoted in New York at 85 bid, 85¾ asked. I ask you where the New Deal begins. I think at the top.

NRA and Freedom of the Press

Prof. Lindsay Rogers of Columbia University has effectively answered the charge that for newspapers to submit to codes under NRA would imperil the freedom of the press. It has never been explained by those who make this charge how it is possible for a statutory enactment to nullify the Constitution. That document, in Article I of the Bill of Rights, forbids Congress to pass any law "abridging the freedom of speech or of the press." Yet they continue to make the charge and wax oratorical about it.

Prof. Rogers makes the point that the constitutional guarantee has never been construed to permit newspapers to ignore workmen's compensation laws, state child labor laws and hours of labor laws. The Milwaukee Journal, advancing the same argument, says that "newspapers can be punished for libel, and so severely punished that they are destroyed, or at least taken from their owners. And they have been."

Under an NRA code, newspapers would bind themselves to an agreement regarding minimum wages and maximum hours. If it were shown that they were violating the agreement, the licensing provisions of the NRA could be invoked. The President, says Prof. Rogers, may exercise licensing powers "only if he finds that 'destructive wage or price-cutting or other activities contrary to the policy of the Recovery Act' are being practiced, and he must give public notice and hearing before he can act."

All this is remote from the principle of freedom of the press. It merely means that a publisher who does not honor his own signature is to be treated like any other chiseler in any other industry. If he persists in violating his agreement, he can, after public hearing, first be subjected to licensing and next have his license revoked. Similarly, if he persistently violates the libel laws, damages can be recovered against him in court that will destroy his power to operate.

The NRA operates toward newspapers in their character as businesses or as manufacturing enterprises, and not in their role as purveyors of news and opinion. As the Raleigh News and Observer puts it, "It would be a monstrous thing if the freedom of the press should be interpreted to grant to the press, as an industry, freedom from such regulation of its hours and its wages as are required of other business enterprises. To use the freedom of the press as a means of industrial escape for the newspaper business would be a greater blow to the freedom of the press than any regulation of its operations along with other industry could be." This sentiment is heartily indorsed by the Philadelphia Record, the Chattanooga News and many other newspapers. The Record says NRA can affect the freedom of the press no more than would condemnation of a ramshackle publishing plant by a building inspector.

Col. McCormick of the Chicago Tribune says the fight for freedom of the press under NRA is similar to the fight against the Minnesota gag law. The Post-Dispatch participated in the latter fight, and we are unable to detect any basis of comparison. The gag law permitted a single Judge's opinion of what was defamatory, regardless of the protection against defamation contained in the State's libel laws, to suppress a publication, without jury trial, and to hold for contempt all of a newspaper's employes if the injunction was violated. That was a violation of freedom of the press, and the United States Supreme Court so held.

It may be that many persons are sincerely alarmed over what Col. McCormick and others have to say about newspapers and the NRA. However, the impression is fast gaining ground that it is not freedom of the press that certain newspaper elements are campaigning for, but freedom to escape keeping their agreements under NRA; that these elements, while editorially urging all other industries to co-operate with NRA, want their business exempt from its responsibilities.

Raising Commodity Prices

The President believes that commodity prices are still too low. He proposes to raise them to a point where debtors will be able to pay off their debts in dollars more nearly of the same value as those which they borrowed, presumably to the level which prevailed in 1926. He intends to check the rise at this point and would have prices held continuously at this level, as he says, "during the succeeding generation."

The new mechanism which is to be employed to boost the price level is a Government market for gold. The R. F. C., instead of paying the usual price of $20.67 an ounce for gold, is now offering $31.82, or more than the price in the world market. This will directly stimulate gold mining and put currency into circulation through the hands of the mining companies and their employes. But this is not its major significance.

The Government market for gold will check even the present exportation of newly mined gold, and thus tend to depress the dollar on the foreign exchanges. Not only this, but the R. F. C. is empowered to purchase gold from abroad. This, too, will operate to cheapen the dollar in terms of other world currencies. The declining dollar, it is hoped, will stimulate exports. The resulting foreign demand for bulk commodities which move in foreign trade will increase their domestic prices. These goods—wheat, cotton, copper, lard—largely influence the prices of other goods in the domestic market. So, by deliberately depressing the international value of our currency, it is hoped that we shall raise prices at home.

—This is a logical next step in the policy which the administration adopted when it placed an embargo on the export of gold in April of this year. The dollar, cut loose from gold, fell below 70 cents. Commodity prices advanced in the three months from April to July by more than 15 per cent. Exchange depreciation appeared to bring rising domestic prices. But why? Under existing economic conditions, the dollar, even if off gold, should not fall very far. We have long had, and continue to have, a favorable balance of trade. We are making few loans abroad.

Our foreign debtors, on the other hand, are, many of them, still paying us interest. Depression has stopped American touring abroad. We have huge stores of gold. All this should operate to put the dollar, even the paper dollar, up. The fact that it went down can be attributed only to two things. First, Americans, fearing inflation here, sent their funds abroad. They did this by buying foreign securities; by selling securities or goods abroad and leaving their balances there. So marked was this movement that it became a source of embarrassment to financial officers in Great Britain. Second, speculators, anticipating inflation, began to purchase foreign currencies.

These activities depressed the dollar. But the decline did not last. For some time, the exchange rate stood steady. Lately it has risen. Obviously, the dollar would not fall further of its own accord. If it will not fall, it will have to be pushed down. And that is what the administration, through the R. F. C., is now setting out to do.

Memorandum for Pessimists and Pollyannas

There have been many head-shakings and doleful comments over the NRA and the prospects of business revival. The congenital pessimists are saying that their worst forebodings and misgivings have been confirmed. The ebullient optimists are registering disappointment because their rosy hopes of immediate recovery have not been realized. But most of us, who neither considered the New Deal foredoomed to failure nor expected it to raise us to the heights of dazzling prosperity overnight, have plentiful grounds for satisfaction.

Have the gloom dispensers considered how much better off we are than a year ago? Have the hopers for miracles considered how long it took us to descend into the slough of despond? If the doubters will stop looking for fly specks, and the revival shouters will quit expecting the next sunrise to bring a millennium, they can share the average citizen's feeling of hopefulness when he contemplates the charts of business and industry.

All the unemployed have not gone back to work, of course, since the NRA began functioning five months ago, but some 3,000,000 jobs have been provided, and that is no mean accomplishment, from any point of view. With a rise of 27.9 per cent in the employment index from a year ago, there has been an increase of 43 per cent in factory payrolls—a long step toward creating more buying power to consume the products of our industries. Factory workers, according to a reliable estimate, received $40,000,000 more each week in their pay envelopes in August than in March.

Industry is feeling the stimulus of demand as well. Sales of automobiles rose to 236,000 in August, as compared with 90,000 in that month last year, and this led to an increase of 150 per cent in production over 1932. Wool consumption has increased 210 per cent over last year; cotton consumption, 115 per cent. Pig iron production has shown a gain of 245 per cent in the same period. Steel ingot production has leaped from 20 per cent of capacity a year ago to 38 per cent at the present time.

The record of business failures shows what the upturn has meant in commercial circles. As compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, the number had fallen to 257 last week from a figure of 503 for the corresponding week last year. This is the more significant since the five-year average for 1928-32 was 457 per week.

The weekly business barometer of the McGraw-Hill publication, Business Week, is a conservative index drawn from weekly figures for steel mill operations, building contracts, bituminous coal production, electric power output, carloadings, check payments, commercial loans and currency in circulation. These varied indicators unite to establish a figure of 61.3, as compared with 55.5 a year ago.

Much has been written of the farmer's plight, and it remains true that benefits to agriculture have lagged behind those in other fields. Mr. Roosevelt admits he is not satisfied with the amount or the extent of the rise in farm prices. Yet the price of farm products has been ascending. Wheat, for instance, is around 81 cents, a rise from 45 cents for the same grade a year ago. Cotton in the same period has risen from 6.4 cents to 9.9 cents a pound. Rye has gone from 47 to 80 cents; oats from 26 to 46 cents.

Such facts and figures, and many more which could be cited, show that America's star has risen from its nadir, that it has not yet reached its zenith, but that its course is steady. Mr. Roosevelt said as much in his most recent address: "Our troubles will not be over tomorrow, but we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction." Facing the course of events, the doubters will be wise to modify their fears and the Pollyannas to revise their expectations. The rest of our people will hold fast to their gains, look ahead to the winning of new ground on the long up-grade and continue firm in their faith.

Gov. Meier and the Truck Issue

Oregon staged a political revolution in 1930 by electing to the governorship Julius L. Meier, an independent candidate, who polled a large majority on his platform of public development and ownership of hydro-electric power. Great expectations were held for Gov. Meier, so it was surprising to learn a few days ago that a petition for his recall was being circulated, charging him with lack of leadership, delegation of official duties to other persons and general incompetency. Details of the controversy, however, as given by a Portland correspondent in the New York Times, show that the Governor has not disappointed his well-wishers, but that the recall move is a result of a fight on his part for the public welfare.

Seeking to cope with the truck problem, as are many other states, Oregon has enacted a drastic set of regulations. The truck interests sought relief in the Legislature, but that body refused to modify the measure. The Supreme Court upheld the law's constitutionality. The truckmen appealed to Gov. Meier to play their game by ordering that the sections of the law objectionable to them be not enforced. He declined to do this, asserting it to be his duty to see that all legislative acts were made effective. The resulting controversy has culminated in the recall petitions, backed by the truck interests.

Gov. Meier, in standing behind the Legislature's attempt to make the public highways safe for the public and to regulate their use for profit by private interests, is to be commended for his stand, no matter if it costs him his office. It is not likely to do so, however, says the correspondent, for 83,331 signatures are required, and observers consider it doubtful that that many dissatisfied citizens can be found. "The Governor has given the State a good business administration," the writer says, "but, of course, has not pleased everyone." There will be much tumult and shouting before the truck issue is finally settled, and the Oregon fight is only one sector of a nation-wide battle.

What Next in Europe?

Admitting gravity of European crisis, Springfield Republican says Germany violates no pledge in quitting conference, and has a case in Powers' failure to keep disarmament promises; dilemma is a hotly nationalistic Reich Government claiming concessions promised to pacific predecessors; continuance of conciliation efforts urged.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Daily Republican.

THE new European crisis is grave, but its gravity should not be exaggerated. Talk of war is both premature and mischievous. Nothing has happened that need cause war, and it is almost incredible that any government desires war or is intentionally shaping events to provoke war.

That the outlook is worse than at any time since 1914 is obvious to everyone, but it should be obvious also that the conditions which then led to war do not now exist. Instead of two well-matched armed leagues, confronting each other in Europe, we see at the center of the present disturbance a disarmed and isolated Germany quitting the League of Nations and the disarmament conference on the ground that other countries are refusing to disarm. That is very upsetting, and it strikes a terrific blow at whatever is left of the Geneva conference, but it cannot be called a hostile act and there is no evidence that Germany meditates a hostile act.

In resigning its membership in the League of Nations, it merely exercises what is the right of every member. In quitting the conference, it cannot plausibly be accused of violating its pledge at the beginning of the year to do its utmost for the success of the conference; it offers to disarm to the last machine gun if other nations will do the same, and it could hardly be asked to go further than that. Its case is that the other Powers are wrecking the conference by refusing to reduce their armaments, and the course of the negotiations at Geneva down to the moment of the break may go some way to justify this contention. It is known that our own Government has felt that some countries, including France and Poland, were yielding far too little.

Possibly the need for plain speaking at Geneva and elsewhere ought to have been earlier recognized and met. Statesmen have been dodging the plain fact that some Governments are unwilling to trust the Hitler regime an inch, and have been shiftily evading their pledge given to Germany at Geneva on Dec. 11, 1932.

To admit and defend such a change of policy may be awkward, but distrust of the Nazi Government is one of the basic realities out of which this crisis springs, and this diplomatic reticence has given Hitler a diplomatic opening by enabling him to post other countries as defaulters on their treaty obligations.

Politically, this may be a clever stroke. Hitler has seized the opportunity for a national referendum by dissolving the Reichstag and calling for a new election on Nov. 12, under conditions which presumably will yield a 100 per cent vote for the Government. Hitler himself has appealed to the people in a manifesto which is a clever piece of argument and rhetoric and which contains enough irrefutable truth to be a damaging indictment of European statesmanship since the war.

Equal adroitness is shown in Hitler's asseveration of peaceful intentions. To France he says: "There are no more territorial conflicts as far as Germany is concerned. After the return of the Saar to the Reich, only a madman could believe in the possibility of war between the two states. . . . Nobody can wish that millions of young lives be annihilated for the sake of a boundary correction of doubtful extent and of doubtful value."

This is excellent as far as it goes, but it goes no further than the accord of Locarno, and gives no assurance whatever to Germany's other neighbors. The Nazi platform says: "We demand lands and territory sufficient for the feeding of our people and for settlement by our surplus population." The Poles believe that this means expansion at their expense, and the present crisis cannot be understood without allowing for the widespread fear or belief in Europe that the Nazis will begin their program of expansion as soon as Germany is rearmed.

The crisis is the more serious because the peaceful revision of territorial clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, to meet Germany's grievances, seems to have lost even theoretical realism since the Nazis took charge. It would be hard to get the slightest support or sympathy, at Geneva or elsewhere, for a revision which involved putting non-German minorities at the mercy of Nazi rule. Internationally, Germany has put itself out of court by a nationalism too intense and too selfish to inspire confidence. That is the dilemma of Europe—a Germany turned sour and bitter for one cause or another, yet claiming as a right all the concessions promised to the pacific Governments that preceded the Hitler dictatorship.

The only escape from this dilemma lies in patience and a resolute purpose to avoid every cause leading toward war instead of away from war. Observe that the only war now being talked about is a "preventive" war by France, and whatever allies it could find, for the purpose of crushing Germany and thus heading off Hitler's plans for rearmament and a war of conquest. French statesmen as well as French newspapers have permitted themselves to refer to such a war, and it may be just as well to have this menace brought out into the open and scotched. No war party in France or elsewhere would risk so rash and wicked a move if everywhere the demand for peace is made sufficiently emphatic.

That the situation is very bad there is no gainsaying, but if panic measures can be avoided, it may by degrees yield to careful treatment and the healing effects of time. Time is needed for the Nazi foment to subside, permitting Germany again to function in a sober, rational way. This may be a long process, but every fever runs its course, and if opportunity is given, a well-behaved and even admirable German state may yet emerge.

Even if for the present it chooses to sulk in isolation, efforts for peace and disarmament must be continued. The League must go on, the Geneva conference must go on, and Germany's secession should put upon the statesmen of every country a sense of the urgency of the crisis.

Historians are still arguing what might have been done in July, 1914, to avert the greatest catastrophe in history; the thing that matters now is to head off the threat of a comparable new disaster before a point is reached at which nothing can be done.

Strikes and Recovery

From Editorial Research Reports.

MANY employers are charging that the provisions and the administration of the Recovery Act are fomenting strikes. NRA officials reply that an outburst of labor difficulties has always accompanied recoveries from depressions. On Sept. 11, W. M. Leiserson, secretary of the National Labor Board, declared that most of the troubles could be avoided if employers would grant their employes the right to organize.

The record of labor troubles in the United States shows that they die down when a depression creates greater competition for jobs. Conversely, in a recovery from depression, labor is likely to strike in order to regain ground which it has lost. During prosperity, labor usually aims at new victories, by strikes if necessary.

The United States Bureau of Labor Statistics began in 1881 to collect figures on the number of important strikes. This was a year of prosperity, which continued through 1883. In the depression of 1884, strikes decreased. They increased in the recovery of 1885. In the prosperous period of 1886-92, the number of strikes was high, except in the latter year. Then, in the five-year depression of the '90s, the number of strikes declined sharply. Strikes and business activity both increased sharply in 1899.

There are no Federal statistics on strikes from 1906 to 1916, but figures for this period are available from two great industrial states, New York and Massachusetts. In both states, the number of strikes increased in 1909 and 1910, following the depression of 1907 and 1908. In 1916, when war-time prosperity began to flower, there were 328 strikes in New York, involving 254,000 workers and 10,000,000 lost days of work. The combined number of strikes in that State in the depression years of 1914 and 1915 had been only 227, involving 121,000 workers and 2,300,000 lost days of work.

In 1918, the number of strikes was cut down in comparison with 1917 by the machinery for arbitration set up by the Government under the pro-labor attitude of the Wilson administration. Also, employers were inclined to yield to the demands of labor because of shortage of workmen and because of the opportunity for high profits.

In the post-war depression of 1921-22, the number of strikes declined greatly, only to increase again in the recovery of 1923. The ensuing period of prosperity was an exception to the general trend, because the number of strikes did not increase, on the whole. Various factors are usually assigned for this development. Wages, although below the war-time levels, remained relatively high and working hours in general were reduced. Many employers cut under the old-line unions by establishing company unions and intensive welfare work. The A. F. of L. lost some of its earlier militancy.

In 1930, the first year of the depression, strikes decreased. The next year, they increased slightly, but not in comparison with the number of wage cuts imposed upon labor. In 1932, although more wage cuts occurred, the number of strikes was about the same as in 1931. In May, 1933, they began to increase, with 133 strikes, involving 42,000 workers and 600,000 man-days lost. In July, there were 165 strikes reported to the Department of Labor, involving 110,000 workers and over 2,000,000 man-days lost.

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW.

PERMANENT TRUSTEES OF FRISCO RAILROAD

Lonsdale and Kurn Appointed by Federal Judge Faris.

John G. Lonsdale and James M. Kurn were appointed permanent trustees in the Frisco Railroad bankruptcy yesterday by Federal Judge Faris. They were named temporary trustees last month after serving for a year as receivers.

The permanent order was made with the approval of all litigants except the Baltimore bondholders, represented by Louis Mayer. Mayer renewed his objections to the appointment of Kurn, pointing out that his clients have charged Kurn with mismanagement of the road while he was its president.

Judge Faris, in accord with a suggestion made by Max Truitt, local counsel for the R. F. C., directed that the order of appointment be drafted along the lines of his previous order making Lonsdale and Kurn receivers, Kurn to have charge of operations and Lonsdale of all other matters.

Under this arrangement, Judge Faris said, Lonsdale would be free to take whatever action seemed proper, and might even make Kurn a defendant without embarrassment to the Court, Lonsdale or Kurn.

Controversy Over Labor Clause May Be Reopened

deal" for labor, that labor had been given the clear right to organize 100 per cent in a factory or mill without interference or restraint from employers. He called on Harriman, as a good American citizen, to accept the law without trying to change its "plain meaning."

Gen. Johnson at about this time told reporters that the merit clause in the automobile code was innocuous, neither adding to nor subtracting from the meaning of the law, but that it would be inserted in no further codes. From the White House, in reply to requests for an interpretation of section 7A, came the informal statement that it meant neither the open shop nor the closed shop, but just what it said—collective bargaining.

The continuing deluge of contentious statements from industrialists and labor spokesmen finally led the President, on Sept. 15, to let it be known that he would bar all further efforts to interpret the labor provisions of the Recovery Act. The announcement was made in connection with his veto of an interpretation on which the Labor Advisory Board and the Industrial Advisory Board of the NRA, after much travail, had agreed. The President felt, it was stated, that section 7A was in plain and unmistakable English and that interpretation would be in order only when required in specific cases. The text of the proposed agreement was not made public, but it was understood to provide for courts of appeal within industries to determine whether discharged employes had been let out for actual inefficiency or for union activity.

Other Demands for Clause.

The President's mid-September statement was in line with his policy in dealing with the codes that followed the automobile agreement. Fully 50 of the proposed codes submitted after the approval of that agreement contained the merit clause in one form or another. True to his promise, Gen. Johnson did not again recommend the clause, but in the case of three codes it survived the hearings by NRA deputies and went up to the President for final decision.

The boot and shoe code carried the merit clause in the following modified form: "Insofar as consistent with the foreign provisions, employers in the boot and shoe manufacturing industry may continue present employer and employe relations, and the selection, retention and advancement of employes shall be on the basis of individual merit without regard to their affiliation or non-affiliation with any labor or other organizations."

Gen. Johnson specifically recommended that this clause be eliminated and the President so ordered. The President in his executive order promulgated the code said: "Because it is evident that attempts by those submitting codes to interpret section 7A of the National Industrial Recovery Act have led to confusion and misunderstanding, such interpretation should not be incorporated in codes of fair competition. Therefore, article 4 (the marit clause), must be eliminated."

On the same day, Oct. 3, the President removed similar clauses from the boiler manufacturing and farm equipment codes.

President's Final Stand.

These specific rejections of the merit clause have now been followed, as already stated, by an official blanket rejection, one that seems to give the dispute, so far as the President is concerned, an air of finality. Under date of Oct. 19, the President wrote to Gen. Johnson:

"Dear Gen. Johnson:

"Following our recent discussion of various misunderstandings and misinterpretations of section 7A of the National Recovery Act, I wish to advise you of my position.

"Because it is evident that the insertion of any interpretation of section 7A in a code of fair competition leads only to further controversy and confusion, no such interpretation should be incorporated in any code. While there is nothing in the provisions of section 7A to interfere with the bona fide exercise of the right of an employer to select, retain or advance employes on the basis of individual merit, section 7A does clearly prohibit the pretended exercise of this right by an employer simply as a device for compelling employes to refrain from exercising the rights of self-organization, designation of representatives and collective bargaining, which are guaranteed to all employes in said section 7A.

"Very truly yours,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

On Oct. 23, in connection with the issuance of the retail code, Gen. Johnson made public the President's letter, together with his own comment.

"Our four months' experience," said Gen. Johnson, "has demonstrated the necessity for a clarifying statement on the controversy over section 7A of the Recovery Act. There is nothing obscure about that section itself. The obscurity arises out of unauthorized interpretations by some employers and some employes in an effort to read into that section something more or less than is written there. The President has made that interpretation in a single sentence so phrased that it is believed that nobody can separate it from its setting or otherwise cut it up to make it seem to say something different from what the words intend. Both industrial and labor leaders say that this will do much to quiet current disputes on this point."

Clause Seems to Be Doomed.

This brings the controversy down to date. A question for the near future is whether or not the automobile people, the only group who have obtained the merit clause, are to be allowed to keep it. The automobile code in its present form will expire Dec. 31, this year, and will then be subject to re-examination. Asked whether the merit clause would be stricken out, Gen. Johnson has replied, in effect, that he would cross that bridge when he came to it. In view of the President's unequivocal statement that no interpretation of section 7A should be incorporated in any code, it would appear that the merit clause is doomed.

Of the making of codes it seemed for a while that there would be no end. But NRA officials are now saying that this part of their work will be finished by the first of January, or soon thereafter. It has been found possible in many cases to bring several related industries—as, for example, those connected with rubber—together under one master code. Hence, although more than 1000 separate codes have been submitted by industrial groups, it is expected that 325 will cover the whole field.

Code preparation is going ahead much faster than at first. Now that a body of precedents has been built up and industry has become familiar with the NRA requirements and practices, it is possible to do work in a few hours that formerly would have required days or even weeks. Moreover, a large part of the job was finished when the great basic industries were brought under codes, and a further important advance was made with the recent signing of the retail code.

The most far-reaching of the agreements yet to be completed and approved is that covering the various branches of the construction industry. Among the other codes on the way are those for newspapers and for commercial printing and the graphic arts. The newspaper code, which has proved a hard nut to crack, has been the subject of formar hearinsg in Washington and informal conferences in New York.

Altogether, 64 codes have been approved by the President, hearings have been completed on 150 others and 40 have scheduled for hearings in the near future.

PROGRESSIVE MINERS TO TAKE THEIR CASE TO FEDERAL COURT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GILLESPIE, Ill., Oct. 28.—Claude Pearcy, president of the Progressive Miners of America, announced today plans were being formulated to bring the case of his union in the Federal Courts, in support of its contention that refusal to hire its members because of their union affiliation is a violation of the NRA code.

Progressives have forwarded to Gen. Johnson, NRA Administrator, their proposals for a settlement of the protracted controversy with the United Mine Workers. It includes willingness for a referendum vote, conducted by an impartial board, with voters restricted to the Illinois membership of the U. M. W. A. who were in good standing just prior to the formation of the Progressive union in September, 1931.

Pearcy said his union was unwilling to submit its case to the National Labor Board so long as membership of the board engaged in hearing it included John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, or any representative of the American Federation of Labor, with which the United Mine Workers is affiliated.

on the sea. Sane air strategy demands that the "air army" strike the enemy long before he can establish contact with and engage the land army.

Equipment, organization, material and tactics must be developed for the first line of defense in the air. And the whole set-up of this will differ vitally from that of air units which merely operate in conjunction with ground arms.

Undeveloped in World War.

No such conception of an air force mission really existed during the Great War. Planes came into that war in force late, and they were used primarily as an adjunct to entrenched ground forces.

This conception of the airplane's war use gives to a nation a new arm of defense; one incidentally which can reach out over the ocean four or five hundred miles.

It is my contention that the welding of such a new weapon should not have been halted, not even by the dire economic situation in which we have found ourselves, nor because of budget difficulties.

But the procuring of appropriations is bound up with the procuring of land army appropriations, and so budget cuts have been on a horizontal basis, army and air force both suffering.

My contention is that the air force, hammering into being a new arm of defense, a new weapon of great potentialities, must be supported in that effort liberally and that this is vital to all sections of the United States.

James M. Beck Says Recovery Act Is Unconstitutional

'temporarily, then it shall be true . . . The form will have survived the substance.'"

COURT RULING ON CIVIL WAR CASE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Milligan case referred to by Representative Beck was a Civil War case decided by the United States Supreme Court in 1866. Senator Borah quoted from the decision in a Senate speech against the administration's economy bill (the bill giving the President drastic powers to cut veterans' benefits and Federal salaries) last March. The point of the decision—and Borah's point—was that no governmental exigency could warrant the suspension of constitutional provisions.

The Supreme Court held in the Milligan case that in a state where the tcourts were open no usage of war could sanction the military trial of a citizen not connected with the military service.

The court called attention to the guaranties of civil rights carried in the early amendments to the Constitution, and asserted that except for the belief that these amendments would be adopted, the original Constitution would never have been ratified.

Statement Under Discussion.

Then followed the statement to which Borah and Beck have alluded.

"Time," the Court said, "has proven the discernment of our ancestors; for even these provisions, expressed in such plain English words that it would seem the ingenuity of man could not evade them, are now after the lapse of more than 70 years sought to be avoided. Those great and good men foresaw that troublous times would arrive when rulers and people would become restive under restraint and seek by sharp and decisive measures to accomplish ends deemed just and proper, and that the principles of constitutional liberty would be in peril unless established by irrepealable law. The history of the world had taught them that what was done in the past might be attempted in the future.

"The Constitution of the United States is a law for rulers and people, equally in war and in peace, and covers with the shield of protection all classes of men at all times and under all circumstances. No doctrine involving more pernicious consequences was ever invented by the wit of man than that any of its provisions can be suspended during any of the great exigencies of Government. Such a doctrine leads directly to anarchy or despotism, but the theory of necessity on which it is based is false, for the Government, within the Constitution, has all the powers granted to it which are necessary to preserve its existence, as has been happily proved by the result of the great effort to throw off its just authority."

Decision on Adamson Act by 5 to 4 Vote.

The Supreme Court decision upholding the constitutionality of the Adamson Act of 1916, which gave railroad workers the eight-hour day and fixed their wages for a limited period, was by a vote of five to four. The four dissenting Justices were Day, Pitney, Van Devanter and McReynolds, of whom the two last-named are still on the bench. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the majority.

The Court held that the Adamson Act, which was put through Congress at the request of President Wilson to avert a threatened general railway strike, was justified under the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce. There could be no room for doubt, the Court said, that the business of common carriers by rail was charged with a public interest, and that this public interest gave to Congress the right of regulation.

The eight-hour day was granted permanently, but wages were fixed only temporarily, the railroads and their employes being left free, as Justice White pointed out, to work out an agreement of their own and put it into effect after a specified time.

Question of Fixing Pay.

The Court said that "the right to fix by agreement between the carrier and its employes a standard of wages to control their relations is primarily private," but it added, in effect, that Congress was within constitutional bounds in applying the degree of regulation necessary to meet the situation then confronting the country. This power of regulation included "the power to provide by appropriate action for a standard of wages to fill the want of one caused by the failure to exert the private right on the subject."

Justice Day in a dissenting opinion held that the legislation amounted to taking the property of one and giving it to another, in plain violation of the due process clause of the Constitution. He declared that no emergency, of whatever character, could justify this invasion of constitutional rights, and in this connection he quoted at length from the opinion of the Court in Ex Parte Milligan.

Asserting that the principle there set forth was still applicable, Justice Day added that "constitutional protection is more essential in times of unrest and agitation than it can be in the security of less turbulent periods. Constitutional rights, if they are to be available in time of greatest need, cannot give way to an emergency, however immediate."

Justice Pitney attacked the opinion of the majority in an equally vigorous statement, in which he denied that the admittedly private right of the carriers and their employes to negotiate a wage scale could be waived because the parties had failed to agree.

"It is of the very essence of the right," he said, "that the parties may remain in disagreement if either party is not content with any term proposed by the other. A failure to agree is not a waiver, but an exercise of the right, as much so as the making of an agreement."

Wynn Out of Chain; Back on KSD Tuesday.

ED WYNN is out of the radio picture as head of his new station network. He arrived in New York from Hollywood Wednesday, and went immediately into conferences about the new chain which was started a few weeks ago with a dozen or so Atlantic Coast stations as links. When the conferences ended, it was announced that he had resigned as president of the Amalgamated Broadcasting System, which he had founded with ambitious plans for a coast-to-coast chain. Then he said that he would confine his broadcasting to his weekly program on KSD and the WEAF net, and that he would be back on the program next Tuesday night. His resignation surprised radio circles because he had been so positive in his statements that through his chain he expected to work out definite improvement in radio programs.

KSD Program News and Notes.

GRAHAM McNAMEE again will be Ed Wynn's "straight man" when the comedian returns to his KSD program at 8:30 next Tuesday night. Wynn also will have the support of Louis A. Witten, a quartet and Don Voorhees' orchestra. Wynn went off the program in July, after 63 weekly broadcasts that made him one of radio's greatest stars. . . . Eddie Cantor's return to KSD's Rubinoff program Sunday nights is now set definitely for Nov. 12. His voice may be picked up in Hollywood. The last broadcasts of Ruth Etting and Jimmie Durante on this program, accordingly, are set for next Sunday night, Nov. 5. . . . A new and different "Cheerio" series on the WEAF chain will begin at 5:45 Tuesday evening. This opening program will be carried by KSD. But the others of the series are set for the same hour Saturdays under the title, "Cheerio Musical Mosacis." Musical playlets, for which Cheerio will act as narrator and music with poetic preludes, will make up the programs. The Tuesday program will be built around Felician David's "The Desert," which describes the noon-day halt of a caravan. John Pierce, tenor, a chorus and an orchestra will be used. . . . Roxanne Wallace, the singer featured on the KSD programs at 6 o'clock Mondays, Wednesdays and Friday, formerly was a Ziegfeld Follies beauty. She is supported by the Southernaires Quartet, one of whose members, Charles Edmonson, acts as master of ceremonies. . . . The K-7 Secret Service stories will be shifted to 9:30 Monday nights, starting this week, when "The Road That Was Cut," will be performed. The playlet will tell the story of U. S. intelligence agents planning and executing an attack on a German supply road behind the troops that were hemming in "The Lost Battalion." Abraham Katroshinsky, the only one of 20 runners who succeeded in reaching the American lines from "The Lost Battalion," will take part in the broadcast. . . . John B. Kennedy, who talks over KSD twice a week, has resigned as associate editor of a national magazine, to become a member of the NBC production department. It is stated that he will have a prominent part in planning the better network programs and also will design and produce special broadcasts. Kennedy at one time was a student at St. Louis University.

Benny Friedman as Football Announcer.

BENNY FRIEDMAN, formerly quarterback for the Michigan eleven and in recent years among the more famous of professional football players, broke in as an announcer over a New York City station for the Princeton-Columbia game. Reports are that at last radio has produced an announcer who can tell listeners what is really going on in a football game and which of the players are doing the effective work. It has always seemed to the writer that the networks and most of the stations that carry their own football stories have greatly over rated the ability of their football announcers. Too much hysterical enthusiasm and too little real sensing of what is happening and who does what.

While in critical mood why not question the policy of putting Albert Spalding, the violinist, and Conrad Thibault, the baritone, on the same half hour program? There is too little fine violin and 'cello playing on the air, anyway. Concert audiences gladly listen to hour and a half recitals by the greater violinists. Surely, there are plenty of listeners who would as gladly listen to Spalding play throughout the half hour.

School of the Air Resumes Next Monday.

AMERICAN SCHOOL OF THE AIR broadcasts over the CBS chain will be resumed next Monday afternoon, for the fifth year. The programs will come at 1:30 the first five week days. As in previous years, the subjects will be history, geography, literature, music, science and current world affairs. The NRA, world relations, a century of change, and national planning, will be treated under the title, "Timely Discussions," Fridays. The speakers will be recognized authorities. The history programs will bring dramatizations of incidents in the lives of outstanding men and women who played parts in the social and economic development of this continent. The literary periods will be made up of dramatizations of famous stories.

KYW Must Move to Philadelphia.

CHICAGO and listeners in this region are to lose KYW (1020 kc) and its programs, for the Federal Radio Commission has ended a fight over its channel by alloting it to the Westinghouse Co., its owner, for a new transmitter to be erected in Philadelphia. KYW has been broadcasting in Chicago since 1921. Its transmitter has 50,000 watts power, limited to 10,000 watts for use. Its channel was "loaned" to this zone in the station re-allotment several years ago. The fight over the wavelength began two years ago when the commission decided that it should be re-assigned to the Eastern zone. WXYZ, Detroit, WJAS, Pittsburgh, and three Philadelphia stations—WCAU, WFAN and WIP—made application for the channel, while the Westinghouse Co. fought to retain it. KYW will continue to broadcast from Chicago for some times to come. The Westinghouse Co. said it would accept the ruling of the Radio Commission and move KYW to Philadelphia, but that it would require some months to do this.

TRADE NOTES

Auditorium Speaker In New Philco Set.

AMONG the large receivers designed for wide range tonal reproduction is the new Philco 16X all-wave model. This has an auditorium type speaker of exceptional size and fullness of tone. It also has the Philco inclined sounding board which is designed for greater realism. The 16X has a wave band switch which permits tuning the regular broadcast stations, the channels used by police, amateur, airport and airplane transmitters, and the wave lengths used by the great shortwave broadcasters in this country and abroad, even down to the British Empire stations on 13 meters.

In addition to the 16X, there are three other types of Philco sets in inclined sounding board and remote control styles, as well as a full range of receivers in highboys, lowboys and baby grand cabinets.

Traveling at more than 55 miles per hour on this small demonstration track, Hartz hooked his rear wheel in the track railing. The car rolled over twice, landing on its wheels.

The standard Plymouth sedan which he used has an all-steel body. The car came through in perfect running order. It suffered only dented fenders and scratches occasioned by the car hitting the hard surface of the track.

Hartz' spill took place in the same spot on the track on which Barney Oldfield rolled a car over some days ago.

'Anti-Freeze' Prices Lower This Year Survey Discloses

Car owners will be able to purchase permanent, non-evaporating anti-freeze at lower prices than ever before, according to a survey of retail prices just made by the Glycerine Producers' Association.

Reports received by the association from all sections indicate that automobile owners will not have to pay more than $1.45 per gallon for standard radiator glycerine, which meets all specifications for non-evaporating anti-freeze required by the G. P. A. research laboratories.

Standard radiator glycerine, according to the Glycerine Producers' Association, must not only protect the cooling system against freezing for an entire season without replenishment of anti-freeze, but must also stop the attack by tap water on radiator materials and rubber hose connections. In addition, it must stay put for a whole winter without causing leaks in the radiator. Glycerine producers who make their product conform to the association standards are permitted to display the G. P. A. seal of approval on the package of their anti-freeze.

A freezing point of not less than 30 degrees below zero is required by the assocaition for standard radiator glycerine. Where weather conditions do not require protection against freezing to such a low temperature, the anti-freeze may be diluted with water to obtain any freezing point desired.

Drives 105 Miles At 100 M. P. H. on Stock Pharis Tires

When "Deacon" Litz, veteran race driver, on Oct. 8 put his racer over the brick track of the Indianapolis Speedway 105 miles at over 100 miles per hour on Pharis Roadgripper stock tires he set a new A. A. A. world record.

A year ago he set the official A. A. A. stock tire world record on the speedway at 110.687 miles per hour, the fastest speed ever officially recorded for stock tires. Neither previously nor since that time has such speed been attempted on anything but specially built racing tires, until his Oct. 8 feat.

Because his 1932 record was based on a comparatively short run, it was said that the Pharis tire's stamina was not practically demonstrated. Litz, therefore, set out this year to prove that Roadgripper tires would not only stand speeds over 100 miles per hour, but would stand up under it for an indefinite distance.

Something New in Upholstery.

Six Ford V-8 Cars Lead Way in Hard 5-Day Race Abroad

Three Win Chief Trophy in 1165-Mile Trial—Three Others First in Individual Contest.

Six Ford V-8 cars piloted by Dutch drivers, won over five European and two other American entrants in the fifth annual running of the difficult five-day International Alpine Trial over 1165 miles of Swiss, Italian and French Mountain roads, according to official reports of the race received by M. N. Johnson, St. Louis manager for the Ford Motor Co.

Three of the winning Fords, driven by a Dutch team, captained by Dr. J. J. Sprenger Van Eyck, captured the coveted Coupe des Alpes. The three other Fords won the first three places in the individual competition for the Coupe des Glaciers. The first two tied for first place with the best score of any of the dozens of contestants in the five classes competing.

The annual Alpine contest is probably the most severe test of motor car endurance and performance in Europe. It is open only to stock cars sold to the public. Its route, from Merano, via St. Moritz, Turin and Grenoble to Nice, includes the ascent and descent of 12 major passes, steep, winding roads, many dangerous "hair-pin" turns, and a wide variety of road surfaces, which test the stamina of the cars and the skill of the drivers.

Most difficult of all the passes is the Stelvio, in the Ortler Alps between Italy and Switzerland. It rises to 9150 feet above sea level. The highway leading to it is one of the highest automobile roads in the world. In the course of the 11-mile climb from the valley, the drivers must drive 52 "hair-pin" bends before reaching the summit.

The Ford cars and other competitors in the principal class were required to make the ascent of this difficult pass at an average of 28 miles per hour. Many cars were forced to stop along the way to replenish the water in their steaming radiators, but the Ford cars went the pass in formation without a halt and continued without adding water.

At the final inspection of the competing cars at the finish in Nice, where penalties were imposed for faults in condition, the Ford cars were passed without penalty. Their drivers were complimented by the judges upon the condition of the cars mechanically and in appearance.

Farm Equipment Code Board Executive Will Speak Here Friday

George L. Bell, who was an executive officer on the War Labor Policies Board at Washington during the war and now is a director and vice-president in charge of sales of the Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Ill., will speak at the weekly meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Sales Managers' Bureau at the Hotel Jefferson next Friday noon. His subject will be "What the New Deal Means to Sales Managers."

Bell is vice-chairman of the committee which is drafting a code for the farm equipment industry.

"We hear much talk as to how codes will affect labor, as to hours and wages," Bell wrote the Sales Managers' Bureau. "But I think it is high time the sales managers be giving careful thought as to how codes are going to affect sales policies and problems. The trade practice provisions in many of the codes of both manufacturers and retailers are of vital concern to the sales departments, as they set new limitations on merchandising policies which will in many cases necessitate the development of completely new approaches and policies in the sales field. The situation definitely constitutes a challenge to the constructive ability and vision of sales managers."

Executives of the automotive industry are invited to attend the meeting.

Pontiac Cross-Flow Radiator Has Certain Advantages in Winter

With the approach of winter, owners of Pontiac straight eights enjoy a double advantage in the convenience with which Pontiac's exclusive all-copper cross-flow radiator may be given permanent cold-weather protection with alcohol or the special anti-freeze solution available at Pontiac dealers.

The anti-freeze solution, based upon a secret formula, is not subject to evaporation. It is used in the cross-flow radiator exactly as in radiators of the conventional down-flow design and may be mixed to provide protection to 40 degrees below zero.

However, if a Pontiac owner elects to employ alcohol in the radiator, he may do so without danger of excessive loss by evaporation. This is achieved, according to Chief Engineer B. H. Anibal, by filling the radiator to only two-thirds of capacity. The empty upper section of the radiator then serves as a condenser, he says, returning vaporized alcohol to liquid form and so preventing its escape. Due to the unusual design of the cross-flow radiator, Pontiac is the only car in which this practice can be followed. It is not advised for conventional radiators.

Transfer of License Plates.

North Carolina has an ingenious scheme to prevent the transfer of license plates from cars of one weight to those of another. Passenger vehicles are divided into three groups according to weight, the price of the license increasing for heavier cars. Each of these classes is indicated on the plate by a tiny numeral (1, 2 or 3) between the large numbers in the center of the plate. Truck license plates carry figures showing tons of net pay load the vehicle is licensed to carry.

"Three Flags Tour" Cars Due in St. Louis Around 5 P. M. Today

Socony-Vacuum Trip From Northern Canada to Mexico to Test, "Gas," Oils and Greases.

The Socony-Vacuum "Three Flags Tour" cars, which are making a test run from Edmonton, Canada, to Acapulco, on the west coast of Mexico, are due to arrive in St. Louis around 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The cars will be at the Lubrite filling station, Clayton and Big Bend roads, Monday morning to take on gasoline, and will depart for Kansas City, Wichita, Dallas and San Antonio, where speed tests will be conducted. They will then go on to Laredo, Monterey and Mexico City en route to Acapulco.

The Canadian part of the trip was a nightmare of mud for the 13 cars and their drivers. A run from Edmonton to Motekin, 450 miles north, and back, which was to have taken three days, was made in six through gumbo mud that tried the cars to the uttermost.

It took the heavier cars 36 hours, and the lighter ones 24 hours, to make the 346 miles from Edmonton to Peace River, the drivers and other members of the expedition being completely exhausted when they reached Peace River.

Coming south from Peace River back to Edmonton, they had worse going than any of them had ever encountered.

On one stretch they made a mile in three hours. On another road they made 80 miles in 20 hours, pushing cars almost steadily 18 and 20 hours a day.

From Edmonton toward Saskatoon and Regina and then to the border and south through Minnesota and Wisconsin they had gravel roads and pavement.

The tour cars are coming to St. Louis from Indianapolis. They are being used for severe tests of Mobiloil and greases and Mobilgas under all conceivable road and weather conditions and on a trip sufficiently long to make the tests worth while.

Holler General Sales Manager For Chevrolet Co.

Appointment of William E. Holler as new general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co. is announced by M. E. Coyle, general manager. Holler succeeds to the post vacated through the appointment of H. J. Klinger, formerly head of the Chevrolet sales department, as general manager of the Pontiac Motor Co.

Holler was formerly assistant general sales manager for Chevrolet in charge of the Eastern half of the United States, a post he has held since Sept. 22, 1930.

He joined the Chevrolet sales department in the central office early in 1925.

His first assignment was to help formulate policies of the newly created Chevrolet sales promotion department. He is credited with having written the first exclusive textbook for automobile salesmen on retail selling. He handled special assignments for a time, and in 1926 managed the first convention of the entire Chevrolet organization.

In the fall of 1926, Holler went to Los Angeles as city sales manager. In January, 1927, he was made assistant regional manager at the St. Louis plant.

Six months later he went to Pittsburgh as zone manager, and in June, 1929, opened the newly created Eastern region with headquarters at the company plant at Buffalo.

In this post he had charge of the territory extending from Chicago to the Atlantic seaboard and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. There were four regions and 20 zones under his charge and dealers employing upwards of 15,000 retail salesmen.

Holler has been particularly active in working with dealers and salesmen in the field, and spends approximately 75 per cent of his time on the sales line.

Former Chevrolet Regional Manager Here Named by Klingler to New Post.

Harry J. Klinger, new general manager of the Pontiac Motor Co., has announced the appcintment of A. W. L. Gilpin, former Chevrolet regional manager at St. Louis, as general sales manager for Pontiac.

Other appointments announced by Gilpin include two assistant general sales managers, R. K. White, already associated with Pontiac, and C. P. Simpson, former Chevrolet zone manager at Houston, Tex.; H. White, retained as advertising manager; W. R. Huber, sales promotion manager; A. C. S. Olsen, dealer accounting manager; W. L. Gibson, office manager; R. T. Gunry, retained as car distribution manager; E. S. Grumbache, budget manager, and A. H. Bartsch, parts and service manager.

Pontiac's new general sales manager is well known in the industry. In 1910 he became a retail automobile salesman in Chicago. Later, he was made manager of several retail branches of a well known company. In 1925, he was appointed assistant general sales manager for that organization. The following year he joined Chevrolet as assistant general sales manager, becoming, in 1927, manager of Chevrolet's important St. Louis regional organization which has the largest branch assembly plant in the United States. There he made a brilliant sales record.

Socony-Vacuum Trip From Northern Canada to Mexico to Test, "Gas," Oils and Greases.

The Socony-Vacuum "Three Flags Tour" cars, which are making a test run from Edmonton, Canada, to Acapulco, on the west coast of Mexico, are due to arrive in St. Louis around 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The cars will be at the Lubrite filling station, Clayton and Big Bend roads, Monday morning to take on gasoline, and will depart for Kansas City, Wichita, Dallas and San Antonio, where speed tests will be conducted. They will then go on to Laredo, Monterey and Mexico City en route to Acapulco.

The Canadian part of the trip was a nightmare of mud for the 13 cars and their drivers. A run from Edmonton to Motekin, 450 miles north, and back, which was to have taken three days, was made in six through gumbo mud that tried the cars to the uttermost.

It took the heavier cars 36 hours, and the lighter ones 24 hours, to make the 346 miles from Edmonton to Peace River, the drivers and other members of the expedition being completely exhausted when they reached Peace River.

Coming south from Peace River back to Edmonton, they had worse going than any of them had ever encountered.

On one stretch they made a mile in three hours. On another road they made 80 miles in 20 hours, pushing cars almost steadily 18 and 20 hours a day.

From Edmonton toward Saskatoon and Regina and then to the border and south through Minnesota and Wisconsin they had gravel roads and pavement.

The tour cars are coming to St. Louis from Indianapolis. They are being used for severe tests of Mobiloil and greases and Mobilgas under all conceivable road and weather conditions and on a trip sufficiently long to make the tests worth while.

Holler General Sales Manager For Chevrolet Co.

Appointment of William E. Holler as new general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co. is announced by M. E. Coyle, general manager. Holler succeeds to the post vacated through the appointment of H. J. Klinger, formerly head of the Chevrolet sales department, as general manager of the Pontiac Motor Co.

Holler was formerly assistant general sales manager for Chevrolet in charge of the Eastern half of the United States, a post he has held since Sept. 22, 1930.

He joined the Chevrolet sales department in the central office early in 1925.

His first assignment was to help formulate policies of the newly created Chevrolet sales promotion department. He is credited with having written the first exclusive textbook for automobile salesmen on retail selling. He handled special assignments for a time, and in 1926 managed the first convention of the entire Chevrolet organization.

In the fall of 1926, Holler went to Los Angeles as city sales manager. In January, 1927, he was made assistant regional manager at the St. Louis plant.

Six months later he went to Pittsburgh as zone manager, and in June, 1929, opened the newly created Eastern region with headquarters at the company plant at Buffalo.

In this post he had charge of the territory extending from Chicago to the Atlantic seaboard and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. There were four regions and 20 zones under his charge and dealers employing upwards of 15,000 retail salesmen.

Holler has been particularly active in working with dealers and salesmen in the field, and spends approximately 75 per cent of his time on the sales line.

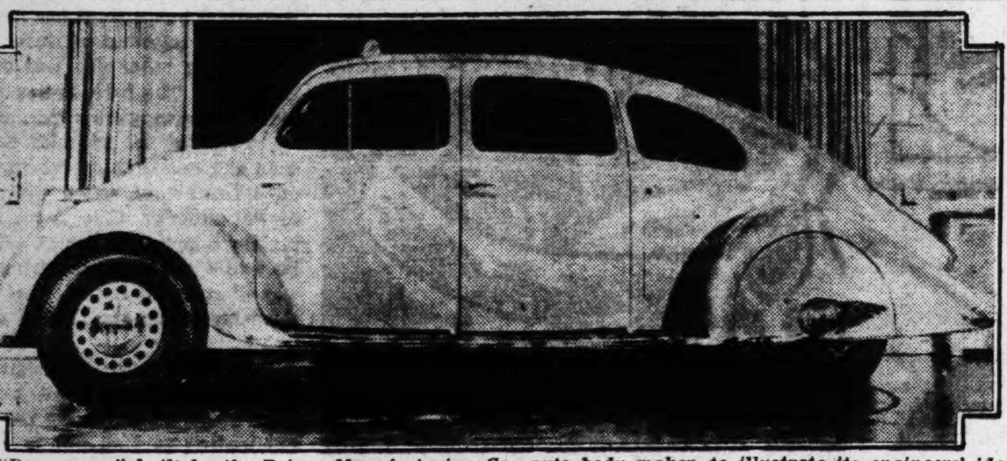
Fleet of 33 Trucks for Bakery Service

OLD SETTLER
OLD SETTLER

Fleet of 33 International trucks, valued at $50,000, delivered Friday to the Papendick Bakery Co. by the International Harvester Co. The fleet of new trucks paraded through the city with decorations and signs designed to call attention to the NRA "Buy Now" movement. The trucks are Model A-2 International, and have special bodies, insulated to keep bread at an even temperature and to prevent engine fumes from affecting it. Gustave Papendick, president of the bakery firm, bought his first International truck in 1916, according to J. H. Baker, manager of the International North Side Branch who handled the fleet sale. Papendick said that confidence in the NRA impelled him to make so large a truck purchase at this time.

Designed as "Car of the Future"



"Dream car," built by the Briggs Manufacturing Co., auto body maker, to illustrate its engineers' idea of what the car of the future well may be. It is displayed in the Ford exposition in Detroit. The car, which is streamlined about as much as is possible, is not to be marketed, it is said. It is similar in appearance to the one designed by Sir Denistoun Burney several years ago which gave exceptional speed and gasoline economy in proportion to its engine's horse power. Some of Sir Denistoun's cars are in daily use in England.

Real Streamline Car Design Shown At Detroit Exhibit

Not Built for Any Particular Factory—Said to Reduce Wind Resistance 45 Per Cent.

DETROIT, Oct. 28.—A striking illustration of possibilities of motor car streamline design may be seen in the Progress Show of the Ford Motor Co., which has jammed convention hall here with as many as 100,000 daily this week.

It is made by the Briggs Manufacturing Co. while the concern makes plain that the body has been built for no specific manufacturer, designers are confident that it foreshadows lines of the car of the future.

The engine, although none is contained in the exhibit, goes into the rear. For repairs, the engine would be taken out of the body, a job that would require about seven minutes. The car does not have the currently accepted chassis, but rather a so-called "cage frame" in which the body serves as the support.

The car is shaped like the upper half of an egg, tapering at front and rear. For rear vision, difficult in such a design, a periscope protrudes from the top. The reflection is on a mirror on the dash.

Another feature is air holes around the wheel hubs to provide brake cooling. This is necessary because the wheels, independently sprung, set close inside the fenders.

John Tjaarda, designer, says wind resistance would be cut 45 per cent at high speeds from conventional styles and that the car would be capable of 110 miles an hour with a 75 horsepower motor. He believes the design entirely feasible for a medium priced car, although a rear fin would probably be necessary to hold it steady in severe cross winds.

Tire Cost 45 Cents Per 1000 Miles of Auto Operation.

Engineering and statistical experts of the United States Rubber Co. find that today's automobile tire cost, based on the most popular size, 5.25 by 18, is as little as 45 cents 1000 miles.

This low cost was obtained on U. S. Royals in a comparative survey. The cost varies from 45 to 65 cents 1000 miles. A factor was the long wear provided by "tempered rubber" in the tread of U. S. tires.

The cost per mile is figured on what engineers call safe mileage, that is, the service obtained from the tire before the tread is worn dangerously smooth. Admittedly, tires possess an indefinite amount of unsafe mileage after they have become smooth.

The fact that new tires offer 100 per cent safety and cost so little to run, engineers point out, is a compelling argument for the motorist to replace baldfaced tires which are so undependable and dangerous.

Driving his automobile near Phillipsburg, Kan., Glen Adee ran into loose gravel. The car turned over twice and landed on its wheels, none the worse except for slight damage to fenders and top. Adee continued his jouney.

More Than 68,000 Buicks 10 Years Old Still in Service

A constant stream of letters from really old-time Buick owners is continually coming into the Buick sales department. These include a large number of expressions of satisfaction with the car, which in some cases may be still rendering service after being in use for as long as 29 years.

There are more than 68,000 Buicks that are 10 years old or older. Some of them date as far back as 1904 and all of them are still in regular service.

One of the latter, still serviceable in Louisville, Ky., has more than 400,000 miles of travel to its credit. It owner volunteers the information that it is fit for still more miles of road work.

One owner, a North Carolina physician, is driving his forty-second Buick car, all of them bought for his personal and professional use.

Unit Construction In Terraplane Uses Metal Floor Panel

When the Hudson Motor Car Co.'s engineers evolved the unit construction plan, as exemplified in the Terraplane, a feature was the sheet metal floor panel that is the base of the Terraplane all-steel body and is at the same time a most important cross-member of the chassis frame. It is a vital factor in providing the rigidity that contributes to safety, long life, easy riding and quietness.

Since the steel panel is so largely hidden in the completed car, the Hudson sales department asked the engineers how this major advancement in automobile design might be easily displayed and demonstrated.

The engineers constructed three small chassis frames of strength exactly proportional to their reduced size, and fitted each with a gauge to indicate accurately the extent to which the frame could be twisted.

The first frame, shown as it is being subjected to a twist, is the conventional straight-rail frame with cross members. The second is an X-member frame. The third, the Terraplane's unit construction frame, in addition to the X-member and cross members, has a K-member at the front and the steel panel.

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

Some Good Attractions in the Offing for the American While Little Theatre Group Is Growing in Importance — Cheering News From New York Where the Rialto Is on Its Feet Again With 24 Shows Running.

THAT somewhat vague season known as The Theater Year gets under way a week from tomorrow night in two different quarters, for Cornelia Otis Skinner begins a three-nights-and-a-matinee stay at the American, while The Little Theater of St. Louis—an institution of growing importance in these slack days of the drama—presents the first of some 10 plays which will be given between this time and next spring. As a matter of fact, The Little Theater group, which has reached the dignity of at least semi-professionalism, is to present its opening drama, "The Devil Passes," next Thursday evening, but that performance, and the performances to follow on Friday and Saturday nights, are for backers of the movement. On Monday, Nov. 6, "The Devil Passes" will be thrown open to the public for six successive evenings.

During Miss Skinner's engagement at the American Theater she will present her three dramatic sequences, "The Loves of Charles II," "The Empress Eugenie" and "The Wives of Henry VIII."

"The Loves of Charles II," which will be presented on Monday evening and at the Wednesday matinee, reflects life in England in one of the most colorful eras of the nation's history. Nell Gwyn, of course, is an outstanding character in the sequence.

"The Empress Eugenie," scheduled for Wednesday night, deals with the vivid career of the hapless wife of Louis Napoleon, the last Emperor of the French.

"The Wives of Henry VIII," the offering to be given Tuesday night, has to do with the lives, tragic and droll, of the six women who shared England's throne with the burly Tudor Henry.

"THE DEVIL PASSES," first production of the season for the Little Theater, is being produced under the hand of F. Cowles Strickland, newly-appointed director of the Little Theater group who came to St. Louis from Eastern theatrical circles. Gordon Carter, St. Louis artist, designed and built the settings. The play, a comedy drama, was written by Ben Levy, author of "Springtime for Henry" and "Art and Mrs. Bottle." It had a successful engagement in New York two seasons ago.

Included in the cast are Ann Peek, Kathryn Craven, Mathilde Leimkeuhler, Gordon Sommers, Bruce MacFarlane, Eugene Wood, Dr. A. A. Kippen and Robert Tieman. Miss Peek, Dr. Kippen and Tieman are newcomers to the Little Theater organization.

BUT if St. Louis is to get few legitimate visiting companies this season—although some good ones ARE coming to the American a little later, things are looking up for next year as the New York stage is getting back on its feet and will have plenty of offerings to send touring before so very long. According to reports the crying blues era has definitely ended on Broadway. With 24 shows booming along, it now is a period of happy days, smiles and bulging cash registers.

The optimistic aspect of this resurrection of the Rialto is that, aside from the excellent business being done, the new attractions are, for the most part, creditably produced, well written and ably acted. Producers, authors and actors seem to have taken new heart.

A representative example is "Her Master's Voice," Claire Kummer's new comedy. It is a laughingly flighty document of suburban domestic life; not too important, but still humorous, sentimental and thoroughly entertaining. It brings back to the stage three stars who have long been exiled in Hollywood—Roland Young, Laura Hope Crews and Elizabeth Patterson.

Another item marked, "Hollywood papers please copy," has to do with the appearance of Blond Jean Arthur in "The Curtain Rises." A few years ago Miss Arthur was one of the cinema's more publicized ingenues, but for some reason she never went past the status of being an embryo star.

Arriving on Broadway, she first drew attention in the minor role of a slavey in a Viennese comedy. Since then her progress has been quick and noteworthy. She has become, as she is in "The Curtain Rises," one of Broadway's highest regarded leading women. She has that happy combination of being both an ingenue and a character actress.

In "The Curtain Rises" she has a play which was not greeted with affection by the critics, but Miss Arthur was impressive in her role as the ugly duckling who turned into a swan and found true love with a pauper Prince.

Elda Vettori Sings First Recital Here At Odeon Wednesday

ELDA VETTORI, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, will give her first recital in St. Louis on Wednesday evening, when she sings at the Odeon, under the auspices of the Church of St. Michael and St. George.

Although born in Italy, Miss Vettori spent her childhood and received her early musical education in St. Louis. She appeared in the Municipal Opera's post-season presentation of grand opera several years ago, but has never had a recital in this city. Miss Vettori has taken leading roles in several of the Italian operas presented by the Metropolitan company in the past eight years.

The program follows:

Russian Choir in A Concert Tonight

The Russian Symphonic Choir which will present a program tonight, under the auspices of the Musical Arts Committee, will offer three groups of songs in their concert at the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A., Union and Enright. The first group will consist of religious songs, the second of classical numbers and the third folk songs.

Under the religious song group the familiar "Pater Noster" will be heard. Selections from Tschaikowsky and Rimsky-Korsakoff feature the group of classical numbers. Of interest are the folk songs, most of which have been arranged by Basile Kibalchich, the director. These include "Bandoura," "Ukranian lullaby," "Forest Flowers," "A Lament,' "The Gypsies," "A Russian Humoresque," and "Back From a Spree."

St. Louis Reopening Is Set for Friday

Work on the enlarged stage of the St. Louis Theater has so far progressed that the local representatives of Fanchon and Marco announce that the reopening of the Grand avenue picture house will take place next Friday. They have not yet named the feature picture for the occasion. Stress it will be put upon the stage show part of the program with a number of novelties promised.

Gary Cooper Hunts On Montana Ranch

Negro Choristers' Concert.

Next Friday evening the Celestial Choristers, a Negro chorus under the direction of C. Spencer Tocus, will be heard at the St. Louis University Auditorium. THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS

By Nie

"BERKELEY SQUARE," at the Fox, is a fine gesture in the direction of worth-while motion pictures. We dare say Jesse Lasky, who produced this film from John Balderston's lovely romance which St. Louis drama goers saw only at the Little Theater a season or so ago, expected reasonable returns on his investment. Even the few artistic cinema producers have at least one eye on the box office, but in this case Mr. Lasky will probably suffer disappointment. The usual mine run of screen customers will not understand why Berkeley should be pronounced Barkley nor why the square itself should be an oval to begin with. Then, too, arriving in the middle of the picture, as most of them do, they will never catch up with the story and realize that it is a fantasy, a mere dream of a modern and romantic American man who suddenly finds himself in the shoes of an ancestor in the Merry Old England of some 150 years ago. That is the plot of the piece with the present day Peter Standish falling in love with his young English cousin when he knew, from family records, that he must marry her sister. The finish finds him back in his 1933 condition mooning over the grave of the girl he really loved more than a century before. "Berkeley Square" has been carefully and beautifully produced and is most delightfully played by Leslie Howard and Heather Angel and a perfect supporting cast, but it has too much charm and too much conversation and requires too much consistent concentration on the part of its audiences to meet the not very exacting requirements of a vast majority of entertainment seekers. If you see it by all means be on hand when it begins, which is, according to Fox announcements, at 1:00, 3:50, 6:55 and 9:45.

Girls and Music.

IN "Footlight Parade," at the Ambassador, the fans are offered one more screen opera with dozens of girls—the truthful, more or less, press agent puts the figure, with customary modesty, at 500—a lot of songs, plenty of rough and ready comedy and all the necessary accompanying dancing. Even James Cagney goes in for the latter art and surprises his most ardent admirers with the way he does it. Then there is Ruby Keeler, Joan Blondell, Dick Powell, Guy Kibbee and Frank McHugh to give tone to the back stage plot which is a little more complicated than most of the sort, more or less on the same lines, done so often lately, and for those who want music and dancing, by way of the screen "Footlight Parade" is fast and pleasant entertainment.

Up in the Air.

ALTHOUGH the story back of "Night Flight," at Loew's, is rather sketchy with no particular point except to emphasize the belief that "the mail must go through" the photographs are exciting and there are plenty of thrills for the air-minded fans. In this particular case the air mail, had to get through, had to cross the Andes Mountains and fly up the windswept coast of South America, because it was carrying a package of serum to save the life of a sick baby. The hard-hearted manager of the plane service didn't know what the mail sack contained, however. Neither did the dare-devil pilots who braved dark nights and fog-dimmed days. They carried on and gave their lives as a matter of cold business and let it go at that. The cast is a magnificent one, but John and Lionel Barrymore, Clark Gable, Helen Hayes and Myrna Loy seem rather wasted in a drama which must depend, for its success, upon its spectacular efforts rather than upon its acting.

Cold Weather Drama.

AND "S O S Iceberg," out at the Missouri, is much the same sort of picture with some magnificent camera shots of the Far North telling a tale of a band of Polar explorers who are marooned on a giant berg off the coast of Iceland, or thereabouts. The photography is amazingly fine and the thrills are very real and very gripping. On the same bill is a light little film called "Rafter Romance," which is probably the most entertaining picture of the week. In it Norman Foster and Ginger Rogers, unknown to each other, share a garret apartment in which they never meet until the time comes to wind up the story and bring about the final clinch. It is pleasingly told throughout and George Sidney, of The Cohens and The Kellys' fame, is on hand to provide good laugh moments.

Laughton Joins Up With Stock Company

Appearing in classical plays with a stock company in London will take up all the time of Charles Laughton for the next eight months. He has just left Hollywood, having completed "White Woman," in which he is featured with Carole Lombard. Laughton will be one of eight players who have banded together to do eight classics, the plan being to run each play for one month at the "Old Vic" Theater in London.

Symphony Begins Its Fifty-fourth Season on Friday

Golschmann to Introduce Two "First Time" Numbers on Opening Program Which Ends With Beethoven's C Minor Symphony.

VLADIMIR GOLSCHMANN, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will start the orchestra's fifty-fourth concert season at the Odeon next Friday at 2:30 p. m. and Saturday evening at 8:30, with a gala orchestral program. He has returned to St. Louis with a succession of fine concerts outlined and a list of soloists which includes Artur Schnabel, Josef Hofmann, Harold Bauer and Vladimir Horowitz as pianists; Yehudi Menuhin, and that other young American virtuosi Ruggiero Ricci, the one at 16, the other at 11 ranked among the foremost of the world's violinists; Albert Spalding, American master of the violin and Scipione Guidi, the orchestra's concertmaster; Max Steindel, solo 'cellist of the orchestra and Paul Althouse and Elisabeth Rethberg, singers.

Golschmann carefully planned the program with which he opens the symphony season—a program which comes to its climax with Beethoven's C minor symphony. It is introduced with a 150-year-old novelty, the Concerto for orchestra by Philip Emmanuel Bach, as orchestrated by Maxmilian Steinberg. Bach, the greatest of the sons of Johann Sebastian Bach, wrote it about the time of the American revolution, and the orchestration of what was originally a piece of chamber music is by the son-in-law and pupil of that Russian master of orchestration, Rimsky-Korsakoff. Golschmann presents it for the first time in St. Louis musical history, and follows with another first time number, "La Ville Rose" by Albert Roussel, whose "Feast of the Spider," was so well received when presented by the late Emil Oberhoffer and the orchestra a few seasons ago. Although a contemporary Frenchman, Roussel does not rank in the "modernist" movement. His contemporary Paul Dukas contributes to the first half of the program that piece of musical humor "The Sorcerer's Apprentice." Then, following the intermission comes Beethoven's "Fate" symphony, as it has been called, a celebration of the triumph of Will over Fate.

The program, in detail, is:

Carl Philip Emmanuel Bach
(Arranged by Maximilian Steinberg.)
Allegro moderato
Andante lento moto
Allegro
(First time in St. Louis.)
La Ville Rose .... Albert Roussel
Scherzo—The Sorcerer's Apprentice—
Paul Dukas
Symphony in C minor, No. 5, Op. 57—
Ludwig Van Beethoven
Allegro con brio
Andante con moto
Allegro:Trio
Allegro.

Baby LeRoy Is Cast As Deuce of Hearts

Baby LeRoy, Hollywood's youngest screen star, is the latest to join the cast of "Alice in Wonderland." The tiny youngster, who made his screen debut a few months ago and became a star in a single picture, will enact the role of the "Two of Hearts."

St. Louis U. Players.

In the St. Louis University Playhouse Club's performances of "A Prince There Was," which will be given in the university auditorium Nov. 6 and 7. William Jenkins, will have the lead and Miss Blanche Marten will play opposite him in the role of Marion Woods. The university orchestra will conduct the musical program incident to the play. Milton McGovern, director, of the Playhouse Club, is in charge of the production.

More Trouble in Paradise

George Brent's Refusal to Work for a Paltry $1000 a Week, a Comedy of Hollywood, Which Will Have a Still Funnier Sequel—How the Style in Male Stars Has Changed Since the Good Old Days of the Non-Conversational Films With the "Collar-Ad" Boys Out of the Picture.

HOLLYWOOD may have its troubles, its marriages and quick divorces but, also, it has its comic moments. The refusal of George Brent, husband of Ruth Chatterton, to work for a paltry $1000 a week the other day was one of the great laugh moments of the film year. The joke, however, is likely to have a still funnier sequel—the studio magnates will, after a little dodging, pay it.

Some of the troubles of the picture makers are more serious than the demands of the grand-a-week leading men. For instance an old-fashioned watch worn in the upper vest pocket of an extra on Paramount's "Design for Living" set had the sound mixer guessing for a couple of hours. He complained that every now and then he would get a queer ticking noise which would ruin the scene. It was discovered, finally, that every time the extra would pass near the microphone the ticking would begin. They relieved him of his watch.

In "Too Much Harmony," the same sort of sound trouble occurred through the jingling of coins in an actor's pocket. As there were about 50 people on the set, they had to work out a process of elimination to find out in whose pocket the offending coins were jingling.

When the "Golden Harvest" company was working in wheat fields in Oregon, the company was held up half a day because the wind rustling through the wheat made a noise which the sound apparatus intensified. They had to wait for the wind to die down before they could shoot.

Electricians and cameramen almost went grey-headed during the filming of "Too Much Harmony." Sequins on chorus girls' dresses created so much halation, that they had to do some complicated figuring on how to light them up so that they wouldn't flash too much in the camera lens. Diamonds, belt buckles and metal buttons always cause halation trouble during filming of any picture.

AND if the sound machines and the big money boys bring worries the studio heads, from time to time, have to guess at the styles in male stars and leading men. For the moment the type in demand by the cash customers seems fairly well established. With James Cagney, Clark Gable, Norman Foster, Rod LaRocque, John and Lionel Barrymore and Leslie Howard among the stars showing on the local screens this week the cinema fans may see for themselves how the "collar-ad" type of actor—in great demand in the good old days of the silent films—has wilted away.

Big noses, wide mouths, out-cropping ears, too-high foreheads and heavy-lidded eyes are found in profusion among the men whose names are box office attractions at the theaters of the world. The "collar-ad" type appears to be distinctly a thing of the past.

No one could call the Irish pug profile which is famous and favored the world over as Jimmy Cagney, a classic sample of male beauty. It is pleasant and insolent and as irregular as the map of the Emerald Isle. Yet, Cagney singing and dancing for the first time on the screen, is the hero of "Footlight Parade," at the Ambassador, and surrounded with classic feminine pulchritude.

William Powell, who plays love scenes which the feminine world sighs over, has a large nose, a long nose, heavy eyes and a higher forehead than any hero of a cigarette advertisement is ever allowed to possess.

The ears of Clark Gable, which are on view at Loew's, are notorious, but they have not prevented their owner from receiving feminine homage. Neither Wallie Beery nor Spencer Tracy—nor even Will Rogers—would win prizes as Greek gods.

LESLIE HOWARD, out at the Fox, has a too narrow face to suit the commercial artist, hunting for an "ad" type, and his forehead is also higher than it would be if he were proportioned according to what magazines have advertised as "perfect" in men.

Edward G. Robinson has a mouth even bigger than that which features Joe E. Brown's face, though it be heresay to suggest it.

George Arliss has never been a handsome man, even in his younger days. His nose is large, his upper lip too long and his mouth out of proportion with his face, but all these "faults" have not hindered his career appreciably.

Richard Barthelmess has a handsome face which entitles him to honors as a good-looking man and a possible advertisement model, along with Robert Montgomery, who can be seen also at Loew's this week, except for the fact that, like Cagney, he is shorter than artists picture the perfect man.

Dick Powell lacks the square, collegiate jaw which painters delight in giving their subjects, and his grin is the infectious, boyish kind that never decorates the stern realities of the colored advertising spreads.

Adolphe Menjou is more famous for the perfection of his dress than for the regularity of his profile. Pat O'Brien could win no prizes as a classically handsome man. Lyle Talbot, who is perhaps as good looking as anyone in pictures, has so far been kept busy most of the time playing "heavy" roles.

Younger Fairbanks Starts Film Abroad

United Artists announces that Douglas Fairbanks Jr. will make two pictures in England for release by them. Work has already begun at the studios of London Films on the first, which is based on the life of Catherine the Great and is tentatively titled "Symphony in Purple."

Elizabeth Bergner, European star, will play opposite young Fairbanks in this picture, which will be directed by Alexander Korda.

Following completion of "Symphony in Purple," Douglas Fairbanks Jr. will co-star with his father, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., in a picture also to be made in England and released by United Artists.

Maybe It's Just a Regular Movie Gag

Hollywood report says that having finished his final scene in "Duck Soup," which the four Marx brothers made, Harpo Marx has begun making arrangements for a long-planned trip to the Soviet Republic, where he will appear in the Russian Art Theater in Moscow in a series of pantomime performances.

Polly Moran Signs As Alice's Dodo Bird

Polly Moran has joined the extensive cast for "Alice in Wonderland." The commedienne will take the role of the Dodo Bird, which is distinguished by its penchant for reciting the driest of dry history. Charlotte Henry has the title role in the picture. The cast includes Jack Oakie, Charlie Ruggles, Jackie Searl, Ford Sterling, Leon Errol and other screen celebrities.

Baron Suriani Tells "WHY I ALWAYS ATTRACT BEAUTIFUL WOMEN"

Adventurous Italian Noble Now Facing Hard Times, Thinks of Starting an "Escort Bureau for American Ladies Who Are Tired of Their Husbands" as a Means of Recouping His Fortune.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

Baron Suriani and his wife, Mildred Monette.

Gertrude Vanderbilt.

The Baron gives himself a good look.

NEW YORK.

THE Baron—victim of a male charm too, too fatal—sipped his gin fizz and sighed. Bald at 33—much too bald—he ran a reminiscent hand over his skull in fond search of the vagrant curl that had panicked the gilded gals of the Paris, London, Rome and New York salons before the Baron's youth and personal fortune had frittered away.

"Beautiful women," he mused, "there have been hundreds of them in my life. Always I have attracted them. Why? I do not know. I only know—but why go on? Today I am old. I feel many years older than I am. And I am penniless."

The Baron did not add that his wife and dancing partner, Mildred Monette, had left him and that his chief hope of revenue was a $50,000 damage suit he had slapped on the Hotel Claridge for allegedly permitting his departing mate to go through his trunks and take what the Baron considers valuable papers and belongings.

There were also two ambitious projects revolving in his mind, but they required capital.

One was the Professional Escort Bureau, which, if ever begun, would furnish gentlemanly companions for American ladies who were tired of the barbarous manners of their husbands.

The other was the Nobleman's Club, an entire floor, say, of a plushy hotel, which would supply shelter and caviar for Counts, Barons, Princes, Dukes, Lords and Baronets in consideration of the splendor their presence conferred on the lobby and mezzanine.

For the Baron Suriani is the only son of the late Giovanni Suriani, Baron of Costienuovo, Senator of Italy, official of the Crown of Italy, Cavalier of the Order of St. Anna of Russia and patrician of Naples. The family dates back to the fourteenth century.

When the Baron Giorgio was 16 his father, who had cut a distinguished swath through the boudoirs of Europe and drunk more than his share, died, and left the son $500,000 and an insatiable craving for pleasure of the wildest sort. So, at a tender age and after a due period of mourning, the youth set out to do a little spending and flower strewing on his own hook.

Take it from the Baron, who is scarcely reticent about his loves, he did the job up in style. Choosing Epicurus as his guide—"pleasure is the supreme good"—he swooped down on the casinos, watering places and salons of Europe and made it a point to be actively present at the very best parties, levees, carousals, debauches and orgies staged in the capitals of the Continent. A Wyoming cowhand loose in Kansas City's Twelfth street with a month's wages pinned to his undershirt couldn't have had a more glorious time.

Women? Ah, my friend. Hundreds; yes, thousands. And, of course, angry husbands and duels. Duels of honor, in which the Baron was accustomed to consider his escutcheon cleared when he had pinked the hide of the lout foolish enough to challenge him.

"Men," continued the Baron, setting down his glass, "particularly American men, do not know how to make love. I have come to the conclusion that perhaps my mission in life is to teach them, and some day I shall. American women hunger for romance and idealism, but do they get them? The answer, my friend, is no. That is the reason why debutantes, wives of wealthy men and, in fact, women of all classes, have been so strongly attracted to me.

"I will give you an example of what I mean by the stupid attitude of your men. When I first came to America in 1923, I was, with other noblemen, a guest of honor at an exclusive function in a Fifth avenue residence. Immediately the ladies flocked about me and told me how different I was. It was as obvious as that.

"My host was a famous American industrialist. You would recognize the name if I mentioned it, for it is a household word. When I was presented to his wife, I naturally kissed her hand, as is the custom of my country. I saw the face of my host flush with anger and it was not until the situation had passed that someone told me he resented my chivalry. I could not understand it, because in Europe a man is more likely to challenge you to a duel if you fail to kiss his wife's hand.

"LATER, my host, who had regained his composure, invited me to come upstairs to see his collection of Italian paintings, and I accepted with alacrity. Immediately on closing the door on us, he hurled a string of abominable epithets at me.

"I saw that the situation called for tact. My temper is a very furious one when aroused and I was never afraid to be in a fight for honor, whether it was with swords or fists, for I had learned the fine art of both during my training in the Italian army and in the fine sport clubs of Europe."

The Baron tossed down a swallow from a fresh glass and continued: "'I'll teach you, you sheik!' he cried as he rushed at me headlong. I quickly stepped from his path and he crashed heavily against the wall. 'In Europe,' I reflected, 'this would have been a duel.' He came at me again, like a tiger, and I got in several well-directed blows before he managed to clinch with me. Then we rolled on the floor, trying to gouge each other and ruining our fancy attire.

"At the height of the affair, his wife appeared in the doorway and demanded to know the reason for it all. I got up, adjusted my tie and shirt as best I could and told her. She was furious with her husband and insisted he apologize, which he did grudgingly after some persuasion. His man did wonders with our clothing and we were able to return to the party, but he was ever after a vindictive person, doing his best to injure me. And what had I done?"

It was plain that the memory hurt the Baron, but despite the pain he went on to describe how the party progressed. Disgusting, really. As the evening wore on, the guests drank greedily and the scene defied description. Several women of sensitive natures, spotting the Baron as one apart from the mob, asked him to take them home, complimenting him on his superior breeding. Indeed, added the Baron, the other nobles were just as much overcome as he by the American lack of restraint and made their adieus as gracefully and as soon as possible.

The party, the Baron decided later, was typical of post-war America, wild and unchecked. As for his social career thereafter: "I was pursued by women of every class, everywhere I went."

American women, he found, were too eager and he attributed it to the colorlessness of their husbands. Women on the continent had been more restrained, less eager to show their feelings. It was more of a game. But, in America, the battle was half won before it began.

"If I seem a Casanova, it is because American women have made me so," said the noble, modestly, clucking the ice in his glass.

This deadly but pleasant spell the Baron cast over women made life busily interesting, but in one case almost proved the great lover's undoing. It came about as an aftermath of the memorable Fifth avenue party. Two women fell exceptionally hard for Baron Suriani that night. One was a debutante daughter of a Wall Street banker, whom the Baron called Alice; the other the wife of a well-known manufacturer he designated as Muriel.

On the morning after the gay doings, he rode in Central Park with Alice and had tea with Muriel. And that was the way it ran for months, sometimes with engagements with as many as four women in a day, because women would not be denied surcease from their cruel, barbarous husbands.

"One afternoon Alice was having tea in my apartment when there came a knock," related the Baron. "I asked Alice to step into the next room and admitted my caller. It was Muriel. She greeted me enthusiastically and cried: 'What do you think? I'm going to get a divorce!'

"Before I could think of an answer I became aware of Alice's presence behind me. 'Giorgio,' she said, 'how could you?' I turned to comfort her. As I did so, Muriel opened her handbag, whipped out a vial of poison and raised it to her lips. I tried to stop her, but in vain. She collapsed. Fortunately, among the other stray bits of information I had picked up in my life was the fact that raw eggs were an antidote for certain poisons. I gave her enough to prevent great injury and the house physician did the rest."

The sequel? Muriel, when she got out of the hospital, went to Reno and got her divorce anyway, presumably so she could devote the rest of her time exclusively to memories of the gallant Baron. And Alice? Ah, Alice, my dear, what a lovely, delicate flower you were—sailed for Europe to forget.

But the Baron's American career was just beginning. He became engaged to Gertrude Vanderbilt, the actress, and that was broken off; then to two dozen other ladies, with the same result. It was a glamorous path and the Baron trod it with golden feet. But, after a few years, he decided that while he had indubitably inherited his father's flair for fun, the sire's genius for profitable investment had not been passed on. The fortune was about gone. This sad state of affairs being disclosed to him by the bouncing return of checks, the Baron began doing something that had never entered his head before. He tried to earn a living, and dancing was the field he chose.

HIS act—fancy ballroom stuff, tangoes and the like—became features of the high-class spots, those carefully hidden resorts off Park avenue, where the best people go for intellectual exhilaration. The Baron had several partners, and engagements were rumored time after time, but it was not until he had danced with Mildred Monette for some months that he decided to marry and settle down.

They had a daughter whom they named Claire and, while not as gilded as formerly, the life of the Baron seemed satisfying. The time had arrived to live peacefully and save his money. Then, like a thunderbolt, came Mildred's departure.

"Maybe I will write a book on love," he said, beckoning to a waiter. "You know, I have classified your American woman and your men, too. The women fall into four types: (1) The intellectual, (2) the highly restrained, (3) the quietly reckless and (4) the reckless 'B,' or show-off type. Your men are less varied. There are only two classes: (1) The romantic, or poetic, and (2) the smug business man. Neither has any imagination.

"I could go on like this for hours, but I must be off to an engagement. I am very much in love and I want to get married again. This time it will last, I assure you. Not only is my fiancee divine and thrilled about my title and breeding, but her papa is very, very wealthy indeed."

Unfortunately, he explained, Mildred is asking $50,000 for a release, which he is trying to sue out of the hotel, and that is why the Baron is impatient with the delays of the courts.

Down on the St. Louis levee a little more than 100 years ago you might have heard that very challenge. And the leather-lunged giant who bellowed it out could make good on nearly every point. It was Mike Fink, king of the rivermen during the first decades of the last century.

His exploits on the Ohio and the Mississippi, his colossal reputation in Pittsburgh, Natchez, St. Louis, wherever pioneers gathered together in the wilderness, and the heroic legends that grew out of his reputation are celebrated in a book recently published called "Mike Fink, King of the Mississippi Keelboatmen" (Henry Holt & Co.). The authors are Walter Blair and Franklin J. Meine, two young research scholars who have dug out of yellowing records and crumbling newspapers all that is discoverable of the life of Mike.

Neglected for all these years, Mike was in his time a people's hero almost of the stamp of Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett—although the fabulous tales that grew up around his name make him more akin to Paul Bunyan, the half-real, half-fictional hero of the Northwest loggers. But the lumbering industry continued and the Bunyan legends grew in magnitude from year to year, alive to this day in the pineries of Oregon and British Columbia.

The river boom died, the frontier passed on, and Mike Fink was left like a crumbling colossus buried, lost. It remained for Blair and Meine to stumble upon his remains, and a beautiful job of excavating they have done. Their only regret is that more of the tales told of Fink around the prairie campfires were not set down and preserved, for there were undoubtedly more—only a fraction got into print.

So far as can be determined, the real Mike Fink—as distinguished from the legendary hero of tall tales—was born in the crude settlement of Pittsburgh in the year 1770, the same year that "a Virginia gentleman named George Washington went to Pittsburgh . . . to purchase Western lands." He grew up with the virtues of the pioneer, the virtues essential to life on the perilous frontier. They were not, it happened, exactly the virtues of the Bible.

As a boy, he could out-wrestle, out-swim, out-run, out-swear all other boys. At 13 he was almost a full-grown man, with his first Indian scalps to his credit. At 15 he was the champion shot of the whole region, and announcements of the popular rifle contests of the time stated explicitly, "The match is for five prizes, with Mike Fink excluded."

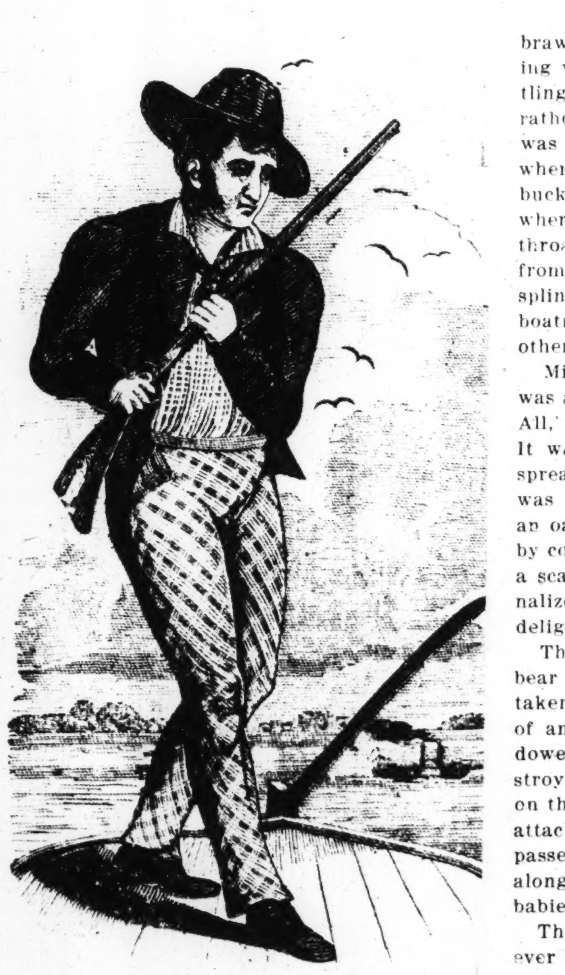
"For the exclusion, asserted a contemporary, Mike 'claimed and obtained . . . the hide and tallow (of the beef they were shooting for), for his forbearance. His usual practice was to sell his . . . quarter to the tavern or dram shop keeper for whisky, with which he treated everybody present, partaking largely himself.' "

Thus, at 15 the boy had an ideal start in life. He went with expeditions from the fort in pursuit of Indians and became one of the craftiest hunters of game and "redskins" in the history of the West. But his love was always for the river that flowed past his door and for the keelboats and the clear-sounding note of the keelboatman's horn.

TO BE a keelboatman you had to have the strength of an ox, the courage of a lion, a hide of alligator toughness to shed rain, snow, bullets and Indian arrows, and you had to have an interior of castiron to digest a diet consisting mostly of salt pork and whisky. Even as a lad of 17 or 18, Mike qualified. He won the right to a place on a keelboat by beating up a champion keelboat fighter who had challenged him after the fashion of the times. It was a great life if you were fit for it:

"The keel moved on, past Indian Loggstown, past Legionville, where General Wayne encamped in 1792, on down the river. The boatmen, for the most part, rested. Sometimes the steersman misjudged the extent of a sandbar and there was a swearing session with the poles or the oars. But the wise Baptiste (patroon, or commander) knew the river well, and there were few pauses. A fiddler in the crew brought out his fiddle and his bow, and played dance tunes, and one of the boatmen banged his feet on the cover of the boat, awkwardly jigging. One red-shirted, bewhiskered fellow trailed a hook over the stern. A little group of boatmen played with a deck of greasy cards. Mike watched the menacing river."

But if they enjoyed relative leisure on the down-river trip, they more than made up for it when they started back upstream from New Orleans with a cargo of molasses and coffee, 3000 pounds of cargo to each member of the crew. With ropes and poles they literally pulled and pushed the boat upstream against the swiftly rushing current. There was a crude sail which could occasionally be used, but mostly it was work like this:



Mike Fink

"'Along the shore, the boatman might 'bushwhack'—drag the boat along by grasping overhanging bushes and trees and pulling. On the river side of the boat, the oars were used as an aid. And now they came to a sandbar, over which there was a swift current. The men took to their poles and began a struggling march along the running boards. Their bodies shook, their chests heaved, as they pressed every ounce of strength into the timbers; poles bent; the captain urged his men on, now coaxing, now swearing prodigiously. Then a pole snapped and Mike had to do for a time the work of two, for wavering meant disaster."

At night they wolfed down their rations of half-burned pork, parched corn and whisky and fell into an exhausted sleep on the deck.

It took a Hercules such as Mike to rule the brawny keelboatmen. The mode of their fighting was somewhat similar to the present wrestling matches, except that the contestants were rather more in earnest. " 'No natural weapon was barred; fists flew at faces, feet kicked wherever they could find a target; knees bucked at unprotected crotches; teeth sank wherever there was flesh; fingers clutched at throats and thumbs seemed to gouge out eyes from their sockets.' Noses were battered, teeth splintered and blood plentifully shed when boatmen squared off and shot fists at one another."

Mike was a master of this type of battle, he was a master with the rifle, his favorite "Bang-All,' soon a master of navigation, a patroon. It was no wonder that legends and tall tales spread about him even during his lifetime. He was magnificently muscled, with a body like an oak tree, his handsome face deeply bronzed by constant exposure to the weather, dressed in a scarlet shirt, in his hat the feather that signalized his kingship, an honor which he was delighted on every occasion to defend.

They said that he had fought and killed a bear with his naked hands. They said he had taken a great moose captive without the use of any weapon but those that nature had endowed him with. He was credited with destroying the desperate outlaws of Cave-in-Rock, on the Ohio, in a pitched battle, after they had attacked his keelboat, murdering one of the passengers. He was a terror in every town along the two rivers; mothers threatened their babies with him when they misbehaved.

The legend had it that the only animal that ever bested him was a bull. And then the bull took a foul advantage of Mike, catching him when he stood half naked in a stream, pulling his scarlet shirt over his head in the deacon's pasture.

Mike ducked the bull's first rush and grabbed its tail. He hung on while the bull romped through briar patches at such a pace that poor Mike, as free of clothes as the day he was born, was suspended at right angles to the ground. To make matters even worse, the deacon's dogs, no friends of Mike Fink at any time, joined the attack. To escape, Mike leaped from the broad back of the bull, to which he had taken as a refuge from the dogs, into a tree. There he encountered a hornets' nest and promptly fell upon the bull again. The hornets took after Mike, the bull and the dogs, and the whole party went streaking by the house, where the deacon was holding prayer meeting.

"Well, we'd got about 200 yards from the house, and the deacon hern us and come out. I saw him hold up his hand and turn white. I reckon he was prayin', then, for he didn't expect to be called for so soon, and it wasn't long, neither, before the whole congregation, men, women and children,' come out, and all hands went to yellin'! None of 'em had the first notion that brindle and I belonged to this world. I just turned my head and passed the bull congregation. I see the run would be up soon, for brindle couldn't turn an inch from a fence that stood dead ahead.

"Well, we reached that fence, and I went ashore, over the old critter's head, landing on t'other side, and lay thar stunned.

"And when the congregation got over the skeer started by seein' the parade of beasts, insects an' me, arter hearing a sermon on hell-fire, an' got up enough courage to investigate, they found that I had for once been worsted in a scrimmage. My courtship, for once, struck a snag."

Mike was a fit subject for the lusty pioneer humor. There are dozens of tales like that one of Mike's fight with the bull. Another type of tale deals with his heroic exploits, and it is in this phase that he most nearly resembles Paul Bunyan, the loggers' hero. These legends endow Mike with a wife and daughter of equally heroic proportions. This is a picture of Mike's daughter, Sal:

"SHE fought a duel once with a thunderbolt, an' come off without a single scratch, while at the fust fire, she split the thunderbolt all to flinders, an' gave the pieces to Uncle Sam's artillerymen, to touch off their cannon with. When a gal about 6 years old, she used to play see-saw on the Mississippi snags, and arter she war done she would snap 'em off, an' so cleared a large district of the river. She used to ride down the river on an alligator's back, standin' upright, an' dancing Yankee Doodle, an' could leave all the steamers behind. But the greatest feat she ever did, positively outdid anything that ever was did."

There follows the story of how Sal was captured by the Indians, freed herself during the night and in a surprise attack took 50 scalps and escaped. That was the kind of gal Sal was.

Long before the Cuckoo gang was ever heard of, Mike and his keelboat friends were the terror of St. Louis. For the most part they confined their activities to the dives along the waterfront, but occasionally—as in Natchez, too—they invaded the respectable body of the town. And then there was hell to pay for storekeepers and anybody who happened to be on the street. The same thing happened that happens when a horde of wild young college freshmen turns loose in a college town to celebrate a football victory. Mike and his keelboatmen took the town.

Besides these mass invasions, Mike was always up to tricks, always fighting. Once he was sitting on the levee with some of his cronies when a dispute about his skill as a marksman came up. More than 100 yards away a Negro sat on the bank above the levee. He was

CARSON HILL GOLD MINE RUNS AGAIN

By GUY FORSHEY

SONORA, California.

THE smell of gold is in the air again in this historic section of the Mother Lode country, and the rumble of ore mills can be heard up and down the Bret Harte trail all the way from Tuttletown to Angel's Camp. There is a stir of unusual activity about and an atmosphere of elation, for the famous old Carson Hill gold mine is running again full blast and shipping out cargoes of yellow metal as it did in the days when Mark Twain lived in the cabin on Jackass Hill, nearby, and Bret Harte was getting material in hand for such tales as "Luck of Roaring Camp" and "Outcasts of Poker Flat."

After gathering dust and cobwebs for many years, the wheels at Carson started turning on Labor Day and the occasion was marked by a joyful demonstration. Practically all of Calaveras County came out for the celebration. A brass band from Angel's Camp let loose with a lusty program, there was speechmaking in large volume, free lunch, a dance and no end of cheering—and there was good reason for it all.

The mine produces some $3000 worth of gold per day and provides employment for more than 100 miners, circumstances which ought to justify a good deal of cheering in any community. But this reopening involved more than a mere economic consideration. There was a lot of sentiment mixed up in it. The Carson Hill mine's return to life and activity means reestablishment of a venerable institution in Calaveras County. For since the days of '49 much of the county's history and romance have revolved about the place. Resumption of gold production there now somehow seems to restore the region's lost youth. It carries the district back closer to that colorful past, toward which most of the Mother Lode country long since has turned its face.

There have been few gold mines in the world that could match the Carson Hill mine in its palmy days—or rather the Carson Hill group of mines, for there were 62 separate claims originally and most of them rich. It was once rated as one of the five greatest in the world, and it still ranks as one of the greatest of all time in point of total production.

SINCE the staking of this first claim on Carson Hill in 1849, this rugged bulge in the earth's crust has produced more than $20,000,000 worth of shining metal, or about one-twelfth of all the gold taken from the entire Mother Lode belt, which extends over a length of 150 miles.

One mine of the group, the celebrated Morgan claim, besides producing $3,000,000 of gold in less than three years, produced the largest nugget ever found in California and the second largest in the world. It weighed 195 pounds and was worth $43,000. And that was just part of a $110,000 deposit which was broken down with a single blast of powder.

Another claim—and one of the richest gulches of all—was discovered through the digging of a grave for a dead miner. In his "Robin Hood of El Dorado," the late Walter Noble Burns chronicled an amusing anecdote concerning this strike.

"On Carson Creek," he related, "a miner died and a crowd of his friends assembled for the obsequies. While the preacher was praying, a miner with head bowed solemnly, saw a nugget sticking out of the dirt thrown from the grave and, reaching out a furtive hand, dropped it into his pocket. 'O Lord,' intoned the parson, 'forgive the sins of our departed brother—what was that you picked up, Bill?—and receive his soul into Thy kingdom—A nugget?—Amen. This funeral's adjourned. I'm staking my claim right at this grave.' It turned out to be a rich claim. The deceased was buried somewhere else."

All of these separate claims are now under unified control and are worked as one mine by the Carson Hill Gold Mining Corporation. The property extends for three miles along the Mother Lode and embraces 1500 acres. High grade ore was exhausted long ago, but gold-bearing quartz, running from $3 to $14 to the ton is being mined at a rate of 600 tons a day.

Carson Hill was named for James Carson, who, with a party of prospectors, first discovered gold there in 1849. The first gold scales used there, Carson afterwards related, were made "by taking a piece of pine wood for the beam, pieces of sardine boxes for the scales and silver dollars for weights." Claims were not staked out at first. The miners simply worked in groups where the nuggets were the thickest. Carson Hill immediately became famous. Frank Marryat, in 1855, described it in this wise:

"The rivers produced, the hills produced, and even the quartz produced, having been previously rotted by nature that man might pick the gold out with his penknife. . . . Mr. Carson asserts that the man who would work could make from 50 to 100 pounds sterling a day."

One day in the fall of 1852 Henry Comstock was hunting rabbits. He shot one, crawled through the underbrush to retrieve it, dragged his gun in the rocky soil and turned up a nugget. This strike became the Melones mine and the rabbit hunter became a millionaire almost overnight.

The Melones group of diggings, which included the Morgan gloryhole, fell into bandit hands in 1853, when Billy Mulligan, a renegade Texas ranger, driven out of San Francisco by the Vigilante Committee, organized a band of outlaws and drove the miners from their claims. The bandits held the mine and its treasure for nine months, working the claims until there was recruited a force of vigilantes of sufficient strength to storm the mine. Eighteen of the ruffians were captured in the assault and nine of them were lynched. The others were allowed to escape on condition that they leave the country. Mulligan himself had previously departed for San Francisco and so escaped the noose.

THE Carson Hill area is as rich now in anecdote as it was in gold in the roaring camp days, and one of the favorite stories told hereabouts is the tale of how Mark Twain missed a fortune in gold by one bucket of water.

It was in the '60s. Twain, living in the cabin which still stands on Jackass Hill and dividing his time between prospecting and writing the story of the "Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," was working a claim one day with a partner, Jim Gillis. Twain was carrying water and Gillis panning dirt. A cold rain was falling. Twain got chilly and discouraged.

"I won't carry any more water," he told Gillis. "I'm cold and wet to the skin. I'm going in by the fire."

"Not another drop. I'm freezing."

So they quit work, went in by the fire and decided to move to other parts. Thinking he might return, Gillis wrote out a 30-day claim notice on a scrap of paper and stuck it on a stick beside the unwashed pan of dirt. Then the prospectors departed, Twain going to San Francisco and Gillis in another direction. They never came back to wash out that last pan, but the rain kept up and laid bare a handful of nuggets of pure gold. A few days later Lewis Page and a Swede from Saw Mill Flat were prospecting up that way and stumbled upon the pan and its glittering contents. They settled down to wait for the 30-day notice to expire and the minute the time was up they went to work. From the claim they took out $20,000 in gold.

He Reported What Happened "Behind the Door of Delusion"

The Strange History of Marion Merle Woodson Who Was College President, Foreign Correspondent and Then Wrote His Experiences While in an Insane Asylum.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

VINITA, Oklahoma.

MARION MERLE WOODSON died the other day in the Eastern Oklahoma Hospital for the Insane. His life, which began 54 years ago, was a strange mixture of success and misery, of high places and tragic interludes. The son of a poor family, descended from Western pioneers, he worked his way through college as a professional athlete, became a college president at the age of 29, served as a newspaper correspondent during a Balkan war, won a comfortable fortune, and then—marriage, tragedy, drunkenness and insanity. Then rehabilitation, high success again—and death.

A few weeks ago, knowing that the end was near, Woodson sent a message to his friends in Tulsa. "It is only a matter of days, and perhaps of hours," he dictated, no longer able to hold a pen, "but I want to send a cheery farewell to you and to my other good friends there."

Under the pseudonym "Inmate, Ward 8," Woodson achieved his greatest success as author of a book which described the life of the asylum where he was confined. He called it, significantly, "Behind the Door of Delusion." The most extraordinary chapter of his strange story is the one which tells how, drink-crazed and miserable, he focused his mind on the self-appointed task of writing this book, which is considered a contribution both to science and to letters. Woodson tells of his experiences as "just another bug" in an institution where there were 2000. He gives a vivid picture of his neighbors, the more nearly normal patients housed in the "receiving ward," and describes those other inmates in the recesses of the building, whose continual screams and curses made the night horrible and prevented sleep.

"Behind the Door of Delusion" was considered so valuable an account of conditions within an institution of this sort that several colleges have made it a part of the compulsory reading for advanced students of psychology and sociology.

But the whole story is not in his book. Woodson had been a track and baseball star in his early school days. When he was faced witn the necessity of working his way through the Oklahoma A. and M. College, he played baseball in the Western, Southern and Texas minor leagues. On graduating, he had to make up his mind whether to depend on his muscles or on his active brain to earn a livelihood. He decided in favor of the latter and became an instructor.

Woodson's success as a teacher was such that he was soon promoted to the presidency of the Connell School of Agriculture at Helena. Only 29 years old, he was the youngest man ever to hold such a post in Oklahoma.

When the agricultural school was abolished a few years later, Woodson was forced to seek another vocation. Having dabbled in writing a little, he decided to become a newspaper man. After holding various reportorial jobs, he was sent to the Balkan post and later to India by the Associated Press.

Shortly after returning to this country, he went into promotion work in California. He made a small fortune and soon afterwards married. Buying a comfortable home in Nevada, he settled down to lead the quiet life. But such hopes were brief, for, returning to his home from a trip in the East, he discovered that his wife had deserted him, taking most of his fortune with her, for their property was held jointly.

DEMORALIZED by the shock of this experience, Woodson became a migrant reporter—and a heavy drinker. He wandered through the small towns of the West, seldom able to hold down a job for more than a few months. There was a brief period of recovery, when he obtained a position as feature writer for the Tulsa Tribune, but later he relapsed into his old habits. The strain of continued excesses finally had its effect on his mind. One day he was found tapping absently at a piece of paper, under the impression that he was at work on his typewriter. His friends had him sent to the hospital, a dipsomaniac.

Despite his condition, Woodson had not lost his ability as a trained observer. When he had partially recovered, he became interested in what went on about him, wrote it down to relieve the monotony of his life and to discipline his mind, and published it in the form of a book.

At the same time, he devoted himself to forming a library, feeling that this contribution might aid in the recovery of other patients whose mentality was being further damaged by the daily occupation of staring at blank walls.

Rehabilitated, Woodson was given a trial parole. Disguised by a full beard and a pseudonym, he attended the authors' dinner which was given last January by the Eastern Publishers' Association.

Then, last March, he was given his freedom and restored to his legal rights. He was jubilant. He had won his victory over liquor, his book was enjoying a wide sale, he was accomplishing a useful mission with his library. He savored his new liberty and planned to retire to a New Mexico cabin and write.

But he was soon to find that he was not yet "outside the door of delusion."

Last summer, while closing the door of an automobile, he caught his arm.

Marion Merle Woodson.

Although the blow did not seem severe, it resulted in a compound fracture. Medical examination showed there was a well-developed sarcoma, a cancerous infection. This time his ability and his will were ineffectual against death.

BEDLAM BROKE LOOSE

By JACK ALEXANDER

Cecelia McCormick on trial for her life.

Mrs. Cecelia McCormick.

The late Andrew "Red" McCormick.

NEW YORK.

BEDLAM broke loose in the forbidding old Raymond Street Jail in Brooklyn on chill November 26 last year. Andrew ("Red") McCormick, the bank robber, was running wild with a smuggled .38-caliber revolver. Flame spurted in the leaden dusk and the reports, bounding off the hard walls, were a confused, roaring jumble. Head Keeper William McConnell tumbled off his plain metal desk chair and died on the floor, with a stare of surprise. Father James Honeck, brother of the Warden and chaplain of the jail, grabbed his own right wrist and watched a small red line trickle from a flesh wound.

Keeper Herbert Nolan crawled out cautiously from under a table in a visiting room as Warden Harry Honeck came on the run from his office, armed with a sawed-off shotgun. There was one final detonation from around the bend in the corridor. "Red" McCormick had shot himself through the head with his last bullet. He died in the arms of his attractive looking wife, Cecelia.

Police and prosecuting authorities worked fast on the case. Mrs. McCormick was subjected to a 12-hour grilling, without food or sleep, and a "confession" was brought forth. It was announced the 21-year-old widow had sneaked a revolver to her husband, who was in a fair way of getting life under the Baumes law, and that he had tried to shoot his way out, committing suicide when failure seemed certain. Warden Honeck and Keeper Nolan were suspended. The authorities said that Mrs. McCormick had been in the jail outside visiting hours and had paid Nolan $5 for the privilege.

Nolan had been preying upon the miserable relatives of prisoners for months, extorting their wrinkled $5 bills and sweaty small change. Within a month, humiliated by the exposure, he had shot his wife, Hilda, to death and tried to kill himself. He is today a prisoner in his own jail, awaiting trial for murder. Warden Honeck was cleared and reinstated.

The spotlight then turned on Cecelia McCormick. In an interview given almost immediately after her so-called "third degree" she declared that she had been told that she would be kept awake until she confessed aiding and abetting a jail delivery. About to become a mother and weak physically, she signed the "confession," she said. Then she told a story of having gone to the jail with the intention of dying with her husband in a suicide agreement; of how "Red" had become enraged when told that Nolan had taken her last $5 bill and had shot at him, hitting instead two innocent bystanders. She admitted bringing in the revolver and two bottles of chloroform, excellent accessories for a jail breaker. But her lawyer asked pertinently, would the woman with whom a criminal expected to live in hiding the rest of their lives remain on the scene of a prospective gun fight?

At any rate, Cecelia McCormick went to jail, coming out only for 10 days to give birth to a son, Billy, in the prison ward of Kings County Hospital last May. From then until her trial, which recently ended, she was not allowed to see the child. It was only when "one of the hardest-boiled juries ever drawn in Kings County" acquitted her and removed the shadow of the electric chair that she was reunited with him. He had learned a number of new tricks.

If Cecelia McCormick is so inclined (and if her story of the affair at the jail is true), she had much food for ironical reflection as she weaves together the loose ends of her life. When she first met McCormick, he was a "big spender" in a Greenwich Village night club where she was hat-check girl. Broad-shouldered and devil-may-care, the brick-topped husky handed her a $5 tip the first night. There followed dates and in a few weeks, marriage.

TWO weeks after they had set up in an apartment, "Red" and his brother Michael were arrested for holding up the Bank of Manhattan Trust Company. According to the girl, this was her first inkling that her husband was a criminal. He had what is known as a double-disc police record—entries on both sides of the card.

As the deadliness of their situation came home to them in the cheerless steel visiting room of the jail, they decided, Cecelia McCormick claims, that death for both was the best way out. Deeply in love, neither felt like living without the other, she says. Granting the truth of this story, there is especial irony in the failure of the girl to die with her husband, in the birth of her child behind bars and her trial for murdering a man at whom she had admittedly never fired a shot. And if her mind is inclined to ask questions, she may wonder about the crazy-quilt pattern of events that bares the attempted suicide of two people in one corner and the murder of two other persons, one of whom had little connection with the first pair, and the second none whatever—Head Keeper McConnell and Hilda Nolan, the wife of his subordinate.

The jury—civil engineer, real estate dealer, banker, apartment house superintendent, salesman, manufacturer—did not indicate whether or not they accepted the girl's story. "Not guilty because of temporary insanity" was their verdict. They rejected options of guilty of first degree murder and first degree homicide.

The trial could not have been arranged better for dramatic effect by a Hollywood scenario writer. County Judge Franklin Taylor refused throughout to let the defendant see or touch her child, although the grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Kennedy, was in daily attendance with him. Delving further into the Hollywood tradition, Judge Taylor sternly ordered the grandmother to keep out of the courtroom until her turn came to testify. Assistant District Attorney Ralph Jacobs painted the defendant a black murderer and in his cross-examination caused her to break down. As if the dramatic lily needed painting, the forces of the State bore down on the comely prisoner until the only possible climax was a ringing acquittal, a burst of cheering and the tearful round of congratulations.

The State's case began with the usual formal testimony. The medical examiner accepted two slugs from the prosecutor and affirmed that he had removed them from the bodies of McConnell and McCormick. A detective said he had carried them to the ballistics expert of the Police Department, and the latter testified they had been fired from the revolver in evidence. The prosecutor next offered in evidence the two bottles of chloroform and four small rags the defendant had carried with her. Step by step, he connected up his evidence with testimony.

Earl Hall, a letter carrier, who had been making a delivery, furnished a graphic account of the shooting.

"I saw McCormick come out of a room with a gun in his hand," he testified. "McCormick spoke to Nolan. Nolan put up his hands and said: 'I haven't got the keys, Mac.'

"Then McCormick turned toward the office. 'Hey, Dep,' he said as he walked over to the barred gate. Then he shot the head keeper, Deputy Sheriff McConnell. He started to run away. Nolan hollered: 'Ditch it Ditch it!'

"'It's too late!' McCormick yelled, and ran down the corridor and shot himself."

The next witness was a trusty, Thomas Troccoli. He testified in broken English and furnished typical motion picture comedy relief. Troccoli's wife was visiting that day, too.

"I hear shots. I run to empty room," he said, with gesticulations. "I put my wife under table. I hear a woman cry: 'Ginger, Ginger (Mrs. McCormick's pet name for "Red"), what you done that for, what you done that for?'"

"Didn't you try to get out?" he was asked.

"TRY get out?" he repeated with a wry grimace that brought laughter. "How I get out?"

"Was it a barred room?"

"No bar room in that jail," replied Troccoli. His budding career of wisecracking was nipped and he was excused and taken back, through a lane of grinning spectators, to his cell.

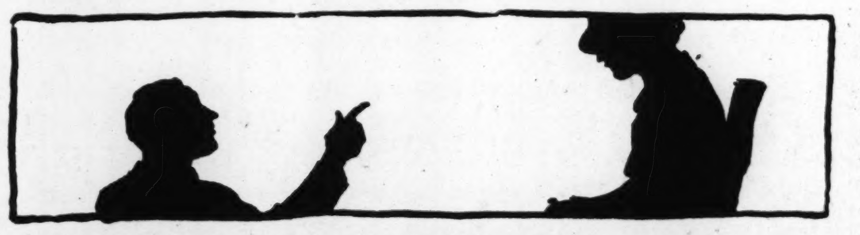
One of the first defense witnesses was a detective who said that Mrs. McCormick had told him of the claimed suicide agreement a few hours after the shooting, thus scotching the charge that her lawyer had doped it out on the spur of the moment.

An alienist said that "confusional insanity" was not uncommon among prospective mothers, and that it robbed them on occasion of the faculty of telling right from wrong.

Jean O'Leary, an aunt of the prisoner, testified that the girl failed mentally and physically under the strain of her own and her husband's plight.

"She would throw her hands over her head and say she did not want to live, because she loved her husband," the aunt said.

"Was there anything unusual that last night?" asked Edward J. Reilly, defense lawyer.



At this question, the prisoner, sitting next to her attorney, broke into subdued sobbing, audible throughout the courtroom.

"She said," the aunt testified, "'I may see you all some time, maybe in heaven.'"

There was no doubt of the girl's love for the gangster, even after she discovered he was a holdup man, the witness said.

This surprised Judge Taylor, who asked the aunt: "Would you have continued to love a man under such conditions?"

"Love is love, no matter what the man is," the middle-aged witness replied. Judge Taylor looked over his glasses in amazement, then settled back and ordered that the trial proceed.

Additional light on the girl's conduct on the final day was shed by Fred Toch, an old friend of the family, who happened to be visiting.

"She went around crying and kissing everybody," testified Mr. Toch. "She even kissed me. That was enough to show she wasn't in her right mind."

"Hadn't she given you a kiss before?" he was asked.

"Yes, but not as long as this one."

The jury laughed.

With the stage thus set for her appearance, Cecelia McCormick took the stand. Before she had completed the recital of her tribulations spectators were weeping. Once a juror wept and another removed his glasses and blinked. Only Judge Taylor remained adamant.

Speaking softly and calmly, the witness, with her head lowered, told of her life with her widowed mother, a seamstress. In spite of handicaps, she went as far as high school and was twice president of her class. At 14 she went to work making and selling parchment lampshades at $11 a week. Then she became a process server for a realtor at $20 a week. Her next job was that of hat check girl in a cabaret, where she worked from "7 p. m. to whenever the place closed up."

"I was hat-checking in the club when I met Ginger," she testified. "He came in and gave me his hat and coat, and when he left he gave me a $5 tip. After that he came in several times and asked to take me home. I finally let him, and then we had a few dates, and one day he said, 'Let's get married,' and we did, because we were in love."

There was no engagement ring, but a flashy wedding ring. McCormick picked out an apartment and handed his bride $700 with which to furnish it. He peeled it off a large roll of bills.

"I never saw so much money in my life before," the widow testified.

They arranged the furnishings together, she continued, Ginger hanging the curtains and causing them both to laugh when he fell off the ladder.

GINGER made friends with everybody, she said, even her mother, who had demurred at the suddenness of the match. Nobody could resist the bluff manner and the broad smile.

It came as a terrific shock, therefore, the witness said, when a friend came bursting into the apartment two weeks after the marriage ceremony with the terrifying information that Ginger had been arrested for bank robbery. The bride refused to believe it at first, stating that there were lots of Andrew McCormicks.

"But his brother Mike was pinched, too," the neighbor insisted, producing a newspaper to show it.

Then started the long train of visits to the Raymond Street Jail. Ginger was not the affluent spender he pretended to be. He had less than $1000 to his name and his lawyer refused to defend him for a smaller fee. So McCormick pleaded guilty and ordered his wife to spend what was left in getting a "mouthpiece" for Michael, but Michael had already entered a plea

The TRUTH ABOUT the BARRYMORES

And Drags Lionel and John on the Stage With Her in the First Public Appearance of Any of Them.

The famous Georgie Drew Barrymore with her children, Ethel, Lionel and John.

Lionel and John in Hollywood.

This is the second of a series of articles written by John Barrymore on the lives of his sister and brother, Ethel and Lionel, and himself—an intimate history of "The Royal Family" of the American theater.

By JOHN BARRYMORE

WHEN Ethel came to Hollywood, she stepped into a strange, weird, disorderly land. She was accustomed to a rather orderly theatrical life, in which a manager bought a play, she gathered a cast, rehearsed, and there you were.

"When do we start?" she asked me, after nothing had happened for three days.

"As soon as they get a story," I said.

"Do you mean to tell me," she cried, "that they haven't got a story!"

"They have six," I said, "and they don't think any of them is good enough."

"Good God!" said Ethel.

"I hope they don't find one for three months," I said. "I'm loafing around, playing golf and having a grand time. Lionel is puttering around with his etchings. Relax, Ee-thyl—enjoy the climate. They'll get a story after a while—at least they always have."

"I'll attend to that," said Ethel.

Our salaries did not begin until we started work on the picture, but that wasn't what was worrying Ethel. She had to get back to New York to rehearse a play.

The next day she went to Thalberg, who was as upset about the story as Ethel was.

"Why don't you get Charley MacArthur to do it?" she asked. Charley MacArthur is, of course, a successful playwright. His wife is Helen Hayes, the actress, an old friend of Ethel's. He had just arrived in Hollywood for a rest.

"He's just the man," Thalberg said, "but he won't do it."

"I'll make him do it," Ethel said.

That night she went over to MacArthur's fragile stucco Hollywood bungalow, threw open the door and marched in. She nodded to Helen Hayes and seized Charley by the shoulders, frightening him almost to death.

"You're going to write 'Rasputin,'" she announced.

"Nope," said Charley. "Not me!"

She shook him. "You're going to write 'Rasputin.'"

Charley grabbed Helen Hayes and threw her in front of him like a shield.

"Listen, lady," he said to Ethel, "I'll die before I write 'Rasputin.'"

Helen Hayes protested. "Charley," she said, "no woman ever talked to you like that. What are you going to do about it?"

"No 'Rasputin,'" said Charley, doggedly.

Ethel swept a pile of books and magazines off a table onto the floor.

"Do you want me to tear down this house?" she threatened.

"I'll throw that lamp right through the wall," Ethel declared.

"Look out, Charley," Helen Hayes screamed. "She's going to do it!"

Ethel stayed there until 3 o'clock in the morning, telling him all she knew of Russian history—which is just about all there is to know. Ethel met the Czar and Czarina in London at the time of Queen Victoria's funeral. She was playing in London with Sir Henry Irving in "Peter the Great," and was living at Stafford House with the Duchess of Sutherland. While she was there the Duke of Sutherland entertained the Czar and Czarina.

So MacArthur wrote the story.

The research job on this picture was enormous. A force of experts checked every set, every gesture, every costume. The director, Richard Boleslavsky, was a Russian, and author of "The Way of a Lancer." On the set, at all times, was a man who was an officer in the Czar's guard. Even the jewels that Ethel wore are perfect reproductions, down to the exact number of pearls and diamonds.

ALTHOUGH I have met members of the Russian royal family, I can contribute little to the history of the times. On the Duke of Westminster's yacht at Biarritz nine years ago, I met two little old ladies in black, who were the Czar's sister and his niece. I remember little about them except that they had seen Lionel in a Russian story called "Enemies of Women," and they wondered why the Russians in the picture behaved utterly unlike any Russians that they had ever seen. I told them that was one of the secrets of the movies that I was sworn never to disclose. They said they thought it was very silly to have secrets like that.

I don't know whether they are alive now or not, but if they are, I hope they saw "Rasputin." Perhaps then they will forgive.

I once knew the Grand Duke Boris, the wildest rake New York ever saw. It was nearly 30 years ago, when I was an artist on the New York Journal, and had sworn to high heaven that there was no power on earth that ever would make me become an actor.

The Grand Duke had come from Russia to visit some society friends in Newport, and before he cast himself into culture, he gave at the Hoffman House a party that was rowdier than anything Hollywood historians ever dreamed of. A Russian official named Schlippenbach invited me, and I took Evelyn Nesbit, who was a chorus girl in "The Wild Rose." Stanford White had introduced her to me. This was several years before Harry Thaw killed White.

I didn't have a dress suit for the party, and Harry Davenport, an actor—and a relation by marriage—gave me one. It turned out that it was a trick suit that had been used by a lightning change artist and you clamped the trousers on like a shell instead of stepping into them. They were held together by some whalebone hocus pocus, the combination of which I never did discover.

I was having a gay time dancing with Evelyn when suddenly the whalebone went into its lightning change routine and the pants popped open at the back. I retreated instantly, crawfish-like, bowing gallantly to Evelyn.

When I put the pants together again, with the help of safety pins, and returned to the party, the Grand Duke Boris had taken charge of Evelyn and when I approached to claim my girl, swept me aside with a volley of iskiovitches and oppopopoffs, which Evelyn O K'd with a tilt of her chin and a forbidding glare. So I went home, a thorough Bolshevik.

In "Rasputin" I took my revenge. In "Rasputin" the Grand Duke Boris was of little consequence, and was played by an extra man and took no part in the proceedings. I sneered at him every time I passed by.

One of these days I shall explain to the extra man why I sneered and why I stepped up to him one day and muttered: "If you don't leave my girl alone, I'll knock your block off!" He possibly was quite upset and confused and bewildered by my attitude—particularly if he happened to be keeping company with a girl.

AROUND a set, people continually make suggestions as to how the story or the acting or the lighting can be improved. One brainy gentleman suggested to Ethel that the story of "Rasputin" would be strengthened dramatically if the Mad Monk were shown having an affair with one of the Czar's daughters.

The opinionated fellow waved both hands. "Aw, quit kidding," he said. "How could the King of England be related to a Russian?"

Upset by the rumors that the Barrymores were going to be tough, some of the officials from the New York office came out, before we started, to look over the ground before they went ahead and risked more than $1,000,000. They were afraid that the Barrymores would whim that million right into the gutter.

I talked with them. "You're silly," I said. "We're on this job to work."

"Yeah," said one, "but Adolph Zukor told me once how they sent a company on location to George Gould's house at Lakeville, New Jersey, and you forgot to bring the pants of the uniform, and they had to hold the company and a hundred extra people there for another day while you went back to New York for your pants."

"Harry Warner told me," said another, "how you showed up one morning on the 'Moby Dick' location down at San Pedro, after an all-night masquerade party, made up like a tramp, and they had to sit around half a day while you changed your makeup."

"Gentlemen," I said, "I'll guarantee that you'll have no trouble. Let Ethel and Lionel act and I'll just behave."

Which, I swear, I have done. I have behaved ever since the pictures went "talkie," for you have to take talking pictures seriously. They are the greatest dramatic medium that we have. The silent pictures, with no registered dialogue, were a constant temptation for kidding. Nothing you said was registered with the audience. At least, so I supposed, until one day I received an indignant protest from a deaf and dumb school, whose lip-reading students saw one of my pictures in which I had unfortunately lost my temper and used language entirely unsuitable for the eyes of the deaf and dumb. After that I was more careful.

ETHEL and Lionel had big parts in "Rasputin." Mine was rather insignificant and at times irritating—not because it was a minor part, but because the script demanded I be dressed up in a gallant uniform with gold braid and at times I had to wear a metal helmet with golden eagles on it. It was one of those parts where I was supposed to be a beautiful hero, and I don't like beautiful heroes.

One day they handed me a part that ran four pages. I was delighted. At last I was to take part in the affairs of the Russian court.

"Pardon me," said the supervisor, taking it away from me, "I gave you Lionel's part."

"What about me?" I asked. "Am I in this blooming show?"

"Oh, yes," he said. "Here you are."

He handed me a single page, in the middle of which was written my part for the day. It read as follows: "Yes, but . . ."

For which recognition, small though it might be, I thanked my immortal ancestors and, after deep study, I delivered the line 14 times—at rehearsals, takes and retakes—with great intelligence and significance, and with terrific conviction.

Most actors in the movies are not quick studies. Ethel knows a part almost instantly, after reading it only two or three times.

They handed her three pages one day.

"When do we do this?" she asked.

"As soon as you learn it, Miss Barrymore. Say, in an hour."

"I'm expected to take an hour to learn only three pages!" she exclaimed. "What am I supposed to do recite it backwards?"

I suppose a gala occasion should have been made of the moment we three first appeared together on the set, but it was all rather silly. Three hundred newspaper publishers who were in a convention in Los Angeles had been invited to bring their wives and come out and watch the three Barrymores perform. They were all lined up as though we were three performing elephants.

We were perfectly willing to help the party along, but the picture hadn't been started and we didn't have any script! So for the sake of the visitors we faked a scene. It was a very fine scene, even though there was no film in the camera and the microphone wasn't turned on. The visitors seemed to be greatly impressed and doubtless told all their friends about this stirring episode, and were set down as infamous liars when the picture came to town and there was no such scene in it.

IT WAS outside the Czarevitch's bedroom. Followed by the Czarina and by me, Lionel carried the Czarevitch into the bedroom. We ad libbed as we went along and Lionel became intensely dramatic, especially when, his hands occupied in holding the boy, part of his whiskers got up his nose and tickled him.

The only thing that seemed to disappoint the visitors was that the stage was not crowded with magnificent portable dressing room bungalows. They thought the Barrymores each would have a country house in which to powder noses.

Lionel and I carry a powder puff and use any mirror that happens to be handy. We have no portable dressing room whatsoever. Our regular dressing rooms are adequate, and nothing more. I'm intensely superstitious about elaborate dressing rooms. The only time I ever had one, I was fired.

Ethel feels the same way, and she was rather uneasy in Greta Garbo's three-room suite. On the set, she used a tiny wooden room which looks quite dilapidated and which seemed to shrink in shame when Joan Crawford's mansion on wheels was pushed past. Joan's looks like a suburban cottage and has saucy green shutters.

When I went to work they asked me if I wanted a portable dressing room, and I said: "Certainly. I want one with swinging doors, and over the top I want a big sign reading, 'John Barrymore, Ales and Beers.'" But I never got it. If Ethel had asked for it, they would have given it to her without question.

Ethel's qualities as a trouper, and her sportsmanship, were exemplified in her first experiences with the talking pictures. She didn't demand that the technique and mechanics for talking pictures be made over for her benefit, as has been suggested by some writers. She made up her mind that she wouldn't be licked by these weird gadgets. It took her a couple of days to regulate her splendid voice to that inverted spittoon called the "microphone" that follows you like a ball of fire, and which is the master whom you must obey at every moment. You have to get your voice through that instrument so that every word you speak will be heard by the boys in the gallery in Indianapolis and Springfield six months later. If you don't, the fellow in the mixing room rings a bell, and you have to do it all over again. It's a great trial to a legitimate actor, until he gets the hang of it.

The first time that Ethel, Lionel and I appeared together on any stage was in "Camille." Ethel was Camille, Lionel was Armand and I was Count de Varville. It was in a barn on Fourth of July eve, back of Mme. Bourquin's actors' boarding house, near Fort Wadsworth, on Staten Island, New York.

Lionel was 12 years old, Ethel was 10 and I was 8.

We were being cared for by my grandmother, Mrs. John Drew Sr., who, as Louisa Lane, had been a famous actress in England and America. Uncle Sidney Drew was there that summer, too. Years later he was to make those delightful domestic movie comedies that brightened many a motion picture program.

Our mother, Georgie Drew Barrymore, and our father, Maurice Barrymore, were on tour. In those days children of successful actors saw their parents quite infrequently. My mother died when I was 11 and I remember her only vaguely. I didn't become really acquainted with my delightful father until I was about 18 years old, when we were together constantly for more than a year.

It was Ethel who decided that we should put on a show. Even at the age of 10 she was consumed with the fire of ambition. Before her always was the inspiring history of my grandmother's early days in the theater.

"Grandmother Drew was a great actress in England when she was 8 years old!" Ethel would point out despairingly, as if, at 10, the best days of her own life had passed. "Here I am, getting older every day, and I haven't done anything!"

She would refer reverently to one of the family treasures—a lithograph published in 1828 showing "Miss Lane, 8 Years of Age, in the Five Characters of 'Twelve Precisely.'" At 8, Grandmother Drew wasn't satisfied to play one part in a show. She played five. It exhausted Lionel and me just to look at that lithograph.

GRANDMOTHER DREW had been born to the stage. Her father was Thomas Frederick Lane, an English actor of some fame, and her mother was Eliza Trenter Lane, singer and actress. Grandmother had played Shakespeare's "King John" when she was 11. Family tradition has it that audiences cheered her and she played to crowded houses.

Grandmother was known as The Duchess, and a duchess she was—imperial, austere, stately — demanding and receiving always the homage due a great lady of the theater, Dowager of the Drews.

Her children were John Drew, Sidney Drew, Louisa Drew Mendum and Georgie Drew Barrymore, my mother—actors all. My grandfather, John Drew Sr., an actor famous in England and America, died when he was about 33.

Three little vagabonds we were —Ethel, Lionel and I—except in the presence of Grandmother Drew. Then we spoke like little ladies and gentlemen, in hushed voices, and took care that we did not burr our r's nor drop our g's.

Around us, day after day, we heard talk of little except the theater. We knew few grown-ups who were not actors.

They spoke often of Camille. Ethel had little idea what Camille was about, but she realized that every great actress at one time or another played it. To actresses in those days it was the part of parts in the play of plays.

The best was none too good for our first appearance on any stage, so Ethel decided to produce "The Three Barrymores in Camille."

She got one of the older boys, who had seen the play but who had forgotten most of it, to write it for her. The adaptation retained little of the original version.

I don't remember the name of the adapter, nor ever heard what became of him. But today as I look upon motion picture versions of great plays and great books, I feel sure that he must be doing a great deal of work for the movies.

The first that Lionel and I knew about Camille was when Ethel produced a sheaf of pages, covered with pencil scrawls, and told us that here were our parts.

"It's about time we were doing something in the theater," she said.

Lionel and I looked upon it as good fun. To Ethel it was the beginning of a career. Lionel wanted to play my part because I wore an imposing, droopy black mustache, but I wouldn't give up the part or the mustache, which I loved. He complained bitterly because as Armand he had to play a lover, but finally went through with it. That was the first and the last lover that Lionel ever played on any stage. Lionel despises love scenes. I have heard hundreds of actors say that they loathe love scenes, but most of them are consummate liars. Lionel, however, hates them with all his heart and soul.

Our show was to be a grand surprise for a number of guests, including my uncle, John Drew, who were coming down to spend the Fourth of July. Only the actors and the author were in on the secret.

About all that Ethel knew about Camille was that she had a magnificent cough. Old actresses who had played Camille often boasted without reservation about the shudders that ran through the audience when their coughing got really under way.

So Ethel began to practice her cough. She liked best to lock herself in the one bathroom that the big boarding house provided, and to do her coughing in secret. My grandmother heard her once or twice and became quite upset.

"Something must be done about that child," she said in alarm. "She's started to bark like a dog!"

The climax came one Saturday night when Ethel locked herself in the bathroom and tried out her two kinds of coughs. First, she would cough in high soprano. Then in what she thought was a hollow, sepulchral tone, while angry boarders, in bathrobes and slippers, towels over their arms, stood outside in line waiting to get in for their Saturday night bath.

My grandmother heard the noise and cried, "My God, she's got a bone in her throat!" and hammered on the door. Ethel came out, red-faced, and in order to keep my frightened grandmother from sending for a doctor, was forced to confess that it was all a rehearsal for "Camille."

It worked out splendidly. The news about Ethel's cough spread to all our friends, and when we appeared we had a crowded house. The box office receipts were 37 cents, the price for orchestra seats being 1 cent each. (My grandmother protested bitterly after the show, saying we had charged entirely too much.) Ethel—manager, producer and star—gave Lionel and me a dime each and kept the rest. We thought we deserved a few cents more, but didn't say so.

Later, as I, her irresponsible brother, grew older, I collected a million times over the few cents that might have been due.

Ethel produced a number of shows that summer. Lionel and I liked acting because whenever we were in a show it was a festive occasion and we were allowed to stay up late and eat ice cream. We were in the show business for what we could get out of it, not because of any duty we felt toward our public. Until we were a good many years older, Lionel and I were in the theater mostly because of the ice cream.

CHINESE POTTERY AND PORCELAIN

THE Gallery of Chinese Pottery and Porcelain is the forty-fourth in a series of exhibits being featured weekly at the City Art Museum in Forest Park. It is in the rear of the museum's west wing. Each display in this "Gallery of the Week" presentation will be reproduced in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, with an accompanying description of the exhibit by museum authorities.

The name of China has become a household word in the Western world synonymous with fine ceramic ware, a fitting tribute to the country to which we owe the invention of beautiful translucent ware called porcelain. Recent discoveries reveal the Chinese as skilled potters, even before the dawn of history, and a typical painted pottery jar of a pre-historic type made in the Chou dynasty (1122-255 B. C.), or earlier, is included in the exhibit.

The Han dynasty (206 B. C.-220 A. D.) saw the production of pottery having a true glaze, not only affording a more colorful product but with the practical advantage of being waterproof. Much of this Han pottery, like the ancient jades and bronzes, has been preserved by burial in tombs for the use of the deceased. Several such pottery tomb pieces are shown, all with a typical green glaze, usually deoxidized to silvery and iridescent tone by long exposure to the elements.

By the time of the T'ang dynasty (618-907 A. D.) a characteristic ware with a fine white or light buff body had been developed. It is often found with incised decoration and a colorful glaze splashed with green, blue and brown. Examples on view include a group of striking tomb effigies of men, deities and animals.

The Sung dynasty (960-1279 A. D.) marked a period of great cultural advance and of progress and refinement in the arts. The better wares have often a hard porcelaneous body, forecasting true porcelain, and there is a remarkable technical advance in the glazes which are frequently of great richness and depth, the colors often subtly variegated by deft manipulation in the firing. A pottery flower bowl of Chun Yao, a celebrated Sung ware, shows the remarkable richness of color attained, as do also two tea bowls of Temmoku ware. Another kind of Sung pottery of great refinement is illustrated by pieces of Pai Ting Yao, a creamy white ware with delicate relief designs under the glaze.

But Chinese potters reached their greatest heights of technical perfection in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. An unusual porcelain vase with the magnificent red glaze known as sang de boeuf (ox blood), a small bowl in the delicate "peach bloom" glaze and other pieces skilfully decorated in polychrome enamels are typical of the reign of the Emperor K'ang Hsi (1662-1722). During the reigns of Yung Cheng (1723-35) and Ch'ien Lung (1736-95) the refinement continues, though something of the subtle beauty of the old pieces is missing. Examples of these periods include a lantern in "egg-shell" porcelain, a figurine of Kwan-yin in white porcelain and numerous pieces with polychrome ornament or in solid colors poetically described as apple green, camellia leaf green, cafe au lait, clair de lune.

"You watch," said Mike. "I'll fix it so he can wear a genteel boot."

He took careful aim, fired and the Negro let out a yip of pain. Mike had carefully shaved off a portion of the fellow's heel. Soon an officer of the law came to take him before a Justice of the Peace. With Mike went a number of his companions, determined to stand by him in his ordeal with the law. The Justice was a little Frenchman, full of the majesty of his position. Mike and his friends refused to take the proceedings seriously, and the little Justice got more and more angry, until at last he cried:

"Leave ze court, you raskelle of ze boat! Allez vous-en, vous rogues. I shall nevair ave nosing to do wiz you. You ave treat ze Court wiz gran' contempt."

Mike and his friends retreated to the river again, and there the good-natured Mike paid the officer for his trouble and sent "a handful of silver to the darky to extract the pain." Another story was written down of a foul joke that Mike perpetrated at Madame Tisan's. It seems that a group of rivermen and a number of the French settlers were assembled there to play lotto (not then under a police ban). Time came for dancing. There were a number of [illegible] underfoot and these got in Mike's way, to his great annoyance. Over the fire a great kettle of syrup was boiling, which was to be used later for sweetening on the little French pancakes that Madame Tisan served. Unobserved, Mike picked up two or three of the dogs from the floor and dropped them into this kettle of syrup. Mike and his keelboatmen were asked to leave.

One of the things that godless Mike liked to do best was to break up the primitive camp meetings of the time. But a legend that came into being long after his death had it that on one such occasion he met more than his equal in Peter Cartwright, frontier preacher and one-time political rival of Abraham Lincoln. When Mike and his men went to Alton, bent on breaking up Preacher Cartwright's meeting, the preacher, a tower of physical strength, challenged Mike to single combat, got him down and strangled him until he gasped out a confession of defeat.

But this last must be put down as plainly apocryphal, since the most authentic record available places Mike's death some time in the year 1823. With the coming of the steamboat, Mike was no longer king of the rivers and, in disgust, it is assumed, he enlisted to go on the Ashley-Henry expedition to the Upper Missouri in search of furs. The essential discipline of such expeditions was lax enough, but it was more than Mike could endure. He quarreled over the whisky ration, left the party and went to live through the winter in a cave, like a great angry bear.

His adopted son, a lad named Carpenter, lived with him at least part of the time and furnished the provisions and some whisky. In the spring the other trappers came to rout out the old bear. There was a great drunk, and in the course of it Mike and his son agreed to prove their devotion for each other by shooting a cup of whisky off each other's heads at a distance of 100 yards, a favorite practice that Mike is said to have devised as a test of friendship.

CARPENTER, drunk as he was, shot first and grazed Mike's skull. Mike took the gun, fired, and the youth dropped dead. There was no justice to take its course and nothing was done. But Mike grieved over the loss and, above all, over the insinuation, spread by one of his enemies in the camp, that he had intentionally shot Carpenter. When he confronted this enemy, Talbot, with the accusation, Talbot shot Fink dead.

But this is only one version of his death. He died in as many ways and as many places as Jesse James. Around many a Western campfire his life and death were subjects for hair-raising tales. As late as 1860 these stories were printed in newspaper and magazine. From these sources Mike has now been rescued from oblivion, temporarily, at any rate.

Smuggled a Gun to Her Husband, Then Bedlam Broke Loose

One day Ginger said: "I don't care what happens any more. Will you do something for me?"

The "something" was to get a brown paper package from a fellow named Marty on Court street.

"When I got home," the widow said, "I found the package contained a revolver. I was frightened and hid it in a dresser. The next day, I told Ginger about it. He hung his head and said: 'You don't care to live. Neither do I. I'm going to kill myself.' I asked if he was going to leave me here and he said: 'Yes.' I argued with him and he said if I wanted, he would take me along with him."

"Were you willing to go?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever have any conversation with your husband indicating he intended to shoot his way out of the prison?"

"No. The place was too closely guarded and police were outside."

"Did you take two small bottles with you?"

"Yes."

"Where did you get them?"

"I had the bottles home, but I bought the chloroform."

"What was the chloroform for?"

"I BROUGHT the chloroform to the jail for the same reason I took the gun. The gun was in my overcoat and they might have taken my coat away from me. So I put the two bottles in my dress, where they couldn't find them. They were for us to drink if he didn't use the gun—one for him and one for me."

A revolver clattered on a table.

"Is that the gun you took to Ginger?"

She shrank from it.

"Yes, sir."

She related how her husband entered the counsel room and they talked "about so many things." She passed over the weapon. He put it in his pocket.

"I can use it on me, but I can't use it on you," he told her.

"I said: 'If you can't use it on both of us, give it back to me and I'll take it home.' He was about to do it when Nolan came in the door and said: 'Time's up!' I said: 'You're in an awful hurry when you've taken my last $5.' Then Ginger jumped up and said: 'Did he do that?' and began swearing. He had the gun, but his back was to me and I couldn't see what he did with it. I tried to grab him, but before I could he was out the door, cursing Nolan. I heard a shot and heard Ginger hollering. I ran after him. I don't know what I did in the corridor. I heard a lot of shots. And then everything was quiet. I found Ginger had shot himself. He was on the floor." She broke down and spectators and jurymen felt tears slide down their cheeks.

"Did you know anything about the criminal record of your husband?" asked Judge Taylor.

"I didn't know he had any."

"Did you know his occupation?"

"I thought he was a stevedore."

"You never asked him?"

"No."

AT THE height of a strenuous cross-examination, Mr. Jacobs asked: "Isn't it the truth that the plan was that your husband was to put Nolan into the room, that he was to chloroform him, then put on Nolan's uniform and walk out?"

"No, that is not so. No jail break had been planned."

"Isn't it a fact that if the jail break failed, your husband was to kill you, then kill himself?"

"No."

While the jury deliberated on its verdict, Mrs. McCormick paced the floor of her cell above the courtroom. Photographers and reporters and counsel stood about Judge Taylor, who explained that he held in his hand the ancient "clover-leaf" pistol with which Edward S. Stokes shot James Fisk. He talked of his collection of murder guns.

After several hours the jurors trooped back to their box, faces solemn and inscrutable. The defendant entered on the arms of a bailiff and a matron. For the first time she did not walk erect. Her face looked blue. She slumped into her chair. She breathed as if from a heavy climb.

Back home in the Bronx, she merely stared as a relative held out her baby. Forty-odd friends had gathered for an acquittal party. The widow greeted them and suddenly ran back to the nursery and hugged her baby. Then she ran to the piano and thumbed a few bars of "Happy Days Are Here Again," and wept. Her mother led her off to bed.

The little O'Possum brothers saw Hungry Harry hang the sign and went to Mr. Bones with their story. Mr. Bones, sensing mischief, is preparing to investigate as

THE PLAY BEGINS

SHERLOCK BONES—What a pity Hungry Harry didn't apply for a part in the moving picture. He could play the part of the villain better than anyone around here. I suppose he would rather be a real villain than merely act like one. He's a real problem. But I've yet to see the problem I can't solve. Hm-m-m. (Sherlock Bones puts on his wolf's head disguise and hobbles about the streets of Hickory Hollow. After awhile he comes upon Hungry Harry, his arms full of clothing he is carrying to a wagon.)

SHERLOCK BONES—(In a high, squeaky voice.) Please help a penniless old man.

HUNGRY HARRY—Help you? I'll give you a job, but you're to ask no questions. Just help me hide under the clothing in this wagon and drive me out of Hickory Hollow. You are not known here, so it should be a cinch.

SHERLOCK BONES—Oh, thank you, thank you. (Hungry Harry gets into the wagon and Sherlock Bones piles clothing on him until he is completely hidden. Then with a merry twinkle in his eye Sherlock drives to the location where the moving picture is being made.)

NICK TREEHOUSE—(Yelling.) Hey! Get that wagon out of here. Who do you think you are?

SHERLOCK BONES—(Jerking off his disguise.) None other than Sherlock Bones bringing you a real villain. (Hungry Harry raises up, the mob sees him and makes a rush for him.)

SHERLOCK BONES—And what an ending for Hungry Harry.

NICK TREEHOUSE—Now, Mr. Bones, I want to thank you for furnishing both the villain and the hero. Three cheers for Mr. Bones. (All together.) Hurrah, hurrah, hurrah.

THE TEST THAT SHOCKED A MILLION WOMEN!

Sensational "Bite-Test" Exposes GRITTY FACE POWDERS!

"I Dropped the Box, I was so Horrified," Writes One Woman!

BEHIND many a case of sore and irritated skin, behind many a case of dry and coarse skin, lies gritty face powder!

That face powder that looks so smooth to your eye and feels so smooth to your skin, it may be full of grit—tiny, sharp particles that are invisible to the eye but instantly detectable to the teeth.

You can't go on rubbing a gritty face powder into your skin without paying for it in some way. Maybe some of the blemishes with which you are wrestling now are due to nothing less than a gritty face powder. Find out! Ascertain whether the powder you are now using is grit-free or not.

Make This Telling Test!

Take a pinch of your powder and place it between your front teeth. Bring your teeth down on it and grind firmly. If there is any trace of grit in the powder it will be as instantly detectable as sand in spinach.

More than a million women have made this test in the past year as advised by Lady Esther. And thousands of them have written in in righteous indignation over their findings. One woman was so horrified she dropped the powder, box and all, on the floor!

There is one face powder you can be sure contains no grit. That is Lady Esther Face Powder. But satisfy yourself as to that—and at Lady Esther's expense! Your name and address will bring you a liberal supply of all five shades of Lady Esther Face Powder. Put it to the "bite-test". Let your teeth convince you that it is absolutely grit-free, the smoothest powder ever touched to cheek.

Make Shade Test, Too!

When you receive the five shades of Lady Esther Face Powder try them all for shade, too. Did you know that the wrong shade of face powder can make you look five to ten years older?

Ask any stage director. He will tell you that one type of woman has to have one light while another has to have another or else each will look years older. The same holds for face powder shades. One of five shades is the perfect shade for every woman. Lady Esther offers you the five shades for you to find out which is the one for you!

Mail the coupon now for the five shades of Lady Esther Face Powder. Lady Esther, Evanston, Ill.

(You Can Paste This on Penny Postcard) FREE

THE WORLD ADORES THAT
PEACH-BLOOM SKIN

"OLIVE OIL IN SOAP"
say doctors, "to keep skin lovely"

YOU darling, you! With your velvety, petal-smooth skin! For beauty's sake, let's hope mother knows how to keep that skin of yours enchanting as the years go by.

When you were a tiny baby, olive oil was the doctor's prescription for your sensitive skin. And, of course, he prescribed "an olive oil soap." Do you know why? Because such a soap is infinitely kind to tender skin.

The ideal soap for baby

Palmolive is made from an exclusive blend of olive and palm oils—just these pure, cleansing oils—and no others. The secret of Palmolive's beauty results lies not only in its beauty ingredients—but also in its exclusive blend—a blend which has made Palmolive the ideal beauty soap for all types of skin.

Olive oil—nothing else—gives it that soft, rich olive-green color, a color that assures you of natural purity and safety. Olive oil, too, gives Palmolive a velvety lather, which gently penetrates the tiny pores, freeing them of accumulations easily . . . leaving skin soft, smooth, gloriously clear and fresh.

Beauty advice you should heed

Mother, buy three cakes today. Start tonight—to use this 2-minute treatment, for yourself and baby, both: massage Palmolive's soothing lather well into those tiny pores. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. You'll soon discover that "schoolgirl complexions" depend on natural, wholesome care. And your beauty as well as baby's, will be protected by Palmolive—the soap of youth.

P. S. for grown-ups. Are you Schoolgirl Complexion all over? Why not use Palmolive for your bath, too?

PALMOLIVE . . . the soap of Youth

PRESIDENT TALKS WITH OWNERS OF 'CAPTIVE MINES'

AGREEMENT NEAR, JOHNSON SAYS

Adjournment Taken in White House Conference to Permit Drafting of Settlement Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—President Roosevelt conferred today with operators of "Captive mines" of Pennsylvania in an effort to settle labor disputes in that area.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, headed the group of 14 representing the steel and iron companies which control the coal mines, products of which are consumed by their owners. He said: "We are here to find a settlement."

President Roosevelt had at his side Hugh S. Johnson, Industrial Administrator.

An agreement late today was predicted by Johnson after the conference.

The President had a plain talk for more than an hour with the officers of the steel and iron companies.

"I am very hopeful of an agreement today," smiled Johnson as he hurried from the White House.

In the conference, Roosevelt brought up his demand for a further reduction in the price of rails to be purchased by the carriers through a Government loan.

Joseph B. Eastman, the railroad co-ordinator, who Saturday accused the steel companies of "prior consultaton and collusion" in offering a price of $37.75 a ton for the steel, attended the conference.

Donald Richberg, counsel for the NRA, joined the conference.

St. Louisan Demands Separate Code for Structural Industry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—P. J. Morrin of St. Louis, labor representative, today contended the proposed NRA code for the structural steel and iron fabricating industry had been drawn up "for the purpose of accomplishing the sinister and anti-social objectives of the United States Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation." Morrin made this assertion at a hearing on the projected code. He spoke as general president of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers.

Declaring the major steel companies had anti-union motives with relation to the iron and steel erection industry, he demanded a separate code for that industry.

"These two corporations," Morrin said, referring to United States Steel and Bethlehem Steel, "have united in their efforts for many years to eliminate labor unions and independent erectors who employ organized labor, from the structural steel erection industry. If the unionized iron workers are to be emancipated from the destructive control of anti-union fabricating establishments, as exemplified by the United States Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, the steel fabricating and erection industries must be segregated into separate codes."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, joined with Morrin in contending that the makers of steel and the workers who erect it belonged under separate codes. Green said he did not understand why they had been put in the same code.

Machine Gun Used After Government Craft Is Rammed; One Man Seriously Hurt.

By the Associated Press.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 30.—One man was wounded seriously by machine gun fire and the 64-foot speedboat Frances was sunk in an encounter early today with Coast Guard patrol boats near Black Point in Long Island Sound.

Charles Foster of Greenport, N. Y., the wounded man, and three companions were taken off the Frances just before it sank. Coast Guard officials said the boat was registered out of Newport, R. I., and owned by James Fay.

The Coast Guard reported one of its patrol boats was rammed and its bow badly damaged by the Frances during a lively skirmish at 3 a. m. Firing was resorted to, officials said, after the Frances responded to three warning shots across the bow by sending out a smoke screen.
